Israel denounced for 100 deaths in air incident

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel was widely denounced today for shooting down a Libyan airliner in which more than 100 persons died.

President Nixon sent condolences to Libya and Egypt, a pointed rebuke to the Israelis. But a Lebanese newspaper charged him with hypocrisy, likening him to "a murderer who attends the funeral of his victims."

Israel said its fighters fired on the Boeing 727 Wednesday because the airliner's French pilot refused to heed orders to land after flying over Israeli military installations along the Suez Canal.

The death toll today apparently stood at 105. The Libyan airline said there were 112 persons aboard the plane, including nine crew members, and Israel said nine survivors were pulled from the wreckage. But two of the survivors—both women —died during the night.

The Israeli military command said 90 bodies had been recovered. The search for the rest was hampered by a sandstorm during the night.

The Libyan airline said five of the crew were French, two of the passengers were German and the others aboard were Libyans, Egyptians, Jordanians, Lebanese Palestinians and Sudanese. Two Frenchmen were among the survivors, the first officer and a steward.

The nonaligned group of countries at the United Nations in New York expressed "solidarity with the countries which have been the victims of the Israeli aggression" and called upon "the international community to put an end to the policy of Israel."

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim expressed "shock and condolences" to Libya and "regret and concern" to Israel.

The London Times charged the Israelis with "at the least a reckless act of killing of civilians and, as such, inexcusable even if, in contrast to the murders of which Israel has been the victim, it was not wholly premeditated."

The airliner was downed 12 hours after Israeli commandos raided Arab guerrilla bases at the northern end of Lebanon. Israel said the raiders killed 50 guerrillas, but Arab guerrilla sources put the death toll between 15 and 26.

Congress gets Nixon paper on economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon disclosed today that he will recommend a tax reform bill to Congress as well as recommendations to alleviate the property tax burden on older Americans.

In his State of the Union message to Congress on the economy, Nixon dispelled doubts that he would present tax reform legislation of his own, saying only that it would build on further reforms of 1969 and 1971.

It was the only reference to tax reform legislation in the message, and the administration gave no details. The House Ways and Means Committee is holding hearings on reform legislation to close so-called loopholes in the income tax code.

The President also said he will submit bills to improve the nation's unemployment compensation program, minimum wage laws, the private pension system, and "the manner in which we deal with our transportation systems."

On property tax relief, Nixon covered the subject in a one sentence statement, saying the recommendations would be designed to alleviate "the crushing burdens which property taxes now create for older Americans."

He repeated his appeal to Congress to impose a rigid spending ceiling of $269 billion in fiscal 1974, saying: "The stakes are high.

"If we do not restrain spending and if my recommended cuts are reversed, it would take a 15 per cent increase in income taxes to pay for the additional expenditures."

It was the first time that Nixon has used that figure in referring to the spending ceiling. He has said in the past that failure to keep a tight rein on spending would mean higher taxes, more inflation or a combination of both.

Nixon said he has carried out his pledge not to recommend any programs that would require a general tax increase or create inflationary pressures.

Liaison offices to be established

U.S., China closer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and China announced today they will establish official governmental liaison offices in Washington and Peking to speed up normalization of relations between two countries.

The development was announced in a joint communique issued in Washington and Peking.

Presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger said the offices will serve as the principal contact points on the expansion of trade "as well as all other matters except the strictly formal diplomatic aspects" of ties between the countries.

Kissinger said the liaison offices will have full diplomatic privileges but will in no way imply establishment of formal diplomatic relations.

Kissinger, who returned Tuesday from four days of extensive talks in Peking with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai, also disclosed that:

—Two American airmen held prisoner by China since being shot down over Chinese territory will be released in the next few weeks. They are Air Force Maj. Philip E. Smith, a prisoner since Sept. 20, 1965, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert J. Flynn, held since Aug. 21, 1967.

—The life sentence of John Thomas Downey, a Central Intelligence Agency employe held since the Korean War, will be reviewed in the last half of the year. Kissinger said he had been told Downey's sentence could be shortened for good behavior and that he was informed Downey's conduct as a prisoner had been exemplary.

—The United States has no immediate plans to withdraw its remaining military forces from the Chinese Nationalist island of Taiwan but the subject will be reviewed periodically, with decisions based principally on Washington's assessment of the danger of war in the area.

—Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Chinese Foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei will begin discussions in Paris next week on settlement of private American claims against China, totalling some $250 million, and some $78 million of blocked Chinese assets in the United States. The aim will be to resolve the issues quickly through negotiations.

Mexico now prime source of drug traffic into U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two congressmen say that narcotics traffickers, aided by widespread official corruption at all but the highest levels, have turned Mexico into one of the most important sources of illicit drugs entering the United States.

They quoted U.S. narcotics enforcement agents as describing Mexico as "a major producer, transshipment point and marketplace of drugs entering the United States. In relation to our drug problem, it is probably second only to France in significance."

Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., said that before Mexico's emergence as the key transit country for overseas heroin entering the United States, Argentina had been the center for Latin American narcotics smugglers. In recent years, he said, Argentine police have effectively cracked down on the French-Corsican rings that had operated out of Buenos Aires.

Steele and Rep. Morgan F. Murphy, D-Ill., said in an interview that Mexican President Luis Echeverria Alvarez and Pedro Ojeda Paullada, his attorney general, are "sincerely concerned, sincerely interested in providing cooperation" in halting drug trafficking through their country.

But after that level of commitment to stemming the narcotics trade, "there's a hell of a big drop," Steele said.

The congressmen said U.S. agents in Latin-America told them that "in a practical sense, corruption in Mexico is so imbedded that any solution to the narcotics problem would be difficult."

Still, Steele said, the Mexican attorney general conferred with U.S. officials last Thursday, then three days ago moved police and Army troops into the state of Sonora near San Luis, arrested 15 persons and confiscated 9.5 tons of marijuana and one kilogram (2.2 pounds) of heroin.

Murphy and Steele visited five Latin American countries early this year to study U.S. drug-control assistance for the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

They said U.S. agents told them that so-called brown heroin, produced from Mexican opium, has begun to appear in U.S. East Coast cities where U.S. efforts in the Middle East created a shortage of Turkish heroin.

Petain coffin back in tomb

MARSHAL PETAIN

PARIS (AP) — A military plane returned the flag-draped coffin of Marshal Philippe Petain to his traitor's tomb on a lonely island off the Atlantic Coast today even though it may cost the French government rightist votes in the National Assembly elections next month.

The coffin was found Wednesday night in a garage in a northern suburb of Paris. It had been left there by a group of rightists who stole it from the Ile d'Yeu Sunday, hoping to force the government to bury it in the national military cemetery at Douaumont with the other defenders in the World War I Battle of Verdun.

Police are holding at least six men suspected of complicity in the plot, including Herbert Massol, an ultra-rightist candidate for the assembly, and Francois Boux de Cassan, a minister of information in Petain's Vichy government.

Jacques Isorni, Petain's lawyer at his treason trial, accused President Georges Pompidou's government of getting the old marshal's remains back by duplicity. He said the government had intimated to Petainist circles that, when the coffin was found, "it would be placed in a location of honor while the family decided on the location of the grave. It was a deliberately false indication."

Although Petain was convicted of treason for his collaboration with the Nazis after the French surrender in World War II, the sizable rightist faction has for years demanded that his body be transferred from the island of exile where he died and that he lie among the men he led at Verdun. But a burial with honors for Petain would antagonize the many Frenchmen for whom the wounds of the Vichy era are still very much open.

In returning the body to the island, the Gaullist government probably chose the lesser evil.

Cost of living data released; food skyrockets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices took their biggest monthly leap in a generation last month, the Labor Department said today. But lower prices for clothing and used cars kept the overall rise in the cost of living to a relatively modest 0.3 per cent.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said overall food prices rose 2.1 per cent in January, the largest one-month increase since January 1951, when they rose 2.5 per cent.

The increase was even steeper for food purchased in grocery stores, which went up 2.5 per cent, the biggest monthly jump since the Labor Department began tabulating home food prices in 1952.

Because food prices usually go up this time of year, the increase in all food prices was 1.9 per cent when adjusted for seasonal variations. Still, this was the biggest seasonally adjusted monthly gain since March 1958, when they also rose 1.9 per cent.

New Laotian truce widely violated

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops captured two towns in southern Laos today after the cease-fire began at noon and made heavy attacks on government positions south of the Plain of Jars, informed sources reported.

"There have been massive violations," said one source.

Laotian military sources gave guarded confirmation of the cease-fire violations and the size of the attacks.

Reports from the south said government troops were in full retreat toward the Mekong River from the town of Paksong. The reports said they evacuated the town at 12:15 p.m., 15 minutes after the cease-fire, in the face of heavy shelling and ground attacks by units of the North Vietnamese 8th Regiment.

Paksong, which has been captured and lost twice in recent weeks, is 30 miles east of Pakse, an important Mekong River town and the headquarters of the rightist political faction.

The sources said the North Vietnamese also drove government troops out of Muong Phalane, 36 miles northeast of Savannakhet, another important Mekong River town halfway between Vientiane and Pakse.

North Vietnamese units also were reported to have continued heavy attacks against Gen. Vang Pao's CIA-supported army of Meo tribesmen on the southern edge of the Plain of Jars.

U.S. air attacks on the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao stopped several hours before noon, and there was no expectation they would be resumed because of the reported Communist violations of the cease-fire. America's South Vietnamese allies in Saigon have charged the Communists there with thousands of ceasefire violations, but there has been no resumption of U.S. air raids.

The cease-fire began 25 hours after the signing in Vientiane of a peace accord between the Vientiane government headed by Prince Souvanna Phouma and the Pathet Lao, whose titular leader is Souvanna's half brother, Prince Souphanouvong. Souvanna was present, but Souphanouvong presumably was in Sam Neua, the Pathet Lao capital in northeast Laos.

The Vientiane regime and the Pathet Lao are to form a new coalition government made up of equal numbers from each faction and two additional neutralists. Prince Souvanna is expected to be one of these and to continue as premier. But there was no indication yet when the two factions would get down to forming the government.

Nor was anything being done about setting up the machinery for supervision of the ceasefire. The agreement delegates this to the International Control Commission made up of India, Canada and Poland which, since the 1954 Geneva Agreement on Indochina, has been prevented by Communist blocking tactics from doing anything.

Price of gold shatters marks on exchanges

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold hit record highs in Europe for the fourth straight day today jumping $3.63 at the opening in London to an alltime peak of $83 an ounce.

The price of the metal has now soared nearly $15 an ounce here since the U.S. currency was devalued just over a week ago. Normally the gold price changes only a few cents in a week.

Dealers said the main reason for the soaring gold price was continued uncertainty over the value of paper money.

The dollar was weaker in early trading on most European money markets, including London, Zurich, Frankfurt, Paris and Amsterdam, but it strengthened in Tokyo.

Band instruments stolen again

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Sing Out Middletown, a young people's musical group was robbed of $3,000 worth of musical instruments in November, 1971.

The instruments were replaced over the next 18 months by the members who conducted fund raising projects.

Tuesday, their new instruments were stolen from the Optimist Hall.

"We just got out of debt," said director Don Bowles.

"The kids accepted it, because it was not as shocking as the first time. There was not much reaction left."

He believed they were insured this time.

Winthrop Rockefeller dies in California

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Winthrop Rockefeller, the former Arkansas governor and one of five children of multimillionaire John D. Rockefeller, died today at Desert Hospital, a family spokesman said. He was 60.

Rockefeller was admitted to the hospital a week ago with a chest ailment.

Thieu urges Hanoi allies to stop war material flow

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu called on the Soviet Union and China today to stop the flow of war materials to North Vietnam and prevent "the renewal of aggression from the Communists."

The South Vietnamese president also indicated that his previously announced meeting with President Nixon may be held next month at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif.

Thieu said now that the Soviet Union and China have agreed to join in the international peace conference on Vietnam, opening in Paris Monday, they should show "good will by not furnishing any more war material.... That is the best way to prevent the renewal of aggression.

"When Russia and Red China and other Communist countries will not furnish any more weapons to Hanoi and the National Liberation Front, they have nothing to fight with again. The war was waged by the Communists with the material from those Communist blocs."

Thieu told newsmen no date has been fixed for his visit to Nixon but "it is possible when everything is all right here and all right for President Nixon—maybe next month."

The president spoke to newsmen at Thu Duc, near Saigon, after addressing a rally of province officials, members of the general assembly and political party leaders.

Thieu said the Laotian ceasefire, which went into effect today, "should go together with the cease-fire in Vietnam, but "I have no confidence ... that the Viet Cong will respect the cease-fire anywhere."

He charged the Communists with violating the cease-fire in Vietnam more than 4,400 times, including 1,500 shelling attacks. Despite news reports to the contrary, he denied that South Vietnamese forces have violated the truce, claiming that they only reacted "when we are attacked."

Asked where the South Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives would meet to begin substantive negotiations on the future political shape of South Vietnam, Thieu replied: "We have proposed many places, Geneva or many countries in Southeast Asia, but they are very reluctant to select Geneva or any other country."

U.S. slashes naval power off Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has ordered two aircraft carriers home from Asian waters, the first significant cutback in U.S. air-sea power there since the Vietnam ceasefire.

The Midway is due back at Alameda, Calif., in early March and the America at Norfolk, Va., late in March.

Departure of the carriers reduces the number of U.S. bombers and attack planes deployed near Indochina by approximately 100.

Four other carriers, with a total complement of about 200 strike planes, remain with the 7th Fleet in the Far East. But further reductions are expected in the fleet of nearly 60 U.S. fighting ships mustered off Vietnam nearly a year ago when President Nixon reopened the air and naval war against North Vietnam.

Meanwhile, there is no word of anv imminent sacle-down of the more than 600 Air Force bombers and fighter-bombers stationed in Thailand and on Guam.

Although there is a cease-fire in Vietnam and Laos, Pentagon sources discount the possibility of any substantial pullout of U.S. Air Force planes from Southeast Asia before all U.S. war prisoners are home and the remaining American troops are out of South Vietnam in late March.

Vietnam bonus question to be delayed until fall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An "unofficial" conference committee was asked to resolve legislative differences in Vietnam veterans' bonus proposals today, but the outlook for action in time for the issue to go on the May primary ballot was bleak at best.

Today is the deadline for completing legislative approval if the proposal is to be certified for the ballot. The hangup centered on a controversy over how to pay off the required $300 million in bonds.

It was a question of whether to do it with perennially unpopular new taxes, or to commit the state's general revenue fund to pay the bill in $24 million annual installments over the next 15 years. Most observers predicted the raises would be held up until the November election.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, announced Wednesday the appointment of the conference committee, an unusual move since the two chambers normally do not use that device until after both houses have voted on an issue.

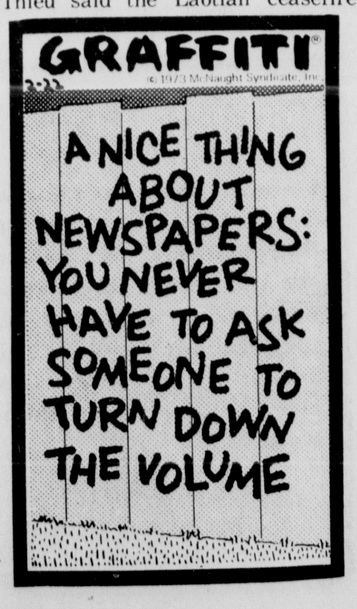

The bonus passed the House, but was up for action today in the Senate, where majority Republicans have changed its financing provisions. They want the bonds retired with general fund revenue.

House Democrats insisted on a .6-mill property tax levy.

Gray said he was naming Sens. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo; Walter L. White, R-12 Lima, and Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Northfield, to the "unofficial" conference committee. In the House, Speaker A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, designated Speaker Pro Tem Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, and Majority Floor Leader Barney Quilter, D-47 Toledo, as conferees.

Lancione said he would leave the selection of the third House conferee up to Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg. But Kurfess said Wednesday night: "I don't even know what an unofficial conference committee is. No one has contacted me about it."

There were reports, meanwhile, that a delay might be agreed on to await the fate of a state lottery amendment which already has been placed on the May ballot.

Court's remap ruling studied by states

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Warren considered the "one-man, one-vote" rulings the most important in his 16 years as chief justice.

On Wednesday, its lineup changed, the Supreme Court signaled a readiness to cut back, as it has on the rights of criminal defendants and other Warren landmarks.

Approved by a 5-3 vote was an apportionment plan for the Virginia House of delegates in which the population spread from the smallest to the largest district is at least 16.4 per cent.

The author of the majority opinion was Justice William H. Rehnquist, the most dogmatic of the four conservatives named to the court by President Nixon. He said absolute equality could get in the way of the normal functioning of state and local governments.

Rehnquist and the principal dissenter, Justice William J. Brennan Jr., clashed over whether the court was breaking precedent.

Rehnquist insisted that even in 1964, when the court first applied "one-man, one-vote" to state legislatures, it permitted greater leeway than in drawing U.S. congressional districts.

Brennan, on the other hand, said the court had never applied two different constitutional standards and that any deviation from equality had to be justified.

Whatever, the decision is likely to serve as a clear signal to the states that they can apportion their legislatures without breaking up city and county lines so long as the mathematical deviation is not much larger than 16.4 per cent.

Rehnquist indicated, however, that going much further may not be permissible. He said the Virginia deviation "may well approach tolerable limits."

Rehnquist's majority opinion championed the policy of maintaining the integrity of political subdivisions. Evidently, other states would have similar success in the high court with that explanation.

Some lower federal and state courts could find the ruling puzzling. As Brennan pointed out, apportionment plans for Connecticut, Iowa, Texas, Louisiana, Illinois, Kansas and Alabama had been invalidated even though the deviations were much smaller than the 16.4 per cent in the Virginia plan.

The liberal justice said the Northern Virginia suburbs of Washington will be under-represented. Discrimination against voters in one area, he suggested, should concern the court more than county lines.

But the time Brennan and the justices who agreed with him, William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall, were in the minority.

A new majority had formed around Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White, who had reservations about the old "one-man, one-vote" decisions, and three Nixon appointees— Rehnquist, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun.

The fourth, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., did not participate, apparently because of past association with one of the lawyers in the case.

Board OKs variance for factory building

Two zoning code variances were granted Wednesday night at a meeting of the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals. The variances were approved on requests by the Marting Manufacturing Co. to permit the erection of a manufacturing building, and by Cliff Thompson to authorize the establishment of a telephone office in his home at 405 Newberry St.

The new manufacturing building is to be constructed on lot 161 of the Washington Improvement Co. Addition on Rose Avenue.

In granting the variance to Marting, the board cited a section of the zoning code which provides for the extension of a building or land use on border districts into a more restricted district but not more than 25 feet beyond the dividing line of the two districts.

The variance was granted with four conditions:

1. That the proposed manufacturing building not extend beyond 25 feet of the east property line of lot 161 of the Washington Improvement Co. Addition.

2. That absolutely no manufacturing or storage or raw materials, semi-finished or finished goods be permitted within 25 feet of the east property line of lot 162, and that the unused or unoccupied portion of lot 161 be adequately and properly maintained at all times.

3. That the city shall observe the effects on the traffic flow and parking and shall, if necessary, take action to assure the safety of the neighborhood.

4. That no openings, windows, doors, etc., be permitted in the west end of the proposed building facing lot 162 except for the required emergency openings.

The variance granted to Thompson contained the provisions that trucks and other vehicles required in his pest control business be parked in a locked garage as a safety precaution and that no storage of chemicals be permitted and that no signs be permitted.

The board accepted the resignation of Glenn Tatman from the board. He has been employed as the city's zoning inspector.

New hassle over Pentagon papers studied by judge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The government prosecutor in the Pentagon papers case is scheduled to announce today whether he will follow court orders and give the defendants documents their attorneys say are vital to their case or risk a threatened "sanction" by the judge.

Asst. U.S. Atty. David Nissen refused to turn over on Wednesday a Central Intelligence Agency agent's statement, but he said he would consult with U.S. Justice Department officials overnight and leave the decision to them.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne said that if the documents are not turned over he probably would forbid any evidence on one volume of the papers, a secret study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Such a ruling apparently would strike from the record the key government testimony of Gen. William Depuy, who testified about the volume in question. It also would eliminate at least one count of the indictment against Daniel Ellsberg, one of the two defendants.

It was the second time in a month the judge has tangled with Nissen over documents withheld by the government. In a previous ruling, Byrne eliminated one other volume of the papers and virtually eliminated an entire count of the 15-count indictment.

The documents the government refuses to surrender now are statements of CIA agent Samuel A. Adams, who says he has evidence that Depuy testified about "fabricated" statistics in the Pentagon papers regarding the Communist "order of battle" in Vietnam.

Depuy testified the figures quoted could have aided an enemy if released, but Adams says the figures are false, fabricated by the American military.

Ellsberg, 41, and Anthony Russo, 36, are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in connection with the leak of the Pentagon study to news media. The government has been seeking to prove such a release could have harmed the national defense.

Month-to-month foreign aid outlays being sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright has asked the Senate Appropriations Committee to limit emergency funding of the foreign-aid program to one month in the latest chapter of the Congress-White House battle over spending.

The Arkansas Democrat's request became known shortly after the House Wednesday unanimously ratified its Appropriations Committee's recommendation that the stop-gap funding be extended for four months for foreign aid and the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

Sources said the Senate panel is likely to honor Fulbright's request since he heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which has authority over foreign-affairs legislation.

The House-passed measure continued funds at the annual rate of $3.6 billion for foreign aid and $29.9 billion for Labor and HEW.

The stop-gap method was necessary for foreign aid because House-Senate conferees deadlocked last year over a Senate amendment requiring that future executive agreements with other nations be submitted for approval as treaties.

The procedure was adopted for Labor and HEW after President Nixon twice vetoed appropriations bills for those departments on grounds they were too big.

The House Appropriations Committee reportedly agreed to use continuing resolutions rather than force a renewed confrontation with the administration over health and welfare spending in the fiscal year ending June 30. Current authority in the two areas runs out at midnight next Wednesday.

But Fulbright's request, if heeded and accepted by the House, would force further action on foreign aid before the end of the current fiscal year.

In a related development, the Senate Wednesday voted 69 to 20 to revive low-interest loans for rural electrification and telephones terminated by Nixon last December.

The House Agriculture Committee opens hearings on the measure Monday with House passage reported certain.

Plane tot's mother held

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)— Betty Jean Anderson, 22, Garyville, La., was charged today with attempted murder of her newborn baby girl, found jammed in the toilet of a United Air Lines jet, the FBI said.

The FBI said the senior at Southern University in Baton Rouge was charged under a federal law making it a crime to attempt murder aboard an aircraft.

The FBI said she was taken before a U.S. magistrate and released on $5,000 personal bond.

The 5½-pound full-term baby, with umbilical cord attached and only a head and an arm visible, had been found in the toilet Monday night by United workers cleaning up in the aircraft after it landed in Youngstown on a flight from Pittsburgh.

She was reported in satisfactory condition at Warren General Hospital in nearby Warren after workers dismantled the commode to free her.

Explosion kills 5 in Pennsylvania

COOPERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Workmen installing a sewer may have disturbed a gas line, causing an explosion that leveled an apartment building, a gas company official reports. Five persons were killed and 22 injured.

Richard L. Bunn, vice president of United Gas Improvement Co., said gas company crews arrived at the site shortly after being notified by the workmen. Evacuation of the six-unit apartment building had started when the blast occurred Wednesday.

Two houses also were set afire and several other buildings were damaged by the blast, which scattered debris over an area of several blocks.

Loss estimate raised in Defiance blaze

DEFIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Damage caused by a fire in Session Hall, a men's dormitory at Defiance College, has been revised upward to $740,000. Officials said the old building suffered $689,000 damage and its contents $51,000.

The 83 freshmen housed in the structure lost nearly all of their personal belongings. There was one injury when a student hurt an ankle in a jump from a second floor window.

Lima State chief

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — The appointment of Dr. Paul Watkins to succeed Dr. T.J. Reshetylo as superintendent of Lima State Hospital was announced Wednesday by Mental Hygiene Department officials.

Watkins, 49, associate superintendent of Columbus State Hospital since 1967, has been employed in various state institutions since completing his medical training at Ohio State in 1951.

Gov. Wallace should retire, Alabama newsman says

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A Pulitzer Prize-winning newsman's statement that Gov. George C. Wallace is physically unable to govern Alabama has touched off a sometimes-angry controversy over Wallace's health.

An effort may be made in the legislature this summer to make the governor eligible for a pension while still in office. It could be a major issue in the 1974 governor's race, with Wallace likely to run for a third term.

Harold E. Martin, publisher-editor of The Montgomery Advertiser-Alabama Journal, said in a speech three weeks ago that the governor "is physically unable to serve" and, for his own good as well as the state's, he should retire.

"Or, short of that," he said, Wallace should appoint a select committee of businessmen "to share the burden of state government for the duration of his term."

Actually, Alabama has no law permitting a governor to retire from office; he would have to resign outright. Martin acknowledged that and recommended passage of legislation providing a lifetime pension at full salary for any governor disabled in service to the state.

Wallace has been paralyzed in both legs since he was wounded in an assassination attempt at Laurel, Md., last May 15 while campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Alabama citizens are crushed emotionally by the appearance of the once-vivacious Wallace in a wheelchair, suffering constant pain," the newspaper publisher said.

"But more and more Alabamians are facing up to the reality that the state can't continue without leadership...."

Wallace, who was in a Birmingham hospital recovering from surgery when Martin spoke Jan. 31, has had nothing to say about it publicly.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Another in a series of cold fronts was headed for Ohio today as one whisked across the state Wednesday bringing widespread but small amounts of precipitation.

"Generally quite light" was the way the National Weather Service reported the precipitation, and only the northern sections of Ohio had measureable snowfall. Additional snowfall of around two inches was recorded at the Cleveland Hopkins Airport and Youngstown and an inch at Toledo and Canton-Akron.

After high temperatures that occurred mainly during the morning, ranging from 32 at Youngstown to 40 along the Ohio River, readings dropped into the teens and low 20s early Thursday.

The new low pressure area and associated cold front was near Lake Winnipeg in Canada this morning and will be dropping rapidly southeastward and passing across Ohio late tonight or Friday.

Snow flurries Thursday morning will be of little consequence, the Weather Service said, but will increase in the northern portions of the state late this afternoon and tonight. High temperatures today are forecast in the 20s and low 30s and lows tonight in the teens and low 20s. Blustery winds appear likely through Friday.

A chance of rain or snow Sunday. Lows in the teens Saturday and highs in the upper 20s and 30s. Becoming warmer over the weekend. Highs in the 40s Monday and lows in the 20s.

Southwest hit by rain, heavy snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flooding, isolated heavy rains and some heavy snowfalls hit the Southwest today, but most of the nation had clear skies and chilly temperatures.

Warm rain falling over snowpacked areas brought flooding to the streets of cities in southern Arizona along with minor flooding of streams and washes.

A flood watch was posted for the central basin of Arizona and a heavy-snow warning for the mountains of New Mexico and southeastern Colorado.

Most of the precipitation is the Southwest was light. However, some heavy rains hit southwest Texas as well as southern Arizona.

Snow dusted areas around the Great Lakes and east through the Ohio Valley and northern and Central Appalachians to the Atlantic. Some areas had as much as an inch of snow.

Heavy-snow warnings were in effect for the central and southern part of West Virginia, and travelers advisories were issued for the mountains of Maryland.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 4 at Rawlins, Wyo., to 60 at Key West, Fla.

California recovers from quake

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Residents of the coastal city of Oxnard, hardest hit by a a rolling, rumbling earthquake, face the prospect today of repairing property damage without state aid.

The earthquake struck Southern California Wednesday, shattering windows, cracking plaster, toppling dishes and bottles from shelves and causing other property damage. Five persons were reported injured; two had broken legs.

Skyscrapers swayed in Los Angeles, but no damage was reported.

In the Oxnard-Camarillo area of southern Ventura County, 13 Southern California Edison power circuits were disrupted, cutting off electricity to at least 7,000 customers. Telephone service also was interrupted.

A rock slide blocked all lanes of the Pacific Coast Highway for more than an hour and a half.

Oxnard, a coastal city of 70,000 persons 60 miles northwest of Los Angeles, absorbed the heaviest damage.

A spokesman for city, county and state officials who toured the city said a preliminary survey indicated the loss could reach $1 million.

The quake jolted some 200 miles of the California coast from Santa Barbara to San Diego and was felt as far inland as the desert resort of Palm Springs, 65 miles east of Los Angeles.

Flip Wilson wins paternity case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Flip Wilson is not the father of a baby boy, as alleged by dancer Mabel Robinson, a Superior Court judge here has ruled.

Judge Harry L. Hupp ruled Wednesday against the woman who had contended that Wilson was the father of her 8½month-old son. The judge did not explain the reasons for his ruling other than to say it was based "on the evidence submitted to me."

On Tuesday, Royalin (Roz) Taylor said she and Wilson planned to marry in about six months. Wilson and Miss Taylor were in Redding to visit her parents.

Stocks still in downtrend

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices, which skidded lower Wednesday, continued the downtrend today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off about two points and declining issues had a small lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Traders knew before the market opened today that the international monetary situation was having double troubles again—gold bullion prices were soaring and the dollar was under renewed pressure in the foreign exchange markets.

Inflationary pressures were another bugaboo, with forecasts from the Nixon administration of rising food prices during much of 1973.

Market watchers took some consolation from the fact that Wednesday's losing session "was no real sell-off," as one analyst put it.

In the news background was the labor Department's report that consumer rate of 6 per cent in January compared with 2.4 per cent in December.

Active issues on the Big Board included Gulf Oil, up ⅝ to 25⅞. Gulf announced plans for a tender offer for 10 million shares at $26 a share.

Others on the active list were Chrysler, down ⅛ to 36; Curtiss-Wright, off ⅝ at 30, and Firestone, ¼ lower at 23¼.

In Wednesday's trading the downtrend involved so many issues that the Big Board's losing stocks numbered 985, compared with 450 gaining stocks. The Dow average dropped 9.25 points to 974.34, erasing most of the 10.46 points it had picked up in the two preceding sessions.

Turnover remained comparatively slow at 14.88 million shares, as a good many investors retreated from the action and waited for new developments.

'Neverdie' religion carves major niche in Appalachia

By WAYNE SLATER
Associated Press Writer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — "You may not believe this, but I've been here five times before," said the Rev. Henry Holstine.

"I know that because one night I was studying this scripture so hard I went right out my natural thinking and God took hold of my arm and lifted me up.

"He opened up the earth, just like if you took a shovel and dug a hole, and I saw five bodies laying on top of the ground," he explained, staring down at five imaginary corpses of his past lives stretched out shoulder to shoulder on the linoleum.

"Then He asked what I was gonna do with the body I'm in now. Was I gonna make the mark or was I gonna go to where they are?"

As a lay minister in the Church of the Living, the Rev. Henry Holstine speaks often of his revelation, the night when all the incongruent pieces fit together.

Vision and revelation are important elements in the search for truth among members of this religious sect, a splinter group of the Perfectionist Holiness movement which took the Appalachian states by storm early in the 19th Century.

The "Neverdies," as they are called by other Holiness people, believe in immortality not only of the soul, but also of the body. The soul returns to earth in a series of reincarnations, they say, until the believer succeeds in living the perfect life. At that point, his body can live forever.

There are probably hundreds of mountain people living in West Virginia and surrounding states who are members of the rather loosely-knit "Neverdie" Church. Occasionally names such as "Everlasting Gospel Tabernacle" or "Church of the Living" are painted in whitewash over the door, but more often the meeting spot is identified by the names of an individual, usually a key overseer.

Members are reminded that Enoch, first of the "Neverdies," was "translated that he should not see death," and often discuss what they call the "adoption" of the body by God.

A dominant theme which serves as the backbone of "Neverdie" law is that man has the capability of eternal life on earth. If he "doesn't make the mark" and dies, they say, his spirit returns in a new body at some future date. These cycles continue until the individual has succeeded in living the pure life.

"Even natural history says the word repeats itself," said Rev. Holstine. "If that's true, the scriptures teach that man goes in and out and what was first shall be last and what was last shall be first."

The "Neverdie" Church provides a curious link between the Christianity of fundamentalist mountain people and the religions of the East.

Like the Buddhist and the Hindu, the "Neverdie" believes the spirit returns to earth in a series of reincarnations.

The "Church of the Living" is the product of the great Kentucky revival of 1800 to 1803 which rekindled the fundamentalistic, sectarian and experiential zeal of European religious dissent.

The belief in bodily immortality, an extreme threat in the fabric of the Pentecostal Church, distinguishes the "Neverdie" from other Holiness people.

Members of the "Church of the Living" in Chandler Hollow say one of the first persons to teach the belief was Ted Oiler, a massive 67-year-old ex-coal miner who still travels a preaching circuit through West Virginia, Virginia and North Carolina.

Rudiments of "Neverdie" law can be traced to a mysterious lay preacher from Belleville, Ohio, named Levi Dowling, who wrote the "Aquarian Gospel."

Rev. Holstine agrees that the teachings of the Appalachian "Neverdie" church are unconventional and generally disbelieved by outsiders, but adds that if necessary he will be back on earth again to see that it all comes true.

OSU budget cut, Gilligan rapped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio State University President Harold L. Enarson Wednesday announced school budget cutbacks of 5.5 to 8 per cent.

At the same time, he renewed his criticism of Gov. John Gilligan's subsidy proposals for higher education contained in the budget for the next biennium.

Terming the cutbacks "severe," Enarson said "the level of subsidy support being recommended to the Ohio General Assembly by the governor is inadequate to sustain current commitments."

To preserve the Bif Cypress

Over the past few years there has been much well publicized talk about saving the Everglades. Everyone is aware of that unique Florida region. The general public knows far less about the related Big Cypress area. Yet this watershed is a primary source of the water which is the Everglades' lifeblood.

Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida said this about it the other day as he introduced a bill for federal acquisition of the Big Cypress to establish the Everglades-Big Cypress Recreational Area: "As a source of fresh water and essential nutrient supply to the estuaries of Everglades National Park and the Ten Thousand Island, Big Cypress Watershed is the key to survival of the far-reaching recreational and commercial shrimping and fishing enterprises that depend upon those estuaries."

Sen. Chiles, who joins with Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington in offering this administration-supported bill, set forth a catalogue of reasons why we should preserve the Big Cypress. They are good reasons, ranging from conservation of diverse animal and plant life to maintenance of the aquifer "from which rapidly growing neighboring communities will draw much of their fresh water." At one point he told the Senate, "I feel that if the Big Cypress is permitted to remain in its state as a natural watershed, it can remain the key to effective water preservation in neighboring areas throughout southwest Florida."

This and related considerations argue strongly for enactment of the Chiles-Jackson bill. Since the region's ecology already is under pressure, action ought to be taken with the least possible delay.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

The legacy of Frank Shakespeare

At the farewell party which the Buckley brothers, Sen. Jim and Editor Bill, staged in his honor at the New York Yacht Club in New York City, Frank Shakespeare, the retiring director of the U. S. Information Agency, used a quaintly old-fashioned phrase to help define his four-year-long mission as chief PR man for his country. He was, he said, speaking for a nation that was part of the Judeo-Christian tradition.

I don't doubt for a minute that Frank Shakespeare did a good job in projecting his values. But could the American public be sure of this from what it is allowed to hear of what we do to cultivate a Judeo-Christian image abroad? What the USIA does to inform the citizens of other countries about the U. S. is pretty much of a secret.

As a matter of curiosity I'd like to know how the USIA explains certain things to other Judeo-Christian nations. How, for example, would a Nixon USIA director account for our university world to the foreigner when only 27 per cent of the students give U. S. business (which, after all, is the fairly munificent employer of 70 million people) a favorable rating? How laugh off the fact that the Princeton faculty, which was overwhelmingly for George McGovern, actually gave Richard Nixon fewer votes than went to radic-lib Shirley Chisholm and Communist Gus Hall?

AND HOW, for that matter, could even the nimblest USIA director reconcile our high-level diplomacy with the protection of the Judeo-Christian tradition? Nixon is trying to construct a world that will be ruled by a troika — the U. S., Soviet Russia, and Red China — that is hardly reflective of any unified cultural values. If the troika holds together for four years Nixon will be the luckiest President in U. S. history.

A USIA director presumably must do the best he can by talking of the troika's common interest in peace for the moment. The value of our recent turn in diplomacy is immediate: Nixon has seized on the Moscow - Peking rift to wangle a fairly honorable exodus from Southeast Asia. Rather than fight it out for total control of Indochina when the state of affairs along the Siberian border is more pressing, Moscow and Peking are showing some willingness to settle for a precarious two-nation solution for Vietnam. But this is surely short-term stuff.

When Prince Metternich, who is Henry Kissinger's diplomatic idol, put together the peace of Vienna back in 1814-15, he engaged a number of like-minded cultures to hold revolutionary movements in permanent check. The "concert of Europe" that avoided unlimited warfare for a full century was a balance-of-power affair that depended on Judeo-Christian values that were held in common by all the European monarchies and even the emerging European republics. The balance broke down in 1914 in which was, essentially, a civil war inside the Judeo-Christian tradition.

IN A BRILLIANT book called "Eyewitness to History: Memoirs and Reflections of a Foreign Correspondent for Half a Century," Isaac Don Levine shows the impossibility of basing any long-term peace on a troika cooperation between the U. S., the Soviet Union, and Red China. Levine, who speaks fluent Russian, spent 25 days in Hong Kong interviewing 594 Russians who had been expelled from the Chinese inner-Asia border province of Sinkiang. This was in the mid-Sixties, but Levine is still convinced by what he heard then that the Soviets mean to have Sinkiang for its uranium deposits. This, of course, would be over the dead bodies of Red Chinese.

Mr. Levine does not condemn Richard Nixon for contriving on exodus from Vietnam. However, he is against any long-term policy of trying to conciliate the two rivals in the Sino-Soviet conflict "as a means of insuring a lasting peace." What we need, says Mr. Levine, is a policy that would "allow the feud between China and Russia to run its course and develop of its own momentum."

In short, let the Marxist culture have its own civil war. And let the nations that are part of the Judeo-Christian tradition band together for safety while the collectivist tigers rend each other. The USIA can't make this its official line for obvious reasons connected with Vietnam, but it still can go on cultivating Frank Shakespeare's Judeo-Christian values.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Liberals in the doldrums

WASHINGTON — "What's the matter with you, Roche? Why aren't you in there fighting?"

That question from an old friend started me thinking about whether in fact I had lost my fighting spirit, but the more I talked with others of my generation and convictions, the more I become convinced that liberalism in our sense is currently in the doldrums.

In the 1950s we were out there day and night attacking the inertia of the Eisenhower Administration, but then we were suffused with the inner knowledge that we spoke for the real majority, that Ike was just a passing phenomenon, a military hero who had turned up to salvage the G.O.P. for eight years.

But after Sen. George McGovern conducted the political version of Custer's Last Stand last November, what precisely can you say when, for example, the Civil Rights Commission attacks President Nixon for not providing leadership in black-white relations? The commission is absolutely correct; I agree with every word it said, but the stark fact is that Mr. Nixon did not carry 49 states on a program of improving black-white relationships. Not that he is a "racist," but he simply does not accept the role of the Federal Government in the liberal definition.

OR TAKE AMNESTY. Several years ago I argued here in support of the amnesty proposal of Rep. Ed Koch of New York, which provides for return and alternative service. It is a decent solution to a tragic and messy business, one that avoids assessment of motives and related subjective quagmires. I still think it is an excellent proposal, but the President put it down ferociously as "a junket in the Peace Corps.".

Why did this arouse so little moral objection? Because McGovern, damn it, stepped on every patriotic toe in the nation when, in effect, he suggested that those who ducked the draft were candidates for beautification. It will, I fear, take several years before we can approach this problem with humane rationality.

What this adds up to is a thoroughly pessimistic assessment of the mood of the American electorate, one that requires a thorough re-evaluation of liberal strategy. First, we have to accept the harsh reality that we do not constitute the real majority. Neither do ideological conservatives; the real majority has adopted the politics of inertia, which is essentially a rejection of all ideology.

Second, we have to put the wagons in a circle, at least for the time being, and conduct a defensive strategy. "Activism" — as I have noted here before — is now a dirty word. I remain committed to federal activism, and I'm convinced that after the American people have lived a while with the Nixon Doctrine of the "withering away of the state," they will begin to yearn for the good old days.

Wait, for example, until they discover what a joke revenue-sharing is (already Georgia's Democratic Gov. Jimmy Carter, an alleged conservative, has called it a "cruel hoax"). The voters jumped with joy when it was formulated because they anticipated a decline in real property taxes. I hope they are not standing on one foot waiting for taxes to drop.

FINALLY in political terms American liberals just don't have a horse. A lot of organizations exist to explore issues — the Coalition for a Democratic Majority, Americans for Democratic Action, Common Cause, etc. — but in politics you can only go so far on issues alone. You have to have a candidate and it is hardly necessary to note that viable liberal Presidential possibilities are in short supply.

In short, friends, the fighting spirit is still there, but it is tempered by a hard-headed unwillingness to fight on President Nixon's hand-picked battlefields. I am no masochist: I hope never again to witness such a spectacle as the President's mop-up of liberal Democrats on the issue of the Vietnamese War. Let's pick our own issues and see if we can bring him out to fight on our turf.

Get set for bow ties

The cyclical nature of fashion is so well documented that it scarcely needs mention. Revival of things past in a central theme in wearing apparel styles for both men and women. Thus it comes as no great surprise that the bow tie is being touted as the hot thing for fall.

Men of a certain age, as the French saying so delicately puts it, will break out in nostalgia at thought of a bow tie revival. Many of them will recall times, too many years ago, when they bedazzled the multitudes with butterflies of the lastest pattern-polkadots, maybe, or a snappy stripe. They'll have their chance to try it again as local stores begin to stock what's hot at the Men Fashion Association showings in Chicago.

Hal Boyle . . . Remarks for after age 39

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks any man gets tired of hearing on any of his birthdays after the age of 39:

"So you're a year older. Well, that happens even to nice guys. Cheer up."

"Did you ever stop to think that after 35 every birthday makes it that much more unlikely that you will ever be a success in life?"

"Please accept my congratulations. I'm too cheap to buy you a get-well card."

"It makes me think of when you first came to work here. You used to have a boyish grin then. What happened to it?"

"So, you're a year older. Well, hurrah, hullaballoo, and hello to Aunt Mabel."

"I suppose this makes you think about retirement plans. I don't know what you have in mind but — as a hedge against inflation — I just bought my wife and me a cemetery plot. It's kind of nice to know that when you've got to go at least you've got a place to go to where the climate ain't too bad."

"Now that you're a year older, don't you think you ought to start trying to make sense? You can't do it any younger."

"I knew you wouldn't want to eat at home on your birthday — no human being does. So, I reserved us a table at — oh, shut up, Henry, it isn't all that expensive, and anyway, you only have a birthday once a year — now and then."

"Fortunately, you're one of those people who can wear wrinkles fairly gracefully."

"Ha, Ha! That's good for a laugh. But now let's get down to the truth. How old are you really?"

"Don't let it get you down. There's a fair chance you'll survive to see another one."

"So, you're a year older. Do you ever get the feeling you're living on borrowed time?"

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

How to get rid of a lazy 'elephant'

DEAR ABBY: How can parents get rid of a fat, 20-year-old daughter who refuses to look for a job? She says that we gave birth to her for reasons of our own, so we can keep her for the rest of her life.

Eating, sleeping, reading, listening to the radio and doing volunteer work at the local animal shelter, and urging her little brother to hang himself, is all that she has done since graduating from high school 2½ years ago.

Her skill with animals has brought her many good job offers from veterinarians, but she says she refuses to work for money as long as her brother is alive, as she fiercely resents not being an only child.

The police say they cannot help us because she is neither a criminal nor a lunatic. Two doctors have told us they cannot help us because they can't find anything "wrong" with her. So where do we go from here? We aren't millionaires, and we're fed up with . . .

FEEDING AN ELEPHANT

DEAR FEEDING: Go to another doctor! This time find a competent psychiatrist. You certainly have enough clues to conclude that the girl has serious emotional problems. She desperately needs help in getting her head together. And the cost will be "peanuts" compared with feeding an elephant.

DEAR ABBY: I am in the Marine Corps, station in Nam Phong, Thailand. There is no female personnel on this base at night. It is very hot and we live in huts. I prefer to remain in the nude when we return from showering because it is much cooler. This seems to annoy one guy in the hut. Do I have a problem? Or has he?

NUDE IN NAM PHONG

DEAR NUDE: If HE has one, why are YOU writing?

DEAR ABBY: Can you get VD from kissing somebody? If you can, maybe I've had it for a year and have already given it to three people.

I didn't even know about this disease until six months ago, and the kid I think might have given it to me moved out of town a year ago.

I am so worried. I am only 15, and I'm not a slut or anything like that. Please don't tell me to talk to my parents. They would never understand. Also our family doctor is a good friend of theirs, so I can't go to him.

I have to know right away, Abby, as my grades are falling off because I'm worried instead of studying. Thank you, and hurry your answer, please.

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: The chances of contracting VD from kissing are very very slim, but if you have gone in for heavy petting, you could be in trouble. Call your Department of Public health. Tell them I suggested that you call, and ask for a physical examination to ease your mind. You do not need your parents' consent, and if you need treatment, you'll receive it on a confidential (and free) basis. Please do this today, and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: How long should a couple wait to get married following a divorce? I have been divorced for three years, but the man I am going to marry has been divorced only a few months. We have known each other for a very long time and are both over forty. I am not talking about the time it is considered "legal" to get married again, I mean how long should we wait to avoid gossip?

FLORIDIAN

DEAR FLORIDIAN: Go ahead and marry the man and don't worry about gossip. After all, a divorce isn't the same as a death. There is no "mourning" period when one loses a mate in the divorce court.

This apple cake comes from Vienna

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

This Viennese Apple Cake was adapted from a recipe given to us by an octogenarian. The last we heard, she was still making it! The dessert is both handsome and delicious. Because it takes some careful doing, it's worth serving to guests.

VIENNESE APPLE CAKE

Applesauce, see recipe below
2 cups sifted flour
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup (two ¼-pound sticks) butter
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons chopped (medium-fine) blanched almonds

Prepare applesauce well in advance of making pastry to allow time for chilling; to speed chilling, place in freezer.

In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour, sugar and salt. Slice in butter and then cut in with pastry blender until particles are fine. Mix in egg yolk. Work pastry with fingers until it holds together. If pastry is very soft, chill in freezer about 5 minutes or in refrigerator for about 20 minutes.

Shape pastry into a 5-inch long roll. Cut into 2 pieces, one 3½ inches long, the other 1½ inches long. Cut smaller half into 6 pieces and chill.

Place remaining pastry (the 3½ inch roll) on a large cookie sheet; with a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll to a 12 by 6 inch rectangle. Push sides up with a spatula or fingers to form a ¼ inch edge. Sprinkle pastry with almonds, gently pressing them down. Spread with 1¼ cups chilled applesauce.

Remove small pieces of pastry from refrigerator, 2 at a time. Roll each with hands into ¼ inch thick ropes on a floured pastry cloth. Use pastry ropes to form diamond - shape lattice over applesauce, cutting them into lengths needed. Begin the lattice about 1½ inches from one corner and place each succeeding rope of pastry parallel to last rope and about 1½ inches from it. Crisscross with a second row of ropes.

Form remaining pastry into ropes and place around edge of pastry to give it a finished built-up edge.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until pastry is golden brown — about 30 to 35 minutes. During first 10 to 20 minutes of baking, check to see if the sides of pastry are spreading. If so, push them back into position with the flat side of a wide metal spatula. Cool before cutting, but while still warm slide from pan, with the help of the wide spatula, onto a serving platter or board.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

APPLESAUCE

1½ pounds cooking apples, about seven 2½-inch apples
2 tablespoons water
½ cup sugar
¼ cup apricot jam
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon

Wash apples but do not peel or core. Quarter and cut off blossom ends. Place in a saucepan; add water. Cover and cook over medium-low heat until apples are soft — 20 minutes; stir often to prevent scorching. Turn apples through a food mill into a saucepan. (There should be 1½ to 2 cups.) Add sugar, apricot jam, lemon juice and cinnamon. Cook over low heat, stirring often, until applesauce is very thick — 15 to 20 minutes. Chill. Makes about 1½ cups. Use the 1¼ cups called for in Viennese Apple Cake recipe and remaining small portion some other way.

Mrs. Allen Sells entertained the Queen Esther Class of the First Christian Church in her home. Mrs. Elizabeth Jones and Mrs. Leora Graham were the assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Mabel Whitemer, president, conducted the meeting and devotions were read by Mrs. Graham. Her topic was from Corinthians 1:13.

Calendars made by Mrs. Blanche Pursell were given to nine members. Reports were made by Mrs. Wilma VanWay and Mrs. Pursell.

Two donations were made by the class, one to the church building fund and the other to missions fund. Cards for the ill and shut-ins were signed.

Refreshments were served during the social hour.

Mushrooms are delicious on their own, as a garnish

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

For centuries man has sought out the mysterious fungus called the mushroom to garnish the meat, fish or fowl gracing his table.

But today the mushroom has become more than a mere delicacy to dress up a steak or help stuff a chicken. Chefs recognize it as a delectable food in its own right, and nutritionists say the fungus contains plenty of minerals, a fair amount of vegetable proteins and essential vitamins.

Scientists estimate that there are about 38,000 varieties of mushrooms lurking in shaded nooks in various parts of the world and that more than 700 of them have proven edible.

Only one type of mushroom is cultivated commercially in the United States, an adaptation of the common field variety. But wild mushrooms like the cepe and morel are imported canned or in dried form from France and sold in our fancier food stores.

The mushroom goes back to ancient times. The Romans prized it so highly that they designed a set of cooking utensils expressly for the fungus.

The little unbrella-shaped plants were regarded as a delicacy by the Chaldeans of Biblical times. The Chinese, Indians and Japanese gathered them from the woods and fields for their cookpots.

When I stayed with friends in southern England some years ago, my host and his wife used to prowl through the woods at daybreak and bring back a basket of mushrooms which they served grilled on toast for breakfast.

Hunting for mushrooms is pleasant but perilous unless you are well acquainted with the lethal varieties like the bell-shaped Death Cup which grows over much of America and packs a poison that has about the same effect as the venom of a rattlesnake.

Unless you are an expert, it is best to buy your mushrooms from the marketplace. If you prefer the imports, most cooks find the dried cepes and morels preferable to the canned variety. They are cheaper to begin with and have more flavor. Unlike fresh mushrooms, the dried fungi can be cooked for long periods of time without coming to any harm.

I was a guest recently at the New York Plaza Club which is perched 50 floors above street level at the foot of Manhattan and provides a dazzling view of New York Harbor.

The chef at the club is obviously a mushroom buff and has an impressive array of recipes. One for creamed mushrooms in vol-au-vent, or feather-light pastry shells, particularly appealed to me. Here is the recipe.

1 ounce dried morels
3 ounces butter
2 ounces flour
6 ounces cream
½ ounce sherry wine
½ ounce white wine
½ ounce brandy
4 ounces chicken stock
½ ounce shallots
Paprika, salt, pepper to taste

Soak morels in cold water for 2½ hours. Prepare a roux with butter and flour, adding white wine, sherry and chicken stock and simmering 10 minutes. Separately saute shallots and morels, flame them with brandy and mix with the above sauce, adding salt, pepper and paprika. Pour mushrooms and sauce into pastry shells and serve. Makes four servings. Good with a dry white wine.

Class has guests

The Kings Daughters Class of First Christian Church met in the home of Mrs. Carl Meriweather, with Mrs. Carolyn Haggard as hostess. She also presented devotions for the 16 members and three guests, Mrs. Don Baker, Mrs. Mildred Whittington and Mrs. Twyla Myers.

Mrs. Naomi Helm presented the lesson study.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fullerton will be hostess for the March meeting.

Surprise party held for couple

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scaggs, Rt. 5, were honored at a dinner in the L & K Restaurant recently by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Neff. Later they went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Scaggs where other children and relatives had gathered for a surprise celebration in honor of the Walter Scaggs' 35th wedding anniversary. They have been residents of Fayette County for 28 years.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography, we are aware, nourishes creative ability in people in the process of taking pictures and making prints. It brings into play the art of seeing and evaluating light, composition, timing and cropping.

I've just learned of another new area in which photography plays a part in encouraging creative ability in people. The new art form, called "Personal Paintings," is a process where-by small color photos — usually portraits — can be converted into distinctive 16" x 20" oil paintings and the camera fan, or some member of the family, becomes a "Sunday painter."

The process, introduced by Craft Master of Toledo, Ohio, is a patented procedure which starts with color prints or transparencies. They are copied, color-corrected, enlarged and reproduced on 16 x 20 panel boards in black-and-white outlines containing tiny numbered areas. These act as painting guides and the numbers are duplicated on little containers of oil paints.

PHOTOS INTO PAINTINGS. A new process, "Personal Paintings," offers people a chance to become Sunday painters. Here, Mrs. Barbara Glick, Monsey, N.Y., studies a 16" x 20" coded outline and the color print of her daughter from which it was made. A completed painting of her father is in the background.

BY PAINTING IN the numbered areas with their matching oil paints and using the original color photo for reference, the result is a large impressive oil painting that is truly personal and creative.

It's simple to say the small color photo is converted into a large black-and-white painting guide. Actually the process is an example of photographic space-age technology in computerized optical magic. And no wonder, it was developed by Itek Corp. which also developed camera systems for the Apollo and Mars satellites and landing vehicles.

The "Personal Paintings" camera system was perfected after a three-year research and development study in joint co-operation with Craft Master, a division of General Mills. It utilizes a precision copy camera for 70mm film, a laser beam, a television-type scanner, three computers and an optical card reader.

IT ISN'T necessary to understand the precise technical details which produce the enlarged, coded, paint-by-number black-and-white duplicate of a color photo or transparency. It is important to know what kind of pictures are acceptable for this creative process.

Good, clear, sharp, head-and-shoulder color close-ups of people make the best subjects for painting. The better the picture, the better the result is likely to be. They can be snapshots or enlargements, wallet or jumbo prints, studio portraits, Polaroid prints or slides. Faces should be at least the size of a quarter but the bigger, the better. Backgrounds should be simple and nondistracting.

Not acceptable are faces that are fuzzy or too small — such as found in group shots or a full-length figure — and those with complicated backgrounds which merge with the face.

GOOD black-and-white portraits are acceptable if the sender has a favorite photo and doesn't mind painting it in shades of sepia. In some cases, the scanner can create its own set of color values by referring to sample photos which represent good color values.

A complete kit for about-to-be-artists consists of the color photo originally sent in; a 16 x 20 coded outline of the subject mounted on stiff board; a book of instructions for this painting technique; an assortment of about 48 small containers of oil paints, each numbered; a practice panel and paint brushes.

A KIT is returned about four weeks after a satisfactory photo (and the cost of $19.95) is received. An average person should spend between 10 to 20 hours to complete the painting. And until he tries, one never knows what hidden talent is waiting to be uncovered.

Ohio Perspective

House secretary has parking woe

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The new executive secretary of the Ohio House —commander of its 134 employes — has the same workaday problem facing a lot of big city mayors—parking.

He has to fit the automobiles of 99 House members into 70-odd spaces in the House parking lot alongside the statehouse.

"It's a real headache," said 38-year-old John "Jack" McCarthy, who used to represent Youngstown's 81st House district.

McCarthy succeeded to the $21,000-a-year job with the 110th General Assembly, in which the House is dominated by the Democrats.

McCarthy doesn't have to worry about parking for his employes, but he does have to answer complaints from House members about the staff. Even Republican secretary help comes under his authority.

But, House members must share their 70-odd parking spaces in the lot with four cars each from the offices of the attorney general, treasurer and auditor.

Although the problem hasn't been solved, McCarthy hopes it can be east by reminding the Underground Parking Commission that it is required by law to save spaces for legislators. The parking complex is located under the statehouse.

At least one problem has been virtually whipped. Most of the task of moving — because Democrats took control of the House for the first time since 1959 — is completed.

"The physical moving was a real pain," said McCarthy. "Getting typewriters and everything to the right place across the hall has now been accomplished.

"Everybody seems to be settled down."

McCarthy must oversee the spending of a $5 million budget, which includes the payroll for House members and staff. Still, said McCarthy, it's the "little detail work that takes my time."

All printing and purchasing for House lawmakers come under McCarthy's office. Other officers, such as the clerk and sergeant-at-arms, work under his direction.

McCarthy spent two terms on the Youngstown City Council before going to the House for two two-year stints. He dropped out to seek a county office, but lost in a primary race.

McCarthy is a graduate of Rand High School. He attended Youngstown State University. He was a midwest sales manager for a fence company before taking over direction of the House staff.

He is married and father of six children ranging in age from 6 to 16. And, the parking problem extends over to his private life. He's looking for a place in Columbus to house them.

Mystery of lost Americans publicized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Inside the newspaper graced with the happy front-page headlines that more prisoners of war had been released was an advertisement.

"WHERE ARE OUR MIAS?" it asked.

The full-page ad is one of those being taken out in 150-200 newspapers across the nation by POW-MIA organizations. An MIA is one of 1,363 military men and 30-45 civilians listed by the organizations as missing in action in Indochina.

The ad pictures Lt. Ron Dodge, a Navy pilot shot down May 17, 1967. A photograph by a Dutch photographer showing Dodge being paraded through the streets of Hanoi appeared in Paris Match magazine in September 1967, the ad says.

Dodge's name did not appear on Hanoi's list of POWs held in North Vietnam, South Vietnam or Laos.

The Pentagon says there are 1,328 U.S. military men missing in action or unaccounted for in Indochina, while the State Department lists an additional 24 civilian MIAs.

Voices in Vital America (VIVA) best-known for its worldwide distribution of five million bracelets bearing the names of POWs and MIAs, says it is coordinating the ads. It calls on its bracelet-wearers and other Americans to protest the Communists' alleged failure to account for all Americans they captured.

It says one way to do this is to demand of Congress that not one penny be spent on rebuilding North Vietnam until all MIAs are accounted for.

VIVA is also asking all bracelet wearers to continue wearing them at least until all American POWs are released.

"We are urging people to continue wearing their bracelets to help alert others that the issue has not yet been resolved satisfactorily," said Mrs. Douglas Coppin, chairman of VIVA's National Advisory Board.

The MIA families are particularly disappointed about the accounting of POWs in Laos. Of 317 men carried as MIAs in Laos, only seven were listed by Hanoi as prisoners.

"We know with modern ejection methods there is a great chance of pilot and crew survival when a plane goes down. This figure of seven men is ludicrous," Mrs. Coppin said.

She said 56 men previously believed by the U.S. government to be POWs were not accounted for by Hanoi. She said another 11 MIAs were reported dead, while 46 MIAs were named on the POW list.

Falcon trainers stealing from zoos

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Some falcon trainers are stealing their birds from California zoos, says Frank Todd, corporate curator at Sea World Marine Park.

"They are a bunch of cutthroat thieves and bandits. They have taken wild falcons illegally and have stolen falcons from the San Diego Zoo and the Los Angeles Zoo, and they steal from each other."

The discovery of ancient wine lists demonstrates that early imbibers graded the grapes according to their relative quality, say editors of Time-Life's "The Emergence of Man" series.

Food additives really hidden time-bombs?

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the food and chemical industry lobbies for softening the law prohibiting cancer-causing substances in food, Congress is divided with some members hoping to make it even more rigid.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., plans to propose again legislation to extend the Delaney Clause to require pre-market testing of most additives to make sure they don't cause birth defects or genetic mutations.

Food and Drug Commissioner Charles C. Edwards says the FDA must be "neutral, and I mean neutral" on Delaney, but he has called publicly for months for a privately funded international symposium drawing together the world's best scientific brains to wrestle with the question.

The Nutrition Foundation and the Food and Drug Law Institute, both industry-oriented and supported, have joined with Consumers Union in gathering pledges to support such a conference later this year.

The plan is to attempt to draft a mathematical formula proving that "safe" amounts of a known carcinogen can be added to food without causing cancer in man.

But leading scientists, including many employed by the government, say such carcinogens can be hidden time bombs that result in cancer 10, 20 or 30 years after exposure.

"In providing a framework for evaluating potential hazards of these additives, the Delaney Clause simply ratifies the prevailing expert opinion in the National Cancer Institute and in other professionally qualified groups that there is no practical method to determine safe dietary levels for a carcinogen," says Dr. Samuel S. Epstein of Case Western Reserve University.

The likely effect of Nelson's bill will be to stall, at least temporarily, industry efforts to modify the current law.

So it will be questions revolving around cancer, the nation's No. 2 health menace, which will bring Delaney to a head.

The Delaney Clause, which bars cancer-causing additives from foods, is very narrow in scope. It applies to fewer than 3,000 additives for which FDA has issued regulations.

It cannot touch the roughly 600 ingredients generally recognized as safe, which themselves are under review for safety, nor the category of prior-sanctioned ingredients approved by either the Agriculture Department or FDA before 1958.

The others could be banned, however, as "poisonous or deleterious" by the FDA under long-standing but unwieldy legal authority.

The chemical industry says the average American consumes about five pounds of synthetic additives a year, and the sales volume of food chemicals is expected to grow from $485 million in 1970 to $750 million by 1980.

Food chemicals are used as stabilizers, preservatives, disinfectants, antioxidants, extenders, tenderizers, emulsifiers, growth promoters, bleaches, sweeteners, colors and flavors, to the advantage of either the processor or the consumer.

"Most additives are purely cosmetic. Many involve outright deceit," contends Ralph Nader's Health Research Group in a 28-page booklet distributed recently to congressmen. The message is that Delaney should not be changed.

Opponents of Delaney contend the law prevents the exercise of scientific judgment, should scientists develop the ability to determine a safe or no-effect level of carcinogens in food.

Laurence Wood, president of the Food and Drug Law Institute, said some supporting research is expected to be performed at FDA's National Center for Toxicological Research, a former military facility at Pine Bluff, Ark.

There, government scientists hope to devise tests using thousands upon thousands of animals to determine at what level a carcinogen does not cause cancer in animals.

But before that happens, FDA officials say, a theoretical formula must be worked out to prove it is feasible.

Until a satisfactory solution is found, Commissioner Edwards said, he finds himself in accord with consumer activists.

"At this point in time you could say there is not enough evidence to suggest Delaney should be changed either way," he said.

Concern has been expressed that bans on artificial sweeteners and livestock-growth hormones might affect public health adversely by pricing protein off the table of poor people and boosting consumption of carbohydrates.

Scientists' ability to dream up new tests to detect carcinogens in food has far exceeded their ability to interpret the results, Edwards said.

"If only scientists could say, 'Yes, by God, this is it.' But they can't.

"The total scientific community has got to weigh all the issues involved and help us come up with some kind of a rational judgment on the whole subject of risk-to-benefit, although that's a little crass," he said.

Flip Wilson plans to be married soon

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — "It's supposed to be a big secret," said Rosylin "Roz" Taylor in confirming a report she and comedian Flip Wilson probably will marry.

Miss Taylor, 26, made the comment Tuesday after being contacted by a reporter "How did you know?" she asked when reached at the home of her parents here. "No wedding is planned immediately. We probably will be getting married in six months. I guess that's soon enough," she said.

Romania turns to Dracula in move to draw tourists

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Writer

BUCHAREST (AP) — Feel like a blood-curdling holiday? The Romanians are planning to put on a show in the dungeons of Dracula's castles and make you shriek with terror.

It is this Communist country's latest idea for earning dollars and bolstering the economy.

"American tourists would like to be terrified," said the pleasant, smiling official of the Romanian Tourist Ministry. "They like going to the movies to be frightened by Dracula, so they would enjoy it even more in the castles."

Strangely enough the project comes just when Romanian historians are making a big effort to prove that Dracula, or Vlad Tepes, was not really such a bad guy after all. They say Vlad, who ruled the southern Romanian principality of Walachia between 1455 and 1477, did a lot for Romanian unity by fighting Turkish invaders, and they insist the popular story of the vampire who fed on the blood of his victims is all stuff and nonsense.

But hard currency is hard currency. So the romanians will tell tourists the truth about Dracula but will also make capital out of the legend.

DRACULA'S DEN — Romania plans to capitalize on the interest in the Dracula legend by putting on sound and light shows in his castles. This one, at Tirgoviste, is partly in ruins but is being restored.

NOBODY will suck your blood in Dracula's castles, but they will do their best to suck your dollars.

Foreign tourists visiting Romania are increasing by 400,000 per year totaling an estimated three million in 1972. More than two million of them come from the Communist countries. But about 20,000 Americans come each year and the Romanians hope to push this up to 50,000 in 1973.

Tourism accounts for about 4 per cent of Romani's hard currency earnings. Tourist officials reckon that if Dracula gets into the act he'll push the percentage up.

Two of his castles, at Poenari and Tirgoviste, are partly in ruins but are being restored. The Romanians plan to use them as settings for sound and light shows, which have become popular tourist features in Europe's historic buildings ranging from St. Paul's Cathedral in London to the Colosseum in Rome.

WITH LIGHTS flashing and amplified screams and groans assailing you from loudspeakers, you will be able to persuade yourself that Dracula has you in his clutches.

If he really did, it wouldn't be very pleasant. He may not have been a vampire but he was a tough customer. He was called Vlad Tepes, or Vlad the Impaler, from his habit of sticking people on pikes and hoisting them aloft.

"He was cruel, but only to those who deserved it," said the man at the Tourist Ministry. "He punished thieves, and rich people who plundered the poor."

Vlad Tepes is reputed to have killed 10,000 in a night on one occasion. So there must have been an awful lot of thieves and rich people in 15th century Romania.

It was the Romanian people themselves who gave him the name Dracula, or Devil. But German writers of the 19th century first presented him as a vampire, paving the way for a best-selling novel by the Irish writer Bram Stoker.

A VAMPIRE? Well, he was certainly not squeamish. There is a story that he was wounded in battle and immobilized by loss of blood, so he steeled himself to drink the blood of warriors who were dying around him and regained his strength. A kind of self-operated blood transfusion, in fact.

One Romanian historian who has done a lot to sift the truth from the Dracula legend is Professor Andrei Florescu, who now lectures in the United States. Other historians at home in Romania are busy researching into his life and times. Rehabilitating Dracula is a favorite pastime among Romanian intellectuals right now.

But for the tourist industry the image of Dracula will be preserved as a monster — impaler, vampire and all.

Dope raid staged

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Three persons were arrested Tuesday night and charged with possession of marijuana following a raid on a house ten miles northwest of Oak Harbor, near the Lucas-Ottawa county line.

Report claims alcoholism biologically inherited trait

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Five American and Danish psychiatrists say a study of adopted children who became alcoholics as adults suggests a tendency that the disease may be biologically inherited.

They studied 55 Danish men who had been separated from their biological parents during early infancy, and one parent had been diagnosed as alcoholic.

These were compared with 78 other adopted men whose biological parents had no known history of alcoholism.

The study found that "significantly more" of the first group had a history of drinking problems and psychiatric treatment.

And the offspring of alcoholics also had a divorce rate three times that of the second group.

The study was outlined in the February issue of the Archives of General Psychiatry, published by the American Medical Association.

It was was done by Drs. Donald W. Goodwin and Samuel B. Guze of Washington University, St. Louis; Fini Schulsinger and Leif Hermansen of Kommunehospitalet, Copenhagen; and George Winokur of the University of Iowa.

They attempted to separate biological from environmental factors in the development of alcoholism.

The American researchers collaborated with the Danes because Denmark is a closely knit society with centralized national records of adoptions, psychiatric hospitalizations and criminal activities.

The men studied had an average age of 30, ranging in age from 23 to 45. All had been adopted before they were six weeks old.

Ten of the 55 offspring of an alcoholic parent were found to be alcoholic, compared with four of the 78 whose parents were not alcoholic.

Twenty-two of the first group had received psychiatric treatment, including nine alcoholics, while 19 of the control group had such treatment and two were alcoholic.

Twenty-seven of the offspring of alcoholics were divorced, while nine of the others were divorced.

Europe's largest collection of American Indian artifacts is in West Germany. The costumes, weapons and implements have been displayed since 1928 in a museum at Radebul dedicated to German author Karl May. who wrote his frontier novels before ever visiting the United States.

Radicals, rock on the wane

Campus 'ins' .. and 'outs'

By BILL WINTER
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Monster movies, conservative speakers and classical or blues music apparently are "in" on college campuses this year. Radicals and rock are on the wane.

Such is the message being generated by the National Entertainment Conference, a noisy four-day gathering of agents and collegians to arrange bookings for talent on campus.

Students and campus talent coordinators from throughout the nation are here. Some are working with budgets of more than $290,000 a year, others with as little as $4,000.

Agents report a brisk business in the talent market, and they add that a couple of significant trends are showing.

First, they say, the blues or even the classics are more likely to be heard than "hard rock" when collegians gather these days.

Secondly, radical speakers are out on campus, at least, and conservatives are in.

"It goes along with the mood of the country, a general lifting of the spirit of things," said one agent.

There's a "monster booth" where collegians can arrange for campus viewings of vintage horror films.

And there is an agent ready to sign a contract to bring a full three-ring circus to campus.

"There seems to be a swing toward cultural things," said Lucy Lapage of Royce Carlton, Inc., a New York firm.

"More campuses are looking to speakers and artists to stay around for gatherings and personal contacts after their presentations," she says.

Eugene Remels, representing United Films, distributor of horror movies and film classics, says collegians are "turned on to a nostalgia thing.

"In the past few years, nostalgia has gone big in all areas," he said, leafing through a promotional brochure entitled "Fifty Years of Devils, Demons and Monsters."

"One of our popular items is the original series of 12 Sherlock Holmes films, with Basil Rathbone," he said.

TITANIC TIRE — World's largest tires, standing nearly 12-feet high and weighing almost four tons are used by this open-pit-mining dump truck. The tires are made by Goodyear at the Topeka, Kas., plant. The truck, which scales 200 tons, uses six of the mammoth tires.

Man's divorce of dying wife granted; welfare sought

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — "It's final, but I still love her," said Howard Thomas after he divorced his wife of 32 years so the critically ill woman could get welfare benefits to pay her mounting medical bills.

His 45-year-old wife, Ruth, lay in a nursing home unaware of the 10-minute divorce hearing Tuesday dissolving a marriage which had given the couple six children.

She is in the advanced stages of incurable multiple sclerosis.

"I was shook, and the judge was shook, too," said Thomas, a 49-year-old steelworker. "He knew it was something that had to be done.... Just like me, he wished he didn't have to do it."

After Circuit Court Judge C. Richard Leavengood granted the decree, Thomas applied in his wife's behalf for the state welfare assistance needed to insure continued medical treatment.

Jack Youngblood of the Florida Division of Family Services said Tuesday night the application would be processed with "due haste." The divison administers the state-supported medicaid program.

Leavengood gave Thomas custody of his two youngest children, ages 5 and 11. The others are adults.

"We're behind our father 100 per cent," said daughter Brenda Pivinski. "If my mother were aware of the situation, I know she would understand."

Last November, state officials said they had made a mistake in granting Thomas medicaid benefits to help pay for his wife's costs at a nursing home—he earned $79 more than the maximum to qualify.

The $117 monthly payment he had been receiving for 17 months was halted, but the $500 monthly nursing home cost continued.

It was then that Thomas said he decided to sue for divorce, explaining then, "I'm at the end of my rope . . ."

Lukens sets up candidacy test

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, attempted to file as a Republican candidate for governor today but Secretary of State Ted W. Brown refused to accept his petitions.

"I return your petitions because you are on Butler County's delinquent list for not filing your expenses on time as prescribed by law," Brown said.

Brown, also a Republican, returned to Lukens a $50 filing fee and a batch of petitions bearing 4,000 signatures from 82 counties.

Glynis Johns admitted to New York hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — British actress Glynis Johns has been admitted to a New York hospital, forcing postponement of a Broadway opening.

Her press agent said Miss Johns complained of a "great pain" at her Manhattan apartment Tuesday morning.

Your Income Tax

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q) Can I designate $1 of my tax to go to a particular presidential candidate?

(A) No. However, if you wish, $1 of your tax ($2 if you are married and filing a joint return) may be paid over to presidential candidates of a specific political party. Just check the box on IRS Form 4875 (in your tax forms package), fill in the name of the party, and attach this form to your tax return.

Instead of designating $1 of your tax for a particular party, you can designate it for a non-partisan general account for all eligible candidates. Just check the box provided.

(Q) Are scholarships taxable?

(A) No. in general, if you receive a scholarship or fellowship grant, you may exclude all or part of that amount from your gross income, depending upon whether or not you are a degree candidate. If you are a degree candidate, there is no limitation on the amount that may be excluded from your income. However, if you are not a degree candidate, the amount you receive as a scholarship or fellowship may be excluded up to $300 times the number of months for which you receive amounts under the grant during the tax year.

A scholarship that is compensation for past or future services or primarily for the grantor's benefit, is not excluded from gross income.

For more information, see IRS Publication 520, "Tax Information for American Scholars in the U.S. and Abroad." A free copy can be obtained by dropping a postcard to your Internal Revenue district office.

(Q) I installed a new water heater in my home last year. Can I deduct the cost on my tax return?

(A) No, but you may add the cost of this item to the basis of your property, so that it will be taken into account in the event that you sell your home.

(Q) Are gambling losses deductible?

(A) If you itemize, you may deduct your gambling losses incurred during the year, but only to the extent of your winnings. Gambling winnings must be reported as income.

Catholic churches in U.S. near bankruptcy?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—After making it big with a book about Vatican finances, Nino Lo Bello decided to try it again with an expose of riches of the U.S. Roman Catholic Church. But he ran into an unexpected problem.

"I discovered the Church is in tough financial shape in this country," he says. "It's really hurting."

Lo Bello, 51, an easygoing, mustachioed American financial writer, now based in Vienna, Austria, says he spent nine months, traveling 40,000 miles in the United States, checking Catholic Church finances in 250 cities and all 50 states.

"I ended up debunking my own idea," he says. "I started out to clobber the Church about its wealth, but you have to let the chips fall where they may, and I ended up clobbering myself."

He began the project after his 1969 book, "The Vatican Empire," became a hot seller, with more than 70,000 copies in hard cover, a half million in paperback. He planned a sequel doing a similar job on the American Church.

"Like a lot of other Catholics, I assumed that the Church was rich and I set out to try to expose it with my own research, but ended up proving what the Church has been telling us — it's losing money," he said in an interview.

Lo Bello's new book, issued by Trident Press, plays on his previous title, using the name, "Vatican U.S.A.," but he said "the publisher was a little disappointed" that it doesn't show the Church as fat and opulent.

"I had to present the truth," he said. "The Church is really in tough shape. I found diocese after diocese on the brink of bankruptcy — largely because the parochial schools are draining off income."

He noted that what gives the American religious organizations their image of wealth is all their real estate, such as church buildings, schools, hospitals, homes for the aged and orphanages.

"It looks like wealth to the eye, but it's not producing any real income," he said. "What it does produce, the parochial schools and other institutions eat it up, and they're still having a hard time."

He said he previously assumed that the U.S. Church was raking in big money from sidelines business, but found this also was a fallacy. Some religious orders conduct businesses to support theselves, he said, but generally are taxed the same as commercial enterprises.

However, regular regional organizations of the Church, the dioceses, depend almost entirely on Sunday collections from members, he said.

"That Sunday plate is what keeps the Church going," he added.

Lo Bello estimates the holdings of the U.S. Catholic Church at $80 billion with annual income of $12.5 billion, but he says the money goes to operate 18,000 parishes, 785 hospitals, 420 homes and orphanages, supporting extensive foreign missions and running 13,000 schools.

He said the Vatican, whose holdings he estimates at $30 billion and income at $2 billion annually, could help the American Church, and several American archbishops have sent out feelers to Rome about it, with negative results.

"The Vatican is rich and getting richer, while the American Church is poor and getting poorer," he said.

Ohio wine enthusiast sues to block 'inferior' drinks

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Cincinnati wine enthusiast, who says he wants to protect the drink's integrity, has filed suit to block the sales of five New York wine firms in Ohio, because, he contends, they are not true wine.

Paul R. Moran, an attorney and member of the Greyton H. Taylor Wine Museum of Hammondsport, N.Y., included the makers of such well-known labels of Great Western, Wild Irish Rose and Bacchus.

He said he filed the suit as an individual wine hobbyist and home vintner.

Moran alleged the firms do not comply with Ohio law, which says that wines must be 75 per cent pure grape juice.

Named as defendants were the Taylor Wine Co., Inc.; Pleasant Valley Wine Co. and Gold Seal Wine Co., of Hammondsport, N.Y.; Widmer Wine Cellars Inc., of Naples, and Canandaigua Industries Co. Inc., of Canandaigua, N.Y.

The Pleasant Valley Co., a subsidiary of Taylor Wine, markets its wines under the Great Western label and the Canandaigua firm sells under the Wild Irish Rose and Bacchus labels, the suit said.

The firms sell more than a million gallons annually in Ohio.

Moran charged the products "contain up to 53 per cent water and or sugar" and up to 25 per cent California, Algerian or Spanish wine, although labeled New York State wine.

The Hamilton County Common Pleas Court suit asked that Moran be paid $1 for each gallon sold in the past year or that sold in future and that all wine found to be in violation of Ohio law "be determined a public nuisance and ordered seized and destroyed."

POWs get look at pay records

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Besides family and friends, returning Vietnam POWs might also have a "sizeable chunk" of back pay awaiting them when they get home.

An officer at Wright-Patterson Air Force base said Wednesday some of the former prisoners of war have "salted away as much as $100,000" in back compensation.

"Depending on how thrifty they were and the size of their families, the men could have a sizeable chunk of money," said Lt. Col. Nick Apple, base information officer.

The five freed men undergoing reorientation at the Dayton base spent most of Wednesday checking their personnel and financial records, receiving medical examinations and intelligence debriefings.

One of the men, Capt. Edward J. Mechenbier, 30, of Dayton, reportedly received dental care and was fitted for eye glasses.

Mechenbier and Maj. Donald L. Heiliger, 36, of Madison, Wis., arrived early Wednesday aboard a C-9 medical transport.

Three others, Col. Ronald E. Byrne Jr., 43, of Peru, Ind.; Lt. Col. Robert B. Purcell, 42, of Louisville, Ky., and Capt. Burton W. Campbell, 32, of Lorain, arrived at the base last week.

During their captivity, ranging from six to seven and one-half years, they were eligible for regular pay, subsistence allowances, combat pay plus $5 for each day as a POW.

Some of the POWs also set aside some of their pay as savings in a special armed services account that provided ten per cent interest, Apple said.

POW wives received allotments throughout their husbands' captivity, he said.

Apple said special financial reports had been prepared for each man, and each has been given a small, sliding, cardboard pay rule to tabulate his accumulated earnings.

No information would be given out concerning the financial standings of the POWs, he said.

"If we did, it would be an open invitation to someone to sell them insurance, stocks and land in Florida. Our job is to protect them from that."

At a news conference Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Heuliger, parents of the Wisconsin major, said their son "is a bit thin, but looks fine." They said they were surprised at his good health and appearance.

All five returned prisoners were flying jet fighters when they were shot down.

Data about prison camp life bared by POW talks

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Bit by bit, a picture of prison camp life is beginning to emerge from conversations with returning POWs from Southeast Asia.

In a conversation with an old Navy buddy, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Bradley Edsel Smith gave additional insight into his years of captivity, a topic still reluctantly discussed publically by most of the repatriated Americans.

Smith, whose father, Paul, lives in Lake Milton, Ohio, said he slept on a concrete slab without even a cloth under him.

"He said he could lie down on the floor here and go right to sleep just as well as I could on a bed," said Cmdr. Nicholas D. Langston, who was on the same mission when Smith was shot down March 25, 1966.

The two had a reunion in Jacksonville Naval Hospital, where Smith is one of six returned POWs going through medical and military processing and Langston is confined with two broken legs from a low level ejection last month.

Langston said Smith "looks in better health now than when he was shot down." He attributed that to the fact that Smith "didn't do any smoking or drinking for seven years."

Langston said Smith also attributed the Vietnam peace agreement, in part, to renewed U.S. air bombing of the north.

"He mentioned that the B-52 bombings last year rattled the ground in his prison throughout the night, Langston quoted Smith. "He said that, if anything, brought the North Vietnamese to their knees."

Recalling the mission on which Smith went down, Langston said: "Brad's bombs didn't drop—some kind of malfunction. On the way back he picked a target of opportunity, a bridge, and peeled off to try to drop his bombs. We rendezvoused over the sea, and Brad didn't show. I looked for him 20 minutes and didn't see him."

"Now I found out he ejected pretty low and went down in the river. He said some guys in little black suits came out to get him. One ugly man with scars all over his face pointed a weapon directly at him and he thought it was all over. But, they took him in the boat," Langston said.

His mother lives in Miami, Fla.

Lukens, Rhodes seek court rule

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court Friday will have before it a second case from a would-be gubernatorial candidate which seeks to have his rejection by Secretary of State Ted Brown declared unconstitutional.

The latest suit is by State Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, whose gubernatorial petitions were rejected by Brown Wednesday.

In an anticipated gesture, Brown refused Lukens' petitions and $50 filing fee on grounds the Butler County Board of Elections ruled the candidate was delinquent in filing his personal expense account for his 1972 state senate campaign.

Ohio law says candidates who do not file within 45 days after election cannot seek public office for five years.

Lukens' attempt to submit the petitions was a prelude to his intentions to force a court decision in the case, alongside a similar court action pending on behalf of former Gov. James Rhodes.

Gubernatorial petitions submitted by Rhodes were also rejected by Brown, but for a different reason.

Brown contended there is still a constitutional question about whether a governor who has served two, four-year terms, is eligible for a third term.

Ohio law says a governor may not serve more than two consecutive terms, but is unclear whether this means two terms, period.

Both suits challenge Brown on the grounds that his action deprives two qualified candidates from seeking public office.

Sources close to Lukens said he will also seek a writ to force Brown to accept his petitions, bearing 4,000 signatures from 82 counties, and will file a similar suit in U.S. District Court here.

Tax preparers face charges on false returns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pair of federal income tax preparers accused by the Internal Revenue Service of filing false returns were free on their own recognizance today, awaiting court appearances.

Pearl E. Brown of Springfield and Fred G. Myers of Columbus went before U.S. magistrates in Dayton and Columbus Wednesday following their arrest by IRS agents on charges of false return preparation.

Mrs. Brown was charged with 12 counts and Myers with 13.

Paul A. Schuster, IRS district director for Southern Ohio in Cincinnati, said Mrs. Brown, 46, is a registered public accountant who works in a Springfield office, and Myers, 55, was listed as an income tax preparer.

OU seminar hears woman Army general

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — The armed services aren't waiting around for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to take steps to eradicate discrimination against women, the Army's highest ranking woman said Wednesday.

Brig. Gen. Mildred Bailey told an Ohio University audience the military is responding to pressure from women and governmental groups to change some of its practices she considers discriminatory.

Included in these practices she said are age requirements, benefits after marriage, and base housing facilities.

In the past six months, Gen. Bailey said the number of military occupational specialties open to women has jumped to 90 per cent of total non-combat occupations. Six weeks ago an Army regulation was changed to permit a woman officer to command any non-combat unit, she said.

But, Gen. Bailey said the armed forces would react "very violently" if ordered to fill a certain percentage of its positions with women.

"Setting quotas would be considered unfair," she said. "If an officer is given a responsibility to carry out, he should also be given the proper tools."

Gen. Bailey said the Army would make a decision within the next month on whether to expand Army ROTC programs for women nationally. Ten schools started the program in the fall.

Gen. Bailey spoke at part of a week-long seminar at OU on the changing role of women in the U.S. today.

Seek identity of 'lost' boy in Brown County

By BILL VALE
Associated Press Writer

GEORGETOWN, Ohio (AP) — A 14-year-old boy, who says he left home because he was in his parents way, has been in the Brown County Jail since Feb. 16 and authorities don't know what to do with him.

"I don't know," said Brown County Juvenile Probation officer Marvin Case, "some boys get lost, but this one—he really is lost."

The boy, who insists "My name is Tony Peterson," was picked up hitchhiking by the Ohio Highway Patrol after getting off a Greyhound bus from Bluefield, W.Va.

He escaped officers twice before they finally handcuffed him. The boy said his family lives in Tampa, Fla. and that they formerly lived in Roanoak, Va. But he doesn't know anything about either city and police in neither city could find any record of him, Case said.

"He's sharp as a tack and clams up when you try to pin him down. He's shown too, that he has some knowledge of law enforcement procedures.

"He keeps telling us to let him go, he'll find his own way home. We thought about buying him a bus ticket but I don't guess we'll do that."

The boy had no luggage but "he was dressed pretty well." He wears a horizontally-striped maroon and yellow sweater, maroon pants with gray material below the knee, brown leather boots and a green-gray corduroy coat.

He is slightly built, five feet tall, 95 pounds. His hair is dark and slightly curley, blue eyes that flutter and flash when he is questioned and slightly freckled fair skin.

"He seems like a good boy," said Case. "He is well mannered. We've put out information on him all over but we haven't had one call.

"If he would tell us the truth, we could clear this whole thing up right now."

Sheriff Charles Ernst admits the situation is "aggravating." But what makes it worse, the rural farm county has no facility for juveniles. The boy, until Wednesday, was kept in a jail cell with two juvenile offenders under sentence to an institution in Columbus.

"It's not right to have them in the jail," Ernst said.

The boy told police he boarded a bus at Tampa, Fla. and rode to Bluefield, W.Va. where he boarded another for Georgetown, Ohio, after making friends wiith another passenger, Mrs. Gordon Kessler of nearby Sardinia, Ohio.

"He doesn't seem homesick," said Case. "He never mentions his family . . . just says he ran away, he felt like he was in the way—that his parents didn't want him.

"I have never seen anything like this...his parents have made no inquiries that we can find.

It's tragic, and its funny, to think we can't come up with something.

"I know boys can get lost, a lot of them do, this one really is lost," said Case.

Hoosiers study possible uses of tax rebates

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than $100 million in federal revenue sharing funds for state, county and municipal-level government in Indiana doesn't appear to be burning a hole in anyone's pocket.

Most of the counties and communities checked by Associated Press members in Indiana this week have not made a final decision on where their money is going to go.

The federal revenue sharing bill provides a five-year program and distributes $5.3 billion in the first year. Indiana's share is $104.3 million, with about $35 million for the state government and about $69.5 million to counties, cities, towns and townships.

Many of the communities are holding public meetings to find out what the people want to spend the money for. Some have a rough outline of the projects to be financed with the money, but few have made final decisions on them.

Await federal transit subsidy

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Approval of a federal grant remained the last hurdle today to public ownership of Cincinnati Transit Inc.

American Controlled Industries Inc., parent firm of CTI, Wednesday approved the sale of the company to Cincinnati for $6.8 million.

City council approved the agreement Jan. 31. Voters approved a .3 per cent earnings tax increase for the purchase at the November election.

The city is seeking $13.5 million from the U.S. Department of Mass Transit to purchase new buses, improve service and slash the 55-cent fare to 25-cents.

Soviet Ballet dancer unable to emigrate

MOSCOW (AP) — Ballet dancer Valery Panov has complained that he is being prevented from emigrating to Israel because of objections from his mother-in-law.

Panov was rated one of the Soviet Union's most gifted character dancers until his dismissal from the Kirov Ballet company last year for saying he wanted to live in Israel. His wife, who is not Jewish, was also expelled from the company for wishing to leave with her husband.

Twelve players named to star-studded cast

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Six seniors were named to the 1972-73 All-South Central Ohio League basketball team at the league's winter banquet which was held Wednesday night at Miami Trace High School.

The six member SCOL head coaches also placed five seniors and a sophomore on the All-SCOL second team, in addition to naming a 12-player honorable mention list.

Only one Fayette County cager landed a berth on the star-studded first team, while three were named to the second team.

MUFF JONES, Miami Trace's smooth forward, was picked on the first team. Jones, a lanky 6-foot-3 senior who was an honorable mention choice a year ago, was the fourth leading scorer in the SCOL this season and was one of the keys in Miami Trace's co-championship. Jones finished the regular season with a nifty 17.0 scoring average.

Washington C.H.., which finished second in the 45th SCOL championship race, dominated the second team selections as seniors Dick Witherspoon and Chuck Bath were named along with Pete Jones, of Miami Trace.

It was Jones' second straight selection to an All-SCOL second team while Bath was an honorable mention choice a year ago.

Don Jewett, Hillsboro's 6-foot-2 senior ace, was named honorary captain of the All-SCOL team, and Wilmington dominated the first team picks with two players winning honors. Tim Wilson, the muscular 6-foot-3 pivotman, and smooth-shooting Robert Raizk both garnered first team berths. Buddy Kennedy, of Greenfield, the SCOL's top pointmaker, and Circleville's Dave Truex rounded out the first team picks. Truex was a first team choice last season.

Also named to the second team were Dan Graham, Circleville, Larry Crabtree, Greenfield, and sophomore Kevin Bailey, Hillsboro.

CURTIS E. Fleisher, principal at Miami Trace, welcomed the guests, and the Rev. Gerald Wheat, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Washington C.H., delivered the invocation and benediction.

Paul Sarchet, principal at Circleville High School, introduced the guests and entertainment was provided the Miami Trace Folksingers under the direction of Mrs. Cinda Stinson. Presentation of trophies and awards were made by Sarchet and Fred Jones, principal at Washington Senior High School.

Ted Mullins, WBNS-TV (Channel 10) sports director, was the featured speaker. He was introduced by Gary Keller, principal at Wilmington High School. Mullins, who talked about humorous incidents he has encountered in broadcasting, and Keller were formerly neighbors in Columbus.

Unioto asked to join SCOL

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Sports Editor

The South Central Ohio League Board of Control Wednesday night unanimously agreed to extend an invitation to Unioto High School in Ross County for membership in the SCOL.

The SCOL principals are hoping to expand the league membership with the announcement recently that Madison Plains, the SCOL's seventh team, would drop its membership following the 1973-74 school year, its first year of competition.

A spokesman for the SCOL principals said the board of control is considering asking another school to join with Unioto which would increase the membership to eight teams for the second time in the league's 45-year history.

UNIOTO IS a Class A high school located off U.S. 35 about two miles west of Chillicothe. School officials pointed out that Unioto's enrollment this year is 189 students in the uper three grades and that it will become a Class AA school next year. Class A is assigned to schools on a figure from 0-189 and Class AA is 190-399. Unioto is currently a member of both the Ross County League and Scioto Valley Conference and has sports facilities like those found around the SCOL.

The principals said Chillicothe and London, which had shown interest in joining the SCOL, have withdrawn their applications for membership. London has dropped its membership in the Mid-Eight League and joined another.

Madison Plains, which will enter the SCOL at the beginning of the 1973 football season, dropped its membership when school officials there felt it could not compete with the league teams. The Madison Plains basketball team was 0-6 against SCOL teams this season.

It was announced at Wednesday night's SCOL winter banquet that Wilmington High School was the winner of the 1972-73 SCOL sportsmanship award. Washington C.H. was the first annual winner of the award which was devised by Bob Bane, athletic director at Washington C.H., and is judged by officials throughout the SCOL basketball season.

Gary Keller, principal at Wilmington High School who served as secretary-treasurer of the SCOL's Board of Control, announced upcoming dates for the SCOL teams at Wednesday's banquet.

He said the SCOL track meet will be held May 1-2 at Circleville. The SCOL golf meet will be staged at the Washington Country Club May 7 and the SCOL spring sports banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. May 15 at Circleville High School.

CHICAGO (AP) — Although defending champion Mike Robinson of Michigan State still holds a precarious lead, the battle for the Big Ten basketball scoring title could go right down to the wire.

Prep cage coaches split on burden of being No. 1

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coaches of The Associated Press three state high school basketball poll champions are split over the burden such an honor carries into post-season tournaments.

Charles Huggins of Class A king Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South says it's still there for the elimination games.

Don Eddins of Class AAA ruler Canton Lehman and Carroll Hawhee of Class AA champion Waverly contend the burden is much greater during the regular season.

The AP ratings are based on regular season games and are conducted by a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

"Truthly," said Huggins, whose team has won the last two polls, "yes, the pressure is still there."

Despite the buildup for his team, the Tuscarawas County power has extended the longest current victory streak to 44 games. Eighteen have come this winter.

"The pressure is not as much now. We had it during the last couple of weeks against McKinley for the city title and with our regular season streak of 30 games," said Eddins, whose squad was 18-0 this season.

"Now we can forget those things," he added. "When you are No. 1, the only thing to do is keep it."

Hawhee admitted, "No. 1 has a tendency to tighten you up some, but I don't think as much during the tournaments as the regular season. You get to midseason and you start thinking about the ratings."

In their opening tournament tests, Indian Valley South faces Guernsey Catholic Tuesday, Lehman goes against Canton Glenwood Wednesday and Waverly will play Portsmouth West or Minford Thursday, March 1.

Around Ohio: Greenwich South Central has its first unbeaten season and five of the first six are juniors. Hamilton Taft's five seniors have helped roll up a 53-9 record in three seasons.

Kevin Greer, a 6-foot guard at Leesburg Fairfield, hit 34 straight free throws in one stretch this season and made 16 of 22 floor shots in one game. Greer averages nearly 22 points.

"We were outhustled, outrebounded and outofficiated," said Springfield South Coach Wayne Wiseman after a 71-66 loss at Hamilton Garfield last week.

Waverly's league streak has hit 39 games in the Tigers' third straight Southeastern Ohio League championship season. Steve Sturgill, with 1,206 career points, only needs nine points for a school record.

Steve Watson, Lehman's 5-10 floor leader and scoring ace, has started all of the school's 30 straight regular season triumphs. Boardman's four-year hold on the Steel Valley Conference title was broken by Youngstown Ursuline.

Buddy Kennedy cops SCOL scoring crown

Buddy Kennedy, Greenfield McClain's sharpshooting guard, captured the 1972-73 South Central Ohio League basketball scoring championship, according to statistics released today.

The 5-foot-9 senior, who matched a Greenfield single game scoring record this year with a 38-point performance against Westfall, topped the SCOL scorers with a spiffy 21.0 average in 17 games.

Kennedy bucketed 357 points on the basis of 147 field goals and 63 free throws. He also was the top point producer in SCOL games with a 20.4 average on the basis of 184 points in nine games.

DON JEWETT, Hillsboro's slick-shooting senior, was next in line behind Kennedy with a 19.6 average in all games and an 18.6 mark against SCOL opponents.

Dave Truex, the hard-working Circleville forward, finished third in the SCOL point chase with 18.2 marksmanship. The 6-foot-0 senior canned 328 points this season to push his career total to 653 which was just 46 points short of a Circleville career scoring mark.

Muff Jones, Miami Trace's lanky senior cornerman, ranked fourth with a 17.0 mark, but finished eighth against SCOL foes. Robert Raizk, the Wilmington shotsmith with a shooting touch as soft as a lullaby, landed the fifth place spot and rangy Dan Graham, of Circleville, was sixth.

Miami Trace finished as the SCOL's most potent offensive team with a 71.9 point per game mark on the basis of 1,294 points and Circleville was the league's stingiest defensive team, yielding an average of only 56.5 points per outing.

New York Rangers turn back Kings, 4-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The day started with an earthquake for the New York Rangers and before it was over, they shook Los Angeles up themselves.

Down by 3-1 in the second period, the Rangers battled from behind to tie the score and then beat the Kings 4-3 on a goal in the final 10 seconds by Jean Ratelle.

Elsewhere in the NHL Wednesday night, Montreal trimmed Chicago 4-2, St. Louis took Minnesota 5-2, Toronto tied Atlanta 2-2 and Boston ripped California 6-2.

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH

To celebrate their Lunar New Year holidays, the Republic of China has issued a set of four stamps depicting various traditional folk practices. Each stamp is a beautiful illustration of a lively and colorful scene of old.

One adhesive features the game of "Kicking the Shuttle Cock." This event is not an athletic contest but rather a delicate set of moves in which the player kicks the small, feathered piece as he performs tricks and assumes postures.

"The Fisherman and the Oyster Fairy" appear on another stamp. This is a story of a fisherman trying to cast his net over a girl carrying an oyster shell on her back.

The third stamp pictures a circus-type routine of clowns on a boat. It is entitled "Rowing a Boat Overland."

The theme of the fourth is "Carrying a Young Lady on an Old Man's Back." It highlights an actor in exaggerated costume with false legs and head to portray both roles.

These are familiar scenes to celebrants of the Lunar New Year and the stamp reflects the enthusiasm of the occasion, according to the World Philatelic Agency.

All the stamps in this set are available at your local stamp dealer.

THE THIRD in a series of 12 medallions commemorating U. S. postal history is now available through the nation's first "Postique," established by the .U. S. Postal Service at Memphis.

The proof coin commemorating the 125th anniversary of U.S. postage stamps, struck in pure silver, features reproductions of the first stamps issued by the U. S. Post Office in 1847 on one side while the reverse side has a history of the stamps and their importance.

According to Memphis Postmaster James C. Curtis, this is a limited edition with each coin serially numbered.

The proof silver medallions are priced at $12 each, each nickel-silver specimen at $5 each and antiqued bronze at $3. A complete set costs $19.

All orders should be addressed to: Postique, United States Post Office, Memphis, Tenn. 38101. Send money orders, not personal checks or cash.

WOMEN'S LIB has had its effect on philately, too.

As a result of the absorption of women into men's stamp clubs, the Women's Philatelic Society of New York is disbanding after 40 years in existence.

According to Sophie Buser, cofounder of the women's stamp group, it was evident that the society had outlived its purpose. Failure to enroll new members and dwindling attendance at meetings prompted this action. Said Mrs. Buser: "The members may cherish with pride the memories of the society's accomplishments in fostering philately among women."

AS PREVIOUSLY mentioned in this column, the first U. S. stamp in 1973 honoring the bicentennial of the American Revolution signals the rise of the spirit of independence with a theme stressing communications in colonial times. It points to the roles of the printer and pamphleteer who helped united the colonists to a common cause.

The stamp features a group of five patriots. One is a printer pulling the bar of a hand press. The others are commenting on the pamphlet being printed.

The 8 center is the first of four such stamps to be issued this year on behalf of the bicentennial.

FOR FRIDAY, FEB. 23

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

You may run into snags or obstacles — but you can handle them well. Pep up an old idea, keep your vision broad. Think over past experiences — and profit by them.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Don't consider first thoughts only nor first impressions. You could be mistaken about motivations, indications, meanings. Give all the benefit of the doubt.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Mixed influences, mixed possibilities. How you react to opposition and unexpected obstacles will tell the tale. Literary and scientific matters especially favored.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Lunar influences auspicious. Tailor moves sagely to fit the occasion. If stresses rise, ease off sufficiently to think and judge more clearly.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Ask questions, but listen well to the answers and use care in interpreting relevant facts. You will encounter both high caliber motives and misleading ones.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Mercury influences extremely generous. A day in which to exercise your keen faculties and capitalize on your wealth of talents. Written matters especially favored.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Be careful not to mix friends and finances now. Arguments, mistrust on either side would be a distinct possibility. In other respects, day should go well.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Follow through on well-devised plans and procedures, and don't be sidetracked by nonessentials. Consider the suggestions of others, but tailor them to suit your own needs.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

A good day for trying new experiments as a means of furthering progress. Remember, it doesn't always pay to "play it safe" or "stay put."

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

If things aren't going quite as you'd like, seek a new and more productive approach. As with Sagittarius, experiment a bit, but don't go to extremes.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Be alert to spot flaws in your program, and initiate corrective action promptly. An unusual idea, put forward at the proper time, could prove profitable.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

You could be tempted now to turn from a winning to a more confused course. Consider the whole picture, and avoid the pitfalls of heedlessness and haste.

YOU BORN TODAY are a highly versatile individual, with certain characteristics almost alien to other Signs. A Piscean, governed by Neptune, you have an intense love of the sea and everything connected with it. Also, you are extremely perceptive, possessing almost a "sixth sense" which, coupled with your many talents, can be an invaluable factor in your success pattern. It tells you when to move, when to "stay put." Further, it gives you a more-than-ordinary interest in the occult, and many Pisceans are known for their clairvoyant powers. Your personality is a magnetic one and others follow you willingly. Thus, you have a great responsibility toward them. Will you lead UP or DOWN? Natural harbor now oil port

By ROBERT F.S. JONES
Associated Press Writer

MILFORD HAVEN, Wales (AP) — "It's diabolical, boys. That's what it is," complained Tegwen Hughes as he sipped his beer and gazed sadly out of the fly-specked windows of a waterside pub on to one of Europe's finest natural harbors.

Hughes has lived all his 80 years in Milford Haven, a little fishing town tucked carefully away in the southwest corner of Wales. The only new port to be built in Britain this century, it has nearly 70 miles of coastline either side of the estuary and a channel deep enough to take most of the world's largest ships. Since it was opened 12 years ago it's turned out a real moneymaker.

So why is Hughes so sad? "Dead — that's what it is," he said. "When I was young you could see nearly $50 trawlers bobbing about at the quayside and all the town was caught up in the fishing industry."

AS A natural harbor, Milford Haven has been known for centuries. Shakespeare in one of his plays asked how Wales "was made happy to inherit such a haven." Two years before the battle of Trafalgar in 1805 Nelson called it one of the two finest harbors in the world.

And 150 years ago King George IV scurried into Milford Haven for shelter when his ship was caught in a violent storm on its way home from a visit to Ireland.

He was greeted, a monument in the town center proudly proclaims, "with shouts of welcome from thousands of loyal and warm-hearted Welshmen."

They are still loyal — but not quite so warm-hearted these days. For although in the past ten years Milford Haven has quietly exploded into one of the world's largest terminals for the modern, giant oil tankers, the prosperity of a modern port somehow has passed them by.

THE 150 trawler fleet Hughes fondly remembered has shrunk to a dozen or so of the little boats. Where 5,000 men were employed one way or another in the fishing trade, only a handful — probably under 500 — are employed in the new port, and unemployment is running above the national average, despite government infusion of some light industries into the area.

The disgruntled townsfolk see one of the world's finest anchorages on their doorstep, and they can't share in its prosperity. Oil ports don't need an army of dockers, crane drivers and wharf operators. Neither do they need a flotilla of tugs. They don't employ thousands of local workers and don't bring invasions of free-spending seamen ashore.

All they need, apart from a handful of local workers, are oil company technicians to service the giant tankers as they slide gracefully and quietly to their berths, discharge their cargo through pipelines to the refineries ringing the jetties, then slide as quietly out again inside 36 hours.

IT'S BAD LUCK for Milford Haven, but the harsh fact is that as a modern port it just isn't viable. There is no hinterland to serve, no raw materials to attract industrial development. Apart from narrow country roads, the only communication with the industrial centers of Swansea and Cardiff is a rail line — single track for most of the way.

In 1958 the government decided to turn it into an oil tanker terminal. A special act of Parliament set up the port authority to run things, money was found — nearly $480,000,000 altogether — to dredge and widen the channel and improve facilities, and the government sat back and waited for customers.

They hadn't long to wait. Both BP and Esso (now Exxon) had had their eyes on Milford Haven for some time as a likely off-loading point for their tankers, and by 1960 the new port was in business.

TANKERS in those days were mouse-like things compared with the giants of today. When the port first opened, the largest tanker it handled was 65,000 tons deadweight. Twelve years later it had coped successfully with a leviathan of 250,000 deadweight tons.

In 1960 there were just the two terminals. Texaco followed in 1964, Gulf two years later, and Amoco last year, leaving only Shell of the major companies without a terminal.

Twelve years ago the port handled 8.4 million tons of oil. By last year this had grown to nearly 27 million tons. The channel has been deepened to take tankers of up to 280,000 deadweight tons. And that, says the port authority, should be deep enough to last the tanker trade for some years to come.

Flu: There Are Many Viruses

What is the London flu that everyone seems to be talking about?

How does it differ from other "flus"?

Mrs. L.T., Del.

Dear Mrs. T.:

There are distinct technical differences in viruses.

There are probably 300 or more various viruses that may affect and infect man. Many of these have been recognized and identified.

The viruses that cause polio, smallpox, chickenpox, mumps, measles, and influenza are responsible for a group of physical symtpoms that identify each disease.

However, the fine distinctions between the London flu, the Hong Kong flu and an ordinary grippe or common cold are not always easy to classify. Common to all of these might be the runny nose, the general feeling of aching, fever, congestion in the chest, sore throat, cough, and a tremendous sense of weakness.

The sudden outbreak of acute infections in London has pin-pointed attention to a viral infection which now bears its name. It would take the most complicated studies with electronic microscopes to distinguish one virus from another. The name is not nearly so important as the care that should be given early to people who are sick.

It must be remembered that when the first symptoms of a cold or flu appear, the virus has probably been incubating for three or four days. It is important, therefore, that when people feel "a cold is coming on," treatment should be started at that time.

Rest, fluids, modified diet are important. Rest is probably the most important part of the early treatment.

I never have been able to learn how to swallow a pill. I struggle so hard with it that sometimes I decide to forget about the pill.

Are there any tricks of the trade that you can let us in on?

Mr. J.R.E., Okla.

Dear Mr. E.:

I have watched patients strain, struggle and use all sorts of neck gyrations to swallow a small pill. These same people can swallow a piece of steak half an inch square without the slightest difficulty.

I just believe that most people work too energetically at doing a simple thing.

I came across an excellent suggestion made by Dr. William B. Robey of Phoenix, Arixona. He tells his patient to take sip of water and hold it in his mouth. Then, tilt the head back as though to gargle, and drop the pill on top of the water. Then he has him take another sip of water and swallow all of it.

Apparently, this old technique is an excellent one for problem pill-takers. Why don't you try it?

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead - king of hearts.

They say that truth is stranger than fiction, and here is a hand to bear it out. South was playing a pair championship and the bidding — surprisingly — went as shown.

East's pass of two hearts was astonishing, to say the least. He had the values for a raise to four hearts; all he had to do was assume that West had the normal complement of 10 or more points for his two-level response and on that basis bid game. Apparently East was unduly obsessed by his partner's pass as dealer and took an altogether too gloomy view of game prospects, but this was not good thinking on his part.

South should probably have let well enough alone, but being by nature a fierce competitor, he decided to fight the part score. Accordingly he bid two spades, intending this as a cuebid to invite partner to bid one of the minors.

But North didn't read partner's intentions that way, and he passed. As a result, South found himself struggling dispiritedly in a hopeless contract and the outcome was that he went down six for a loss of 600 points!

North-South naturally had some words to say to each other at the conclusion of the hand, as partners sometimes do, but eventually they made their peace when they discovered what had happened at the other tables where the hand was played.

At practically every table, with perfectly normal bidding, East-West had arrived at either four hearts or four spades, scoring 650 or 680 points. So the odd result was that North-South, who were minus 600 points due to their partnership misunderstanding, achieved a top score!

Equal rights amendment foes heard by solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio women who said they are content with their status showed up in droves Tuesday night to tell a House committee they don't want the federal women's Equal Rights Amendment.

An estimated 400 to 500 would be witnesses came as the State Government Committee heard the first opposition testimony on the proposal that bans discrimination on the basis of sex.

Only about 300 could get into the hearing room where a contingent about equal in size last week urged that Ohio ratify the amendment and become the 28th state to do so. The amendment requires approval of three-fourths, or 38, of the states.

Issues raised by the opponents were similar to those used in other states— namely that the amendment would destroy family life by encouraging mothers to work, mean that women could be drafted, and that both sexes would share toilet facilities.

Mrs. Nancy Rider of Dayton, who identified herself as a Mormon speaking on behalf of her church in Ohio, mentioned prisons.

She said men and women would have to share correctional facilities, among other public places, because the ERA "makes it illegal to separate the sexes." She said the 1964 Civil Rights Act and subsequent court decisions "make it clear" that separate but equal public facilities would be illegal.

Other witnesses included Mrs. J.J. Kling of Cincinnati, president of a group known as "Pro America." She called the ERA "radical" and asserted it would strike out "all laws that distinguish between men and women, no matter how beneficial." She said it represents a "threat" to all laws, federal and state, which were written for the protection of women and family life.

The House committee headed by Rep. Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, is alternating hearings between opponents and proponents on Tuesday nights. He said the committee probably will vote on the measure in early or mid-March.

The proposal still must go to the Senate, where it died last year.

The beautiful bird called the Fairy Tern is capable of carrying as many as 15 small fish or squid lined crosswise in its bill at one time. The fish are used to feed the young who will eat food up to one-half of its own weight daily.

New Holland PTO makes plans for cage banquet

NEW HOLLAND — Preliminary plans for the annual basketball banquet March 30 were made at the Parent-Teacher Organization meeting here. A program, including a speaker, will follow the potluck supper.

The details are being worked out by a committee composed of Mrs. Robert Dennis and Mrs. Gene Doyle, co-chairmen; Mrs. Frank Helsel, Mrs. Beatrice Salyers, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Mrs. James Landman and Mrs. Erroll Black.

The group also voted to serve the New Holland alumni banquet. Although the date was not set, committees were named: Mrs. Dennis, Mrs. Rodney Miller and Mrs. Harold H. Israel denounced for 100 deaths in air incident

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel was widely denounced today for shooting down a Libyan airliner in which more than 100 persons died.

President Nixon sent condolences to Libya and Egypt, a pointed rebuke to the Israelis. But a Lebanese newspaper charged him with hypocrisy, likening him to "a murderer who attends the funeral of his victims."

Israel said its fighters fired on the Boeing 727 Wednesday because the airliner's French pilot refused to heed orders to land after flying over Israeli military installations along the Suez Canal.

The death toll today apparently stood at 105. The Libyan airline said there were 112 persons aboard the plane, including nine crew members, and Israel said nine survivors were pulled from the wreckage. But two of the survivors—both women —died during the night.

The Israeli military command said 90 bodies had been recovered. The search for the rest was hampered by a sandstorm during the night.

The Libyan airline said five of the crew were French, two of the passengers were German and the others aboard were Libyans, Egyptians, Jordanians, Lebanese Palestinians and Sudanese. Two Frenchmen were among the survivors, the first officer and a steward.

The nonaligned group of countries at the United Nations in New York expressed "solidarity with the countries which have been the victims of the Israeli aggression" and called upon "the international community to put an end to the policy of Israel."

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim expressed "shock and condolences" to Libya and "regret and concern" to Israel.

The London Times charged the Israelis with "at the least a reckless act of killing of civilians and, as such, inexcusable even if, in contrast to the murders of which Israel has been the victim, it was not wholly premeditated."

The airliner was downed 12 hours after Israeli commandos raided Arab guerrilla bases at the northern end of Lebanon. Israel said the raiders killed 50 guerrillas, but Arab guerrilla sources put the death toll between 15 and 26.

Congress gets Nixon paper on economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon disclosed today that he will recommend a tax reform bill to Congress as well as recommendations to alleviate the property tax burden on older Americans.

In his State of the Union message to Congress on the economy, Nixon dispelled doubts that he would present tax reform legislation of his own, saying only that it would build on further reforms of 1969 and 1971.

It was the only reference to tax reform legislation in the message, and the administration gave no details. The House Ways and Means Committee is holding hearings on reform legislation to close so-called loopholes in the income tax code.

The President also said he will submit bills to improve the nation's unemployment compensation program, minimum wage laws, the private pension system, and "the manner in which we deal with our transportation systems."

On property tax relief, Nixon covered the subject in a one sentence statement, saying the recommendations would be designed to alleviate "the crushing burdens which property taxes now create for older Americans."

He repeated his appeal to Congress to impose a rigid spending ceiling of $269 billion in fiscal 1974, saying: "The stakes are high.

"If we do not restrain spending and if my recommended cuts are reversed, it would take a 15 per cent increase in income taxes to pay for the additional expenditures."

It was the first time that Nixon has used that figure in referring to the spending ceiling. He has said in the past that failure to keep a tight rein on spending would mean higher taxes, more inflation or a combination of both.

Nixon said he has carried out his pledge not to recommend any programs that would require a general tax increase or create inflationary pressures.

Liaison offices to be established

U.S., China closer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and China announced today they will establish official governmental liaison offices in Washington and Peking to speed up normalization of relations between two countries.

The development was announced in a joint communique issued in Washington and Peking.

Presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger said the offices will serve as the principal contact points on the expansion of trade "as well as all other matters except the strictly formal diplomatic aspects" of ties between the countries.

Kissinger said the liaison offices will have full diplomatic privileges but will in no way imply establishment of formal diplomatic relations.

Kissinger, who returned Tuesday from four days of extensive talks in Peking with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai, also disclosed that:

—Two American airmen held prisoner by China since being shot down over Chinese territory will be released in the next few weeks. They are Air Force Maj. Philip E. Smith, a prisoner since Sept. 20, 1965, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert J. Flynn, held since Aug. 21, 1967.

—The life sentence of John Thomas Downey, a Central Intelligence Agency employe held since the Korean War, will be reviewed in the last half of the year. Kissinger said he had been told Downey's sentence could be shortened for good behavior and that he was informed Downey's conduct as a prisoner had been exemplary.

—The United States has no immediate plans to withdraw its remaining military forces from the Chinese Nationalist island of Taiwan but the subject will be reviewed periodically, with decisions based principally on Washington's assessment of the danger of war in the area.

—Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Chinese Foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei will begin discussions in Paris next week on settlement of private American claims against China, totalling some $250 million, and some $78 million of blocked Chinese assets in the United States. The aim will be to resolve the issues quickly through negotiations.

Mexico now prime source of drug traffic into U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two congressmen say that narcotics traffickers, aided by widespread official corruption at all but the highest levels, have turned Mexico into one of the most important sources of illicit drugs entering the United States.

They quoted U.S. narcotics enforcement agents as describing Mexico as "a major producer, transshipment point and marketplace of drugs entering the United States. In relation to our drug problem, it is probably second only to France in significance."

Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., said that before Mexico's emergence as the key transit country for overseas heroin entering the United States, Argentina had been the center for Latin American narcotics smugglers. In recent years, he said, Argentine police have effectively cracked down on the French-Corsican rings that had operated out of Buenos Aires.

Steele and Rep. Morgan F. Murphy, D-Ill., said in an interview that Mexican President Luis Echeverria Alvarez and Pedro Ojeda Paullada, his attorney general, are "sincerely concerned, sincerely interested in providing cooperation" in halting drug trafficking through their country.

But after that level of commitment to stemming the narcotics trade, "there's a hell of a big drop," Steele said.

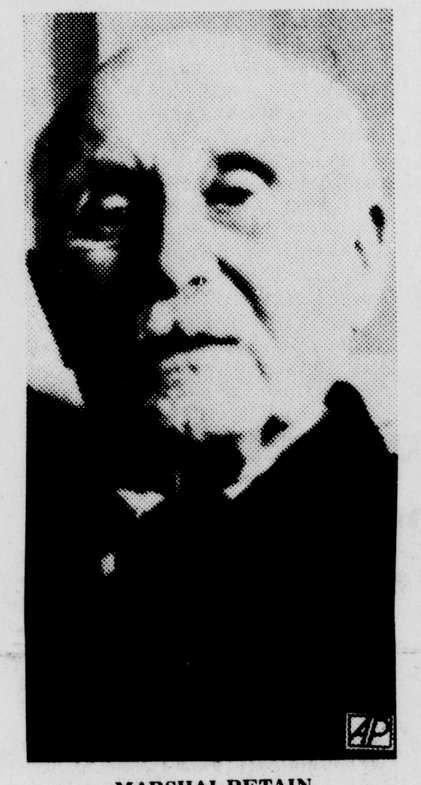

The congressmen said U.S. agents in Latin-America told them that "in a practical sense, corruption in Mexico is so imbedded that any solution to the narcotics problem would be difficult."

Still, Steele said, the Mexican attorney general conferred with U.S. officials last Thursday, then three days ago moved police and Army troops into the state of Sonora near San Luis, arrested 15 persons and confiscated 9.5 tons of marijuana and one kilogram (2.2 pounds) of heroin.

Murphy and Steele visited five Latin American countries early this year to study U.S. drug-control assistance for the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

They said U.S. agents told them that so-called brown heroin, produced from Mexican opium, has begun to appear in U.S. East Coast cities where U.S. efforts in the Middle East created a shortage of Turkish heroin.

Petain coffin back in tomb

MARSHAL PETAIN

PARIS (AP) — A military plane returned the flag-draped coffin of Marshal Philippe Petain to his traitor's tomb on a lonely island off the Atlantic Coast today even though it may cost the French government rightist votes in the National Assembly elections next month.

The coffin was found Wednesday night in a garage in a northern suburb of Paris. It had been left there by a group of rightists who stole it from the Ile d'Yeu Sunday, hoping to force the government to bury it in the national military cemetery at Douaumont with the other defenders in the World War I Battle of Verdun.

Police are holding at least six men suspected of complicity in the plot, including Herbert Massol, an ultra-rightist candidate for the assembly, and Francois Boux de Cassan, a minister of information in Petain's Vichy government.

Jacques Isorni, Petain's lawyer at his treason trial, accused President Georges Pompidou's government of getting the old marshal's remains back by duplicity. He said the government had intimated to Petainist circles that, when the coffin was found, "it would be placed in a location of honor while the family decided on the location of the grave. It was a deliberately false indication."

Although Petain was convicted of treason for his collaboration with the Nazis after the French surrender in World War II, the sizable rightist faction has for years demanded that his body be transferred from the island of exile where he died and that he lie among the men he led at Verdun. But a burial with honors for Petain would antagonize the many Frenchmen for whom the wounds of the Vichy era are still very much open.

In returning the body to the island, the Gaullist government probably chose the lesser evil.

Cost of living data released; food skyrockets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices took their biggest monthly leap in a generation last month, the Labor Department said today. But lower prices for clothing and used cars kept the overall rise in the cost of living to a relatively modest 0.3 per cent.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said overall food prices rose 2.1 per cent in January, the largest one-month increase since January 1951, when they rose 2.5 per cent.

The increase was even steeper for food purchased in grocery stores, which went up 2.5 per cent, the biggest monthly jump since the Labor Department began tabulating home food prices in 1952.

Because food prices usually go up this time of year, the increase in all food prices was 1.9 per cent when adjusted for seasonal variations. Still, this was the biggest seasonally adjusted monthly gain since March 1958, when they also rose 1.9 per cent.

Winthrop Rockefeller dies in California

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Winthrop Rockefeller, the former Arkansas governor and one of five children of multimillionaire John D. Rockefeller, died today at Desert Hospital, a family spokesman said. He was 60.

Rockefeller was admitted to the hospital a week ago with a chest ailment.

New Laotian truce widely violated

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops captured two towns in southern Laos today after the cease-fire began at noon and made heavy attacks on government positions south of the Plain of Jars, informed sources reported.

"There have been massive violations," said one source.

Laotian military sources gave guarded confirmation of the cease-fire violations and the size of the attacks.

Reports from the south said government troops were in full retreat toward the Mekong River from the town of Paksong. The reports said they evacuated the town at 12:15 p.m., 15 minutes after the cease-fire, in the face of heavy shelling and ground attacks by units of the North Vietnamese 8th Regiment.

Paksong, which has been captured and lost twice in recent weeks, is 30 miles east of Pakse, an important Mekong River town and the headquarters of the rightist political faction.

The sources said the North Vietnamese also drove government troops out of Muong Phalane, 36 miles northeast of Savannakhet, another important Mekong River town halfway between Vientiane and Pakse.

North Vietnamese units also were reported to have continued heavy attacks against Gen. Vang Pao's CIA-supported army of Meo tribesmen on the southern edge of the Plain of Jars.

U.S. air attacks on the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao stopped several hours before noon, and there was no expectation they would be resumed because of the reported Communist violations of the cease-fire. America's South Vietnamese allies in Saigon have charged the Communists there with thousands of ceasefire violations, but there has been no resumption of U.S. air raids.

The cease-fire began 25 hours after the signing in Vientiane of a peace accord between the Vientiane government headed by Prince Souvanna Phouma and the Pathet Lao, whose titular leader is Souvanna's half brother, Prince Souphanouvong. Souvanna was present, but Souphanouvong presumably was in Sam Neua, the Pathet Lao capital in northeast Laos.

The Vientiane regime and the Pathet Lao are to form a new coalition government made up of equal numbers from each faction and two additional neutralists. Prince Souvanna is expected to be one of these and to continue as premier. But there was no indication yet when the two factions would get down to forming the government.

Nor was anything being done about setting up the machinery for supervision of the ceasefire. The agreement delegates this to the International Control Commission made up of India, Canada and Poland which, since the 1954 Geneva Agreement on Indochina, has been prevented by Communist blocking tactics from doing anything.

Price of gold shatters marks on exchanges

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold hit record highs in Europe for the fourth straight day today jumping $3.63 at the opening in London to an alltime peak of $83 an ounce.

The price of the metal has now soared nearly $15 an ounce here since the U.S. currency was devalued just over a week ago. Normally the gold price changes only a few cents in a week.

Dealers said the main reason for the soaring gold price was continued uncertainty over the value of paper money.

The dollar was weaker in early trading on most European money markets, including London, Zurich, Frankfurt, Paris and Amsterdam, but it strengthened in Tokyo.

Band instruments stolen again

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Sing Out Middletown, a young people's musical group was robbed of $3,000 worth of musical instruments in November, 1971.

The instruments were replaced over the next 18 months by the members who conducted fund raising projects.

Tuesday, their new instruments were stolen from the Optimist Hall.

"We just got out of debt," said director Don Bowles.

"The kids accepted it, because it was not as shocking as the first time. There was not much reaction left."

He believed they were insured this time.

Thieu urges Hanoi allies to stop war material flow

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu called on the Soviet Union and China today to stop the flow of war materials to North Vietnam and prevent "the renewal of aggression from the Communists."

The South Vietnamese president also indicated that his previously announced meeting with President Nixon may be held next month at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif.

Thieu said now that the Soviet Union and China have agreed to join in the international peace conference on Vietnam, opening in Paris Monday, they should show "good will by not furnishing any more war material.... That is the best way to prevent the renewal of aggression.

"When Russia and Red China and other Communist countries will not furnish any more weapons to Hanoi and the National Liberation Front, they have nothing to fight with again. The war was waged by the Communists with the material from those Communist blocs."

Thieu told newsmen no date has been fixed for his visit to Nixon but "it is possible when everything is all right here and all right for President Nixon—maybe next month."

The president spoke to newsmen at Thu Duc, near Saigon, after addressing a rally of province officials, members of the general assembly and political party leaders.

Thieu said the Laotian ceasefire, which went into effect today, "should go together with the cease-fire in Vietnam, but "I have no confidence ... that the Viet Cong will respect the cease-fire anywhere."

He charged the Communists with violating the cease-fire in Vietnam more than 4,400 times, including 1,500 shelling attacks. Despite news reports to the contrary, he denied that South Vietnamese forces have violated the truce, claiming that they only reacted "when we are attacked."

Asked where the South Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives would meet to begin substantive negotiations on the future political shape of South Vietnam, Thieu replied: "We have proposed many places, Geneva or many countries in Southeast Asia, but they are very reluctant to select Geneva or any other country."

U.S. slashes naval power off Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has ordered two aircraft carriers home from Asian waters, the first significant cutback in U.S. air-sea power there since the Vietnam ceasefire.

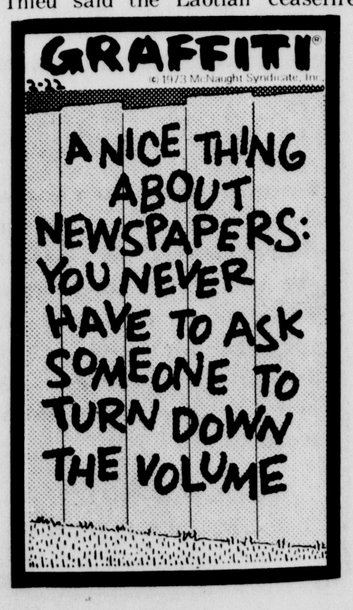

The Midway is due back at Alameda, Calif., in early March and the America at Norfolk, Va., late in March.

Departure of the carriers reduces the number of U.S. bombers and attack planes deployed near Indochina by approximately 100.

Four other carriers, with a total complement of about 200 strike planes, remain with the 7th Fleet in the Far East. But further reductions are expected in the fleet of nearly 60 U.S. fighting ships mustered off Vietnam nearly a year ago when President Nixon reopened the air and naval war against North Vjetnam.

Meanwhile, there is no word of anv imminent sacle-down of the more than 600 Air Force bombers and fighter-bombers stationed in Thailand and on Guam.

Although there is a cease-fire in Vietnam and Laos, Pentagon sources discount the possibility of any substantial pullout of U.S. Air Force planes from Southeast Asia before all U.S. war prisoners are home and the remaining American troops are out of South Vietnam in late March.

A chance of flurries, tonight and Friday. Lows tonight 15 to the low 20s. Highs Friday in the upper 20s and 30s.

Vietnam bonus question to be delayed until fall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An "unofficial" conference committee was asked to resolve legislative differences in Vietnam veterans' bonus proposals today, but the outlook for action in time for the issue to go on the May primary ballot was bleak at best.

Today is the deadline for completing legislative approval if the proposal is to be certified for the ballot. The hangup centered on a controversy over how to pay off the required $300 million in bonds.

It was a question of whether to do it with perennially unpopular new taxes, or to commit the state's general revenue fund to pay the bill in $24 million annual installments over the next 15 years. Most observers predicted the raises would be held up until the November election.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, announced Wednesday the appointment of the conference committee, an unusual move since the two chambers normally do not use that device until after both houses have voted on an issue.

The bonus passed the House, but was up for action today in the Senate, where majority Republicans have changed its financing provisions. They want the bonds retired with general fund revenue.

House Democrats insisted on a .6-mill property tax levy.

Gray said he was naming Sens. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo; Walter L. White, R-12 Lima, and Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Northfield, to the "unofficial" conference committee. In the House, Speaker A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, designated Speaker Pro Tem Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, and Majority Floor Leader Barney Quilter, D-47 Toledo, as conferees.

Lancione said he would leave the selection of the third House conferee up to Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg. But Kurfess said Wednesday night: "I don't even know what an unofficial conference committee is. No one has contacted me about it."

There were reports, meanwhile, that a delay might be agreed on to await the fate of a state lottery amendment which already has been placed on the May ballot.

Court's remap ruling studied by states

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Warren considered the "one-man, one-vote" rulings the most important in his 16 years as chief justice.

On Wednesday, its lineup changed, the Supreme Court signaled a readiness to cut back, as it has on the rights of criminal defendants and other Warren landmarks.

Approved by a 5-3 vote was an apportionment plan for the Virginia House of delegates in which the population spread from the smallest to the largest district is at least 16.4 per cent.

The author of the majority opinion was Justice William H. Rehnquist, the most dogmatic of the four conservatives named to the court by President Nixon. He said absolute equality could get in the way of the normal functioning of state and local governments.

Rehnquist and the principal dissenter, Justice William J. Brennan Jr., clashed over whether the court was breaking precedent.

Rehnquist insisted that even in 1964, when the court first applied "one-man, one-vote" to state legislatures, it permitted greater leeway than in drawing U.S. congressional districts.

Brennan, on the other hand, said the court had never applied two different constitutional standards and that any deviation from equality had to be justified.

Whatever, the decision is likely to serve as a clear signal to the states that they can apportion their legislatures without breaking up city and county lines so long as the mathematical deviation is not much larger than 16.4 per cent.

Rehnquist indicated, however, that going much further may not be permissible. He said the Virginia deviation "may well approach tolerable limits."

Rehnquist's majority opinion championed the policy of maintaining the integrity of political subdivisions. Evidently, other states would have similar success in the high court with that explanation.

Some lower federal and state courts could find the ruling puzzling. As Brennan pointed out, apportionment plans for Connecticut, Iowa, Texas, Louisiana, Illinois, Kansas and Alabama had been invalidated even though the deviations were much smaller than the 16.4 per cent in the Virginia plan.

The liberal justice said the Northern Virginia suburbs of Washington will be under-represented. Discrimination against voters in one area, he suggested, should concern the court more than county lines.

But the time Brennan and the justices who agreed with him, William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall, were in the minority.

A new majority had formed around Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White, who had reservations about the old "one-man, one-vote" decisions, and three Nixon appointees— Rehnquist, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun.

The fourth, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., did not participate, apparently because of past association with one of the lawyers in the case.

Board OKs variance for factory building

Two zoning code variances were granted Wednesday night at a meeting of the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals. The variances were approved on requests by the Marting Manufacturing Co. to permit the erection of a manufacturing building, and by Cliff Thompson to authorize the establishment of a telephone office in his home at 405 Newberry St.

The new manufacturing building is to be constructed on lot 161 of the Washington Improvement Co. Addition on Rose Avenue.

In granting the variance to Marting, the board cited a section of the zoning code which provides for the extension of a building or land use on border districts into a more restricted district but not more than 25 feet beyond the dividing line of the two districts.

The variance was granted with four conditions:

1. That the proposed manufacturing building not extend beyond 25 feet of the east property line of lot 161 of the Washington Improvement Co. Addition.

2. That absolutely no manufacturing or storage or raw materials, semi-finished or finished goods be permitted within 25 feet of the east property line of lot 162, and that the unused or unoccupied portion of lot 161 be adequately and properly maintained at all times.

3. That the city shall observe the effects on the traffic flow and parking and shall, if necessary, take action to assure the safety of the neighborhood.

4. That no openings, windows, doors, etc., be permitted in the west end of the proposed building facing lot 162 except for the required emergency openings.

The variance granted to Thompson contained the provisions that trucks and other vehicles required in his pest control business be parked in a locked garage as a safety precaution and that no storage of chemicals be permitted and that no signs be permitted.

The board accepted the resignation of Glenn Tatman from the board. He has been employed as the city's zoning inspector.

New hassle over Pentagon papers studied by judge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The government prosecutor in the Pentagon papers case is scheduled to announce today whether he will follow court orders and give the defendants documents their attorneys say are vital to their case or risk a threatened "sanction" by the judge.

Asst. U.S. Atty. David Nissen refused to turn over on Wednesday a Central Intelligence Agency agent's statement, but he said he would consult with U.S. Justice Department officials overnight and leave the decision to them.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne said that if the documents are not turned over he probably would forbid any evidence on one volume of the papers, a secret study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Such a ruling apparently would strike from the record the key government testimony of Gen. William Depuy, who testified about the volume in question. It also would eliminate at least one count of the indictment against Daniel Ellsberg, one of the two defendants.

It was the second time in a month the judge has tangled with Nissen over documents withheld by the government. In a previous ruling, Byrne eliminated one other volume of the papers and virtually eliminated an entire count of the 15-count indictment.

The documents the government refuses to surrender now are statements of CIA agent Samuel A. Adams, who says he has evidence that Depuy testified about "fabricated" statistics in the Pentagon papers regarding the Communist "order of battle" in Vietnam.

Depuy testified the figures quoted could have aided an enemy if released, but Adams says the figures are false, fabricated by the American military.

Ellsberg, 41, and Anthony Russo, 36, are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in connection with the leak of the Pentagon study to news media. The government has been seeking to prove such a release could have harmed the national defense.

Month-to-month foreign aid outlays being sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright has asked the Senate Appropriations Committee to limit emergency funding of the foreign-aid program to one month in the latest chapter of the Congress-White House battle over spending.

The Arkansas Democrat's request became known shortly after the House Wednesday unanimously ratified its Appropriations Committee's recommendation that the stop-gap funding be extended for four months for foreign aid and the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

Sources said the Senate panel is likely to honor Fulbright's request since he heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which has authority over foreign-affairs legislation.

The House-passed measure continued funds at the annual rate of $3.6 billion for foreign aid and $29.9 billion for Labor and HEW.

The stop-gap method was necessary for foreign aid because House-Senate conferees deadlocked last year over a Senate amendment requiring that future executive agreements with other nations be submitted for approval as treaties.

The procedure was adopted for Labor and HEW after President Nixon twice vetoed appropriations bills for those departments on grounds they were too big.

The House Appropriations Committee reportedly agreed to use continuing resolutions rather than force a renewed confrontation with the administration over health and welfare spending in the fiscal year ending June 30. Current authority in the two areas runs out at midnight next Wednesday.

But Fulbright's request, if heeded and accepted by the House, would force further action on foreign aid before the end of the current fiscal year.

In a related development, the Senate Wednesday voted 69 to 20 to revive low-interest loans for rural electrification and telephones terminated by Nixon last December.

The House Agriculture Committee opens hearings on the measure Monday with House passage reported certain.

Plane tot's mother held

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)— Betty Jean Anderson, 22, Garyville, La., was charged today with attempted murder of her newborn baby girl, found jammed in the toilet of a United Air Lines jet, the FBI said.

The FBI said the senior at Southern University in Baton Rouge was charged under a federal law making it a crime to attempt murder aboard an aircraft.

The FBI said she was taken before a U.S. magistrate and released on $5,000 personal bond.

The 5½-pound full-term baby, with umbilical cord attached and only a head and an arm visible, had been found in the toilet Monday night by United workers cleaning up in the aircraft after it landed in Youngstown on a flight from Pittsburgh.

She was reported in satisfactory condition at Warren General Hospital in nearby Warren after workers dismantled the commode to free her.

Explosion kills 5 in Pennsylvania

COOPERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Workmen installing a sewer may have disturbed a gas line, causing an explosion that leveled an apartment building, a gas company official reports. Five persons were killed and 22 injured.

Richard L. Bunn, vice president of United Gas Improvement Co., said gas company crews arrived at the site shortly after being notified by the workmen. Evacuation of the six-unit apartment building had started when the blast occurred Wednesday.

Two houses also were set afire and several other buildings were damaged by the blast, which scattered debris over an area of several blocks.

Loss estimate raised in Defiance blaze

DEFIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Damage caused by a fire in Session Hall, a men's dormitory at Defiance College, has been revised upward to $740,000. Officials said the old building suffered $689,000 damage and its contents $51,000.

The 83 freshmen housed in the structure lost nearly all of their personal belongings. There was one injury when a student hurt an ankle in a jump from a second floor window.

Lima State chief

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — The appointment of Dr. Paul Watkins to succeed Dr. T.J. Reshetylo as superintendent of Lima State Hospital was announced Wednesday by Mental Hygiene Department officials.

Watkins, 49, associate superintendent of Columbus State Hospital since 1967, has been employed in various state institutions since completing his medical training at Ohio State in 1951.

Gov. Wallace should retire, Alabama newsman says

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A Pulitzer Prize-winning newsman's statement that Gov. George C. Wallace is physically unable to govern Alabama has touched off a sometimes-angry controversy over Wallace's health.

An effort may be made in the legislature this summer to make the governor eligible for a pension while still in office. It could be a major issue in the 1974 governor's race, with Wallace likely to run for a third term.

Harold E. Martin, publisher-editor of The Montgomery Advertiser-Alabama Journal, said in a speech three weeks ago that the governor "is physically unable to serve" and, for his own good as well as the state's, he should retire.

"Or, short of that," he said, Wallace should appoint a select committee of businessmen "to share the burden of state government for the duration of his term."

Actually, Alabama has no law permitting a governor to retire from office; he would have to resign outright. Martin acknowledged that and recommended passage of legislation providing a lifetime pension at full salary for any governor disabled in service to the state.

Wallace has been paralyzed in both legs since he was wounded in an assassination attempt at Laurel, Md., last May 15 while campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Alabama citizens are crushed emotionally by the appearance of the once-vivacious Wallace in a wheelchair, suffering constant pain," the newspaper publisher said.

"But more and more Alabamians are facing up to the reality that the state can't continue without leadership...."

Wallace, who was in a Birmingham hospital recovering from surgery when Martin spoke Jan. 31, has had nothing to say about it publicly.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Another in a series of cold fronts was headed for Ohio today as one whisked across the state Wednesday bringing widespread but small amounts of precipitation.

"Generally quite light" was the way the National Weather Service reported the precipitation, and only the northern sections of Ohio had measureable snowfall. Additional snowfall of around two inches was recorded at the Cleveland Hopkins Airport and Youngstown and an inch at Toledo and Canton-Akron.

After high temperatures that occurred mainly during the morning, ranging from 32 at Youngstown to 40 along the Ohio River, readings dropped into the teens and low 20s early Thursday.

The new low pressure area and associated cold front was near Lake Winnipeg in Canada this morning and will be dropping rapidly southeastward and passing across Ohio late tonight or Friday.

Snow flurries Thursday morning will be of little consequence, the Weather Service said, but will increase in the northern portions of the state late this afternoon and tonight. High temperatures today are forecast in the 20s and low 30s and lows tonight in the teens and low 20s. Blustery winds appear likely through Friday.

A chance of rain or snow Sunday. Lows in the teens Saturday and highs in the upper 20s and 30s. Becoming warmer over the weekend. Highs in the 40s Monday and lows in the 20s.

Southwest hit by rain, heavy snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flooding, isolated heavy rains and some heavy snowfalls hit the Southwest today, but most of the nation had clear skies and chilly temperatures.

Warm rain falling over snowpacked areas brought flooding to the streets of cities in southern Arizona along with minor flooding of streams and washes.

A flood watch was posted for the central basin of Arizona and a heavy-snow warning for the mountains of New Mexico and southeastern Colorado.

Most of the precipitation is the Southwest was light. However, some heavy rains hit southwest Texas as well as southern Arizona.

Snow dusted areas around the Great Lakes and east through the Ohio Valley and northern and Central Appalachians to the Atlantic. Some areas had as much as an inch of snow.

Heavy-snow warnings were in effect for the central and southern part of West Virginia, and travelers advisories were issued for the mountains of Maryland.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 4 at Rawlins, Wyo., to 60 at Key West, Fla.

California recovers from quake

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Residents of the coastal city of Oxnard, hardest hit by a a rolling, rumbling earthquake, face the prospect today of repairing property damage without state aid.

The earthquake struck Southern California Wednesday, shattering windows, cracking plaster, toppling dishes and bottles from shelves and causing other property damage. Five persons were reported injured; two had broken legs.

Skyscrapers swayed in Los Angeles, but no damage was reported.

In the Oxnard-Camarillo area of southern Ventura County, 13 Southern California Edison power circuits were disrupted, cutting off electricity to at least 7,000 customers. Telephone service also was interrupted.

A rock slide blocked all lanes of the Pacific Coast Highway for more than an hour and a half.

Oxnard, a coastal city of 70,000 persons 60 miles northwest of Los Angeles, absorbed the heaviest damage.

A spokesman for city, county and state officials who toured the city said a preliminary survey indicated the loss could reach $1 million.

The quake jolted some 200 miles of the California coast from Santa Barbara to San Diego and was felt as far inland as the desert resort of Palm Springs, 65 miles east of Los Angeles.

Flip Wilson wins paternity case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Flip Wilson is not the father of a baby boy, as alleged by dancer Mabel Robinson, a Superior Court judge here has ruled.

Judge Harry L. Hupp ruled Wednesday against the woman who had contended that Wilson was the father of her 8½month-old son. The judge did not explain the reasons for his ruling other than to say it was based "on the evidence submitted to me."

On Tuesday, Royalin (Roz) Taylor said she and Wilson planned to marry in about six months. Wilson and Miss Taylor were in Redding to visit her parents.

Stocks still in downtrend

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices, which skidded lower Wednesday, continued the downtrend today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off about two points and declining issues had a small lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Traders knew before the market opened today that the international monetary situation was having double troubles again—gold bullion prices were soaring and the dollar was under renewed pressure in the foreign exchange markets.

Inflationary pressures were another bugaboo, with forecasts from the Nixon administration of rising food prices during much of 1973.

Market watchers took some consolation from the fact that Wednesday's losing session "was no real sell-off," as one analyst put it.

In the news background was the labor Department's report that consumer rate of 6 per cent in January compared with 2.4 per cent in December.

Active issues on the Big Board included Gulf Oil, up ⅝ to 25⅞. Gulf announced plans for a tender offer for 10 million shares at $26 a share.

Others on the active list were Chrysler, down ⅛ to 36; Curtiss-Wright, off ⅝ at 30, and Firestone, ¼ lower at 23¼.

In Wednesday's trading the downtrend involved so many issues that the Big Board's losing stocks numbered 985, compared with 450 gaining stocks. The Dow average dropped 9.25 points to 974.34, erasing most of the 10.46 points it had picked up in the two preceding sessions.

Turnover remained comparatively slow at 14.88 million shares, as a good many investors retreated from the action and waited for new developments.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — "You may not believe this, but I've been here five times before," said the Rev. Henry Holstine.

"I know that because one night I was studying this scripture so hard I went right out my natural thinking and God took hold of my arm and lifted me up.

"He opened up the earth, just like if you took a shovel and dug a hole, and I saw five bodies laying on top of the ground," he explained, staring down at five imaginary corpses of his past lives stretched out shoulder to shoulder on the linoleum.

"Then He asked what I was gonna do with the body I'm in now. Was I gonna make the mark or was I gonna go to where they are?"

As a lay minister in the Church of the Living, the Rev. Henry Holstine speaks often of his revelation, the night when all the incongruent pieces fit together.

Vision and revelation are important elements in the search for truth among members of this religious sect, a splinter group of the Perfectionist Holiness movement which took the Appalachian states by storm early in the 19th Century.

The "Neverdies," as they are called by other Holiness people, believe in immortality not only of the soul, but also of the body. The soul returns to earth in a series of reincarnations, they say, until the believer succeeds in living the perfect life. At that point, his body can live forever.

There are probably hundreds of mountain people living in West Virginia and surrounding states who are members of the rather loosely-knit "Neverdie" Church. Occasionally names such as "Everlasting Gospel Tabernacle" or "Church of the Living" are painted in whitewash over the door, but more often the meeting spot is identified by the names of an individual, usually a key overseer.

Members are reminded that Enoch, first of the "Neverdies," was "translated that he should not see death," and often discuss what they call the "adoption" of the body by God.

A dominant theme which serves as the backbone of "Neverdie" law is that man has the capability of eternal life on earth. If he "doesn't make the mark" and dies, they say, his spirit returns in a new body at some future date. These cycles continue until the individual has succeeded in living the pure life.

"Even natural history says the word repeats itself," said Rev. Holstine. "If that's true, the scriptures teach that man goes in and out and what was first shall be last and what was last shall be first."

The "Neverdie" Church provides a curious link between the Christianity of fundamentalist mountain people and the religions of the East.

Like the Buddhist and the Hindu, the "Neverdie" believes the spirit returns to earth in a series of reincarnations.

The "Church of the Living" is the product of the great Kentucky revival of 1800 to 1803 which rekindled the fundamentalistic, sectarian and experiential zeal of European religious dissent.

The belief in bodily immortality, an extreme threat in the fabric of the Pentecostal Church, distinguishes the "Neverdie" from other Holiness people.

Members of the "Church of the Living" in Chandler Hollow say one of the first persons to teach the belief was Ted Oiler, a massive 67-year-old ex-coal miner who still travels a preaching circuit through West Virginia, Virginia and North Carolina.

Rudiments of "Neverdie" law can be traced to a mysterious lay preacher from Belleville, Ohio, named Levi Dowling, who wrote the "Aquarian Gospel."

Rev. Holstine agrees that the teachings of the Appalachian "Neverdie" church are unconventional and generally disbelieved by outsiders, but adds that if necessary he will be back on earth again to see that it all comes true.

OSU budget cut, Gilligan rapped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio State University President Harold L. Enarson Wednesday announced school budget cutbacks of 5.5 to 8 per cent.

At the same time, he renewed his criticism of Gov. John Gilligan's subsidy proposals for higher education contained in the budget for the next biennium.

Terming the cutbacks "severe," Enarson said "the level of subsidy support being recommended to the Ohio General Assembly by the governor is inadequate to sustain current commitments."

To preserve the Bif Cypress

Over the past few years there has been much well publicized talk about saving the Everglades. Everyone is aware of that unique Florida region. The general public knows far less about the related Big Cypress area. Yet this watershed is a primary source of the water which is the Everglades' lifeblood.

Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida said this about it the other day as he introduced a bill for federal acquisition of the Big Cypress to establish the Everglades-Big Cypress Recreational Area: "As a source of fresh water and essential nutrient supply to the estuaries of Everglades National Park and the Ten Thousand Island, Big Cypress Watershed is the key to survival of the far-reaching recreational and commercial shrimping and fishing enterprises that depend upon those estuaries."

Sen. Chiles, who joins with Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington in offering this administration-supported bill, set forth a catalogue of reasons why we should preserve the Big Cypress. They are good reasons, ranging from conservation of diverse animal and plant life to maintenance of the aquifer "from which rapidly growing neighboring communities will draw much of their fresh water." At one point he told the Senate, "I feel that if the Big Cypress is permitted to remain in its state as a natural watershed, it can remain the key to effective water preservation in neighboring areas throughout southwest Florida."

This and related considerations argue strongly for enactment of the Chiles-Jackson bill. Since the region's ecology already is under pressure, action ought to be taken with the least possible delay.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

The legacy of Frank Shakespeare

At the farewell party which the Buckley brothers, Sen. Jim and Editor Bill, staged in his honor at the New York Yacht Club in New York City, Frank Shakespeare, the retiring director of the U. S. Information Agency, used a quaintly old-fashioned phrase to help define his four-year-long mission as chief PR man for his country. He was, he said, speaking for a nation that was part of the Judeo-Christian tradition.

I don't doubt for a minute that Frank Shakespeare did a good job in projecting his values. But could the American public be sure of this from what it is allowed to hear of what we do to cultivate a Judeo-Christian image abroad? What the USIA does to inform the citizens of other countries about the U. S. is pretty much of a secret.

As a matter of curiosity I'd like to know how the USIA explains certain things to other Judeo-Christian nations. How, for example, would a Nixon USIA director account for our university world to the foreigner when only 27 per cent of the students give U. S. business (which, after all, is the fairly munificent employer of 70 million people) a favorable rating? How laugh off the fact that the Princeton faculty, which was overwhelmingly for George McGovern, actually gave Richard Nixon fewer votes than went to radic-lib Shirley Chisholm and Communist Gus Hall?

AND HOW, for that matter, could even the nimblest USIA director reconcile our high-level diplomacy with the protection of the Judeo-Christian tradition? Nixon is trying to construct a world that will be ruled by a troika — the U. S., Soviet Russia, and Red China — that is hardly reflective of any unified cultural values. If the troika holds together for four years Nixon will be the luckiest President in U. S. history.

A USIA director presumably must do the best he can by talking of the troika's common interest in peace for the moment. The value of our recent turn in diplomacy is immediate: Nixon has seized on the Moscow - Peking rift to wangle a fairly honorable exodus from Southeast Asia. Rather than fight it out for total control of Indochina when the state of affairs along the Siberian border is more pressing, Moscow and Peking are showing some willingness to settle for a precarious two-nation solution for Vietnam. But this is surely short-term stuff.

When Prince Metternich, who is Henry Kissinger's diplomatic idol, put together the peace of Vienna back in 1814-15, he engaged a number of like-minded cultures to hold revolutionary movements in permanent check. The "concert of Europe" that avoided unlimited warfare for a full century was a balance-of-power affair that depended on Judeo-Christian values that were held in common by all the European monarchies and even the emerging European republics. The balance broke down in 1914 in which was, essentially, a civil war inside the Judeo-Christian tradition.

IN A BRILLIANT book called "Eyewitness to History: Memoirs and Reflections of a Foreign Correspondent for Half a Century," Isaac Don Levine shows the impossibility of basing any long-term peace on a troika cooperation between the U. S., the Soviet Union, and Red China. Levine, who speaks fluent Russian, spent 25 days in Hong Kong interviewing 594 Russians who had been expelled from the Chinese inner-Asia border province of Sinkiang. This was in the mid-Sixties, but Levine is still convinced by what he heard then that the Soviets mean to have Sinkiang for its uranium deposits. This, of course, would be over the dead bodies of Red Chinese.

Mr. Levine does not condemn Richard Nixon for contriving on exodus from Vietnam. However, he is against any long-term policy of trying to conciliate the two rivals in the Sino-Soviet conflict "as a means of insuring a lasting peace." What we need, says Mr. Levine, is a policy that would "allow the feud between China and Russia to run its course and develop of its own momentum."

In short, let the Marxist culture have its own civil war. And let the nations that are part of the Judeo-Christian tradition band together for safety while the collectivist tigers rend each other. The USIA can't make this its official line for obvious reasons connected with Vietnam, but it still can go on cultivating Frank Shakespeare's Judeo-Christian values.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Liberals in the doldrums

WASHINGTON — "What's the matter with you, Roche? Why aren't you in there fighting?"

That question from an old friend started me thinking about whether in fact I had lost my fighting spirit, but the more I talked with others of my generation and convictions, the more I become convinced that liberalism in our sense is currently in the doldrums.

In the 1950s we were out there day and night attacking the inertia of the Eisenhower Administration, but then we were suffused with the inner knowledge that we spoke for the real majority, that Ike was just a passing phenomenon, a military hero who had turned up to salvage the G.O.P. for eight years.

But after Sen. George McGovern conducted the political version of Custer's Last Stand last November, what precisely can you say when, for example, the Civil Rights Commission attacks President Nixon for not providing leadership in black-white relations? The commission is absolutely correct; I agree with every word it said, but the stark fact is that Mr. Nixon did not carry 49 states on a program of improving black-white relationships. Not that he is a "racist," but he simply does not accept the role of the Federal Government in the liberal definition.

OR TAKE AMNESTY. Several years ago I argued here in support of the amnesty proposal of Rep. Ed Koch of New York, which provides for return and alternative service. It is a decent solution to a tragic and messy business, one that avoids assessment of motives and related subjective quagmires. I still think it is an excellent proposal, but the President put it down ferociously as "a junket in the Peace Corps.".

Why did this arouse so little moral objection? Because McGovern, damn it, stepped on every patriotic toe in the nation when, in effect, he suggested that those who ducked the draft were candidates for beautification. It will, I fear, take several years before we can approach this problem with humane rationality.

What this adds up to is a thoroughly pessimistic assessment of the mood of the American electorate, one that requires a thorough re-evaluation of liberal strategy. First, we have to accept the harsh reality that we do not constitute the real majority. Neither do ideological conservatives; the real majority has adopted the politics of inertia, which is essentially a rejection of all ideology.

Second, we have to put the wagons in a circle, at least for the time being, and conduct a defensive strategy. "Activism" — as I have noted here before — is now a dirty word. I remain committed to federal activism, and I'm convinced that after the American people have lived a while with the Nixon Doctrine of the "withering away of the state," they will begin to yearn for the good old days.

Wait, for example, until they discover what a joke revenue-sharing is (already Georgia's Democratic Gov. Jimmy Carter, an alleged conservative, has called it a "cruel hoax"). The voters jumped with joy when it was formulated because they anticipated a decline in real property taxes. I hope they are not standing on one foot waiting for taxes to drop.

FINALLY in political terms American liberals just don't have a horse. A lot of organizations exist to explore issues — the Coalition for a Democratic Majority, Americans for Democratic Action, Common Cause, etc. — but in politics you can only go so far on issues alone. You have to have a candidate and it is hardly necessary to note that viable liberal Presidential possibilities are in short supply.

In short, friends, the fighting spirit is still there, but it is tempered by a hard-headed unwillingness to fight on President Nixon's hand-picked battlefields. I am no masochist: I hope never again to witness such a spectacle as the President's mop-up of liberal Democrats on the issue of the Vietnamese War. Let's pick our own issues and see if we can bring him out to fight on our turf.

Get set for bow ties

The cyclical nature of fashion is so well documented that it scarcely needs mention. Revival of things past in a central theme in wearing apparel styles for both men and women. Thus it comes as no great surprise that the bow tie is being touted as the hot thing for fall.

Men of a certain age, as the French saying so delicately puts it, will break out in nostalgia at thought of a bow tie revival. Many of them will recall times, too many years ago, when they bedazzled the multitudes with butterflies of the lastest pattern-polkadots, maybe, or a snappy stripe. They'll have their chance to try it again as local stores begin to stock what's hot at the Men Fashion Association showings in Chicago.

Hal Boyle . . . Remarks for after age 39

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks any man gets tired of hearing on any of his birthdays after the age of 39:

"So you're a year older. Well, that happens even to nice guys. Cheer up."

"Did you ever stop to think that after 35 every birthday makes it that much more unlikely that you will ever be a success in life?"

"Please accept my congratulations. I'm too cheap to buy you a get-well card."

"It makes me think of when you first came to work here. You used to have a boyish grin then. What happened to it?"

"So, you're a year older. Well, hurrah, hullaballoo, and hello to Aunt Mabel."

"I suppose this makes you think about retirement plans. I don't know what you have in mind but — as a hedge against inflation — I just bought my wife and me a cemetery plot. It's kind of nice to know that when you've got to go at least you've got a place to go to where the climate ain't too bad."

"Now that you're a year older, don't you think you ought to start trying to make sense? You can't do it any younger."

"I knew you wouldn't want to eat at home on your birthday — no human being does. So, I reserved us a table at — oh, shut up, Henry, it isn't all that expensive, and anyway, you only have a birthday once a year — now and then."

"Fortunately, you're one of those people who can wear wrinkles fairly gracefully."

"Ha, Ha! That's good for a laugh. But now let's get down to the truth. How old are you really?"

"Don't let it get you down. There's a fair chance you'll survive to see another one."

"So, you're a year older. Do you ever get the feeling you're living on borrowed time?"

Today In History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1732, George Washington was born at his parents' plantation near Fredericksburg, Va.

On this date: In 1810, the composer, Frederic Chopin, was born in Warsaw, Poland.

In 1819, Spain ceded Florida to the United States.

In 1889, the Dakota Territory was divided into North Dakota and South Dakota.

In 1942, during the Pacific war, it was announced that tribesmen in the Philippines had wiped out a Japanese regiment.

Today's birthdays: Democratic Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts is 41. Actor Robert Young is 66.

Thought for today: It was much easier for George Washington never to tell a lie; there were no income tax forms in his day — anonymous.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

How to get rid of a lazy 'elephant'

DEAR ABBY: How can parents get rid of a fat, 20-year-old daughter who refuses to look for a job? She says that we gave birth to her for reasons of our own, so we can keep her for the rest of her life.

Eating, sleeping, reading, listening to the radio and doing volunteer work at the local animal shelter, and urging her little brother to hang himself, is all that she has done since graduating from high school 2½ years ago.

Her skill with animals has brought her many good job offers from veterinarians, but she says she refuses to work for money as long as her brother is alive, as she fiercely resents not being an only child.

The police say they cannot help us because she is neither a criminal nor a lunatic. Two doctors have told us they cannot help us because they can't find anything "wrong" with her. So where do we go from here? We aren't millionaires, and we're fed up with . . .

FEEDING AN ELEPHANT

DEAR FEEDING: Go to another doctor! This time find a competent psychiatrist. You certainly have enough clues to conclude that the girl has serious emotional problems. She desperately needs help in getting her head together. And the cost will be "peanuts" compared with feeding an elephant.

DEAR ABBY: I am in the Marine Corps, station in Nam Phong, Thailand. There is no female personnel on this base at night. It is very hot and we live in huts. I prefer to remain in the nude when we return from showering because it is much cooler. This seems to annoy one guy in the hut. Do I have a problem? Or has he?

NUDE IN NAM PHONG

DEAR NUDE: If HE has one, why are YOU writing?

DEAR ABBY: Can you get VD from kissing somebody? If you can, maybe I've had it for a year and have already given it to three people.

I didn't even know about this disease until six months ago, and the kid I think might have given it to me moved out of town a year ago.

I am so worried. I am only 15, and I'm not a slut or anything like that. Please don't tell me to talk to my parents. They would never understand. Also our family doctor is a good friend of theirs, so I can't go to him.

I have to know right away, Abby, as my grades are falling off because I'm worried instead of studying. Thank you, and hurry your answer, please.

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: The chances of contracting VD from kissing are very very slim, but if you have gone in for heavy petting, you could be in trouble. Call your Department of Public health. Tell them I suggested that you call, and ask for a physical examination to ease your mind. You do not need your parents' consent, and if you need treatment, you'll receive it on a confidential (and free) basis. Please do this today, and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: How long should a couple wait to get married following a divorce? I have been divorced for three years, but the man I am going to marry has been divorced only a few months. We have known each other for a very long time and are both over forty. I am not talking about the time it is considered "legal" to get married again, I mean how long should we wait to avoid gossip?

FLORIDIAN

DEAR FLORIDIAN: Go ahead and marry the man and don't worry about gossip. After all, a divorce isn't the same as a death. There is no "mourning" period when one loses a mate in the divorce court.

'Wounded Bird' down in Mississippi field

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A 13,000-pound wounded bird has nested in a muddy soybean field outside Memphis.

The Mississippi National Guard CH34 Choctaw cargo helicopter was flying at 2,000 feet Sunday when a warning light indicated problems. It had dropped to about five feet above the ground and was circling the soybean field when the engine failed.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It sounds a bit weird; but, as of Friday, a movie house here will charge people money to see 10 selections from a television variety show of 1952-53 vintage.

Who'd pay for that? A lot of Sid Caesar fans. The 90-minute collection represents the best of the comedian's "Show of Shows," which ran four years on NBC in the early black-andwhite 1950s.

Modern one-hour versions of Caesar's special brand of lunacy also soon may appear on television. He and his partner, Max Liebman, are working on outlines of three TV specials they hope to sell to one of the networks.

Younger viewers who've never seen Caesar's early shows should be advised they divided the American audience into two parts: those who came to praise Caesar and those who gave him the raspberry.

The latter folks generally were dismissed by the pro-Caesar faction as the sort of people who'd boo a funeral.

The man they debated approached comedy then somewhat differently than other stars. Among other things, he portrayed an accident-prone mountain climber, a larcenous penny gum dispenser that hoped to hit it big as a rigged slot machine in Las Vegas and a jazz musician who was not of this world.

He called the musician Progress Hornsby. Progress played tenor sax and featured a radar operator in his far-out band "to keep track of the melody, man."

Caesar, now 50, has been making sporadic movie, television and nightclub appearances and working in the theater. His biggest stage hit came in 1962 in "Little Me" on Broadway.

The movie house revival of "Show of Shows" stems from an Esquire magazine cover story on him last May. It led to a reunion with Liebman, the program's producer and creator. Then came a six-month collaboration in which they chose the 10 best skits from "Show of Shows" and pared it all down to 90 minutes.

After that, they went to work sketching the TV specials. One would feature a Caesar speciality — satirized movies. The victims would be silent, Italian, French, British and American films.

If the networks buy the shows — and if they get high ratings — would Caesar like to go back to television on a full-time basis?

"Not in a series every week," he said. "It's hard to turn out quality every week. I'm not putting down any (weekly) show, but I think it would be very limiting for me.

Great cooks come in two varieties. Those who believe in perfecting their recipes and those who believe in the magic of their favorite cookware.

That's why Corning gives you a choice you get nowhere else.

The Family range provides the advantages of easy-care smoothtop cooking to cooks who couldn't possibly part with Grandmother's cast iron skillet or Aunt Hattie's copper teakettle.

The Gourmet range, on the other hand, relies on thermostatic sensors, accurate heat control and specially designed Cookmates® cookware (or other permanently flat-bottomed ware) to give the demanding cook a precise cooking system to back up the most exacting recipes.

Underneath, both Corning ranges have an extra large oven (23 x 18⅛ x 16) that can hold three 8-inch cake pans on one shelf. And the oven is pyrolytic self-cleaning which gets the oven clean.

But the choice doesn't stop there. Both Family and Gourmet ranges come in built-in models. And there are one Family and two Gourmet versions of The Counter That Cooks® cooktop. Single and double wall ovens, too. All as easy to care for as they are beautiful.

This apple cake comes from Vienna

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

This Viennese Apple Cake was adapted from a recipe given to us by an octogenarian. The last we heard, she was still making it! The dessert is both handsome and delicious. Because it takes some careful doing, it's worth serving to guests.

VIENNESE APPLE CAKE

Applesauce, see recipe below
2 cups sifted flour
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup (two ¼-pound sticks) butter
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons chopped (medium-fine) blanched almonds

Prepare applesauce well in advance of making pastry to allow time for chilling; to speed chilling, place in freezer.

In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour, sugar and salt. Slice in butter and then cut in with pastry blender until particles are fine. Mix in egg yolk. Work pastry with fingers until it holds together. If pastry is very soft, chill in freezer about 5 minutes or in refrigerator for about 20 minutes.

Shape pastry into a 5-inch long roll. Cut into 2 pieces, one 3½ inches long, the other 1½ inches long. Cut smaller half into 6 pieces and chill.

Place remaining pastry (the 3½ inch roll) on a large cookie sheet; with a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll to a 12 by 6 inch rectangle. Push sides up with a spatula or fingers to form a ¼ inch edge. Sprinkle pastry with almonds, gently pressing them down. Spread with 1¼ cups chilled applesauce.

Remove small pieces of pastry from refrigerator, 2 at a time. Roll each with hands into ¼ inch thick ropes on a floured pastry cloth. Use pastry ropes to form diamond - shape lattice over applesauce, cutting them into lengths needed. Begin the lattice about 1½ inches from one corner and place each succeeding rope of pastry parallel to last rope and about 1½ inches from it. Crisscross with a second row of ropes.

Form remaining pastry into ropes and place around edge of pastry to give it a finished built-up edge.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until pastry is golden brown — about 30 to 35 minutes. During first 10 to 20 minutes of baking, check to see if the sides of pastry are spreading. If so, push them back into position with the flat side of a wide metal spatula. Cool before cutting, but while still warm slide from pan, with the help of the wide spatula, onto a serving platter or board.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

APPLESAUCE

1½ pounds cooking apples, about seven
2½-inch apples
2 tablespoons water
½ cup sugar
¼ cup apricot jam
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon

Wash apples but do not peel or core. Quarter and cut off blossom ends. Place in a saucepan; add water. Cover and cook over medium-low heat until apples are soft — 20 minutes; stir often to prevent scorching. Turn apples through a food mill into a saucepan. (There should be 1½ to 2 cups.) Add sugar, apricot jam, lemon juice and cinnamon. Cook over low heat, stirring often, until applesauce is very thick — 15 to 20 minutes. Chill. Makes about 1½ cups. Use the 1¼ cups called for in Viennese Apple Cake recipe and remaining small portion some other way.

Mushrooms are delicious on their own, as a garnish

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

For centuries man has sought out the mysterious fungus called the mushroom to garnish the meat, fish or fowl gracing his table.

But today the mushroom has become more than a mere delicacy to dress up a steak or help stuff a chicken. Chefs recognize it as a delectable food in its own right, and nutritionists say the fungus contains plenty of minerals, a fair amount of vegetable proteins and essential vitamins.

Scientists estimate that there are about 38,000 varieties of mushrooms lurking in shaded nooks in various parts of the world and that more than 700 of them have proven edible.

Only one type of mushroom is cultivated commercially in the United States, an adaptation of the common field variety. But wild mushrooms like the cepe and morel are imported canned or in dried form from France and sold in our fancier food stores.

The mushroom goes back to ancient times. The Romans prized it so highly that they designed a set of cooking utensils expressly for the fungus.

The little unbrella-shaped plants were regarded as a delicacy by the Chaldeans of Biblical times. The Chinese, Indians and Japanese gathered them from the woods and fields for their cookpots.

When I stayed with friends in southern England some years ago, my host and his wife used to prowl through the woods at daybreak and bring back a basket of mushrooms which they served grilled on toast for breakfast.

Hunting for mushrooms is pleasant but perilous unless you are well acquainted with the lethal varieties like the bell-shaped Death Cup which grows over much of America and packs a poison that has about the same effect as the venom of a rattlesnake.

Unless you are an expert, it is best to buy your mushrooms from the marketplace. If you prefer the imports, most cooks find the dried cepes and morels preferable to the canned variety. They are cheaper to begin with and have more flavor. Unlike fresh mushrooms, the dried fungi can be cooked for long periods of time without coming to any harm.

I was a guest recently at the New York Plaza Club which is perched 50 floors above street level at the foot of Manhattan and provides a dazzling view of New York Harbor.

The chef at the club is obviously a mushroom buff and has an impressive array of recipes. One for creamed mushrooms in vol-au-vent, or feather-light pastry shells, particularly appealed to me. Here is the recipe.

1 ounce dried morels
3 ounces butter
2 ounces flour
6 ounces cream
½ ounce sherry wine
½ ounce white wine
½ ounce brandy
4 ounces chicken stock
½ ounce shallots
Paprika, salt, pepper to taste

Soak morels in cold water for 2½ hours. Prepare a roux with butter and flour, adding white wine, sherry and chicken stock and simmering 10 minutes. Separately saute shallots and morels, flame them with brandy and mix with the above sauce, adding salt, pepper and paprika. Pour mushrooms and sauce into pastry shells and serve. Makes four servings. Good with a dry white wine.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography, we are aware, nourishes creative ability in people in the process of taking pictures and making prints. It brings into play the art of seeing and evaluating light, composition, timing and cropping.

I've just learned of another new area in which photography plays a part in encouraging creative ability in people. The new art form, called "Personal Paintings," is a process where-by small color photos — usually portraits — can be converted into distinctive 16" x 20" oil paintings and the camera fan, or some member of the family, becomes a "Sunday painter."

The process, introduced by Craft Master of Toledo, Ohio, is a patented procedure which starts with color prints or transparencies. They are copied, color-corrected, enlarged and reproduced on 16 x 20 panel boards in black-and-white outlines containing tiny numbered areas. These act as painting guides and the numbers are duplicated on little containers of oil paints.

PHOTOS INTO PAINTINGS. A new process, "Personal Paintings," offers people a chance to become Sunday painters. Here, Mrs. Barbara Glick, Monsey, N.Y., studies a 16" x 20" coded outline and the color print of her daughter from which it was made. A completed painting of her father is in the background.

BY PAINTING IN the numbered areas with their matching oil paints and using the original color photo for reference, the result is a large impressive oil painting that is truly personal and creative.

It's simple to say the small color photo is converted into a large blac-and-white painting guide. Actually the process is an example of photographic space-age technology in computerized optical magic. And no wonder, it was developed by Itek Corp. which also developed camera systems for the Apollo and Mars satellites and landing vehicles.

The "Personal Paintings" camera system was perfected after a three-year research and development study in joint co-operation with Craft Master, a division of General Mills. It utilizes a precision copy camera for 70mm film, a laser beam, a television-type scanner, three computers and an optical card reader.

IT ISN'T necessary to understand the precise technical details which produce the enlarged, coded, paint-by-number black-and-white duplicate of a color photo or transparency. It is important to know what kind of pictures are acceptable for this creative process.

Good, clear, sharp, head-and-shoulder color close-ups of people make the best subjects for painting. The better the picture, the better the result is likely to be. They can be snapshots or enlargements, wallet or jumbo prints, studio portraits, Polaroid prints or slides. Faces should be at least the size of a quarter but the bigger, the better. Backgrounds should be simple and nondistracting.

Not acceptable are faces that are fuzzy or too small — such as found in group shots or a full-length figure — and those with complicated backgrounds which merge with the face.

GOOD black-and-white portraits are acceptable if the sender has a favorite photo and doesn't mind painting it in shades of sepia. In some cases, the scanner can create its own set of color values by referring to sample photos which represent good color values.

A complete kit for about-to-be-artists consists of the color photo originally sent in; a 16 x 20 coded outline of the subject mounted on stiff board; a book of instructions for this painting technique; an assortment of about 48 small containers of oil paints, each numbered; a practice panel and paint brushes.

A KIT is returned about four weeks after a satisfactory photo (and the cost of $19.95) is received. An average person should spend between 10 to 20 hours to complete the painting. And until he tries, one never knows what hidden talent is waiting to be uncovered.

Ohio Perspective

House secretary has parking woe

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The new executive secretary of the Ohio House —commander of its 134 employes — has the same workaday problem facing a lot of big city mayors—parking.

He has to fit the automobiles of 99 House members into 70-odd spaces in the House parking lot alongside the statehouse.

"It's a real headache," said 38-year-old John "Jack" McCarthy, who used to represent Youngstown's 81st House district.

McCarthy succeeded to the $21,000-a-year job with the 110th General Assembly, in which the House is dominated by the Democrats.

McCarthy doesn't have to worry about parking for his employes, but he does have to answer complaints from House members about the staff. Even Republican secretary help comes under his authority.

But, House members must share their 70-odd parking spaces in the lot with four cars each from the offices of the attorney general, treasurer and auditor.

Although the problem hasn't been solved, McCarthy hopes it can be east by reminding the Underground Parking Commission that it is required by law to save spaces for legislators. The parking complex is located under the statehouse.

At least one problem has been virtually whipped. Most of the task of moving — because Democrats took control of the House for the first time since 1959 — is completed.

"The physical moving was a real pain," said McCarthy. "Getting typewriters and everything to the right place across the hall has now been accomplished.

"Everybody seems to be settled down."

McCarthy must oversee the spending of a $5 million budget, which includes the payroll for House members and staff. Still, said McCarthy, it's the "little detail work that takes my time."

All printing and purchasing for House lawmakers come under McCarthy's office. Other officers, such as the clerk and sergeant-at-arms, work under his direction.

McCarthy spent two terms on the Youngstown City Council before going to the House for two two-year stints. He dropped out to seek a county office, but lost in a primary race.

McCarthy is a graduate of Rand High School. He attended Youngstown State University. He was a midwest sales manager for a fence company before taking over direction of the House staff.

He is married and father of six children ranging in age from 6 to 16. And, the parking problem extends over to his private life. He's looking for a place in Columbus to house them.

Mystery of lost Americans publicized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Inside the newspaper graced with the happy front-page headlines that more prisoners of war had been released was an advertisement.

"WHERE ARE OUR MIAS?" it asked.

The full-page ad is one of those being taken out in 150-200 newspapers across the nation by POW-MIA organizations. An MIA is one of 1,363 military men and 30-45 civilians listed by the organizations as missing in action in Indochina.

The ad pictures Lt. Ron Dodge, a Navy pilot shot down May 17, 1967. A photograph by a Dutch photographer showing Dodge being paraded through the streets of Hanoi appeared in Paris Match magazine in September 1967, the ad says.

Dodge's name did not appear on Hanoi's list of POWs held in North Vietnam, South Vietnam or Laos.

The Pentagon says there are 1,328 U.S. military men missing in action or unaccounted for in Indochina, while the State Department lists an additional 24 civilian MIAs.

Voices in Vital America (VIVA) best-known for its worldwide distribution of five million bracelets bearing the names of POWs and MIAs, says it is coordinating the ads. It calls on its bracelet-wearers and other Americans to protest the Communists' alleged failure to account for all Americans they captured.

It says one way to do this is to demand of Congress that not one penny be spent on rebuilding North Vietnam until all MIAs are accounted for.

VIVA is also asking all bracelet wearers to continue wearing them at least until all American POWs are released.

"We are urging people to continue wearing their bracelets to help alert others that the issue has not yet been resolved satisfactorily," said Mrs. Douglas Coppin, chairman of VIVA's National Advisory Board.

The MIA families are particularly disappointed about the accounting of POWs in Laos. Of 317 men carried as MIAs in Laos, only seven were listed by Hanoi as prisoners.

"We know with modern ejection methods there is a great chance of pilot and crew survival when a plane goes down. This figure of seven men is ludicrous," Mrs. Coppin said.

She said 56 men previously believed by the U.S. government to be POWs were not accounted for by Hanoi. She said another 11 MIAs were reported dead, while 46 MIAs were named on the POW list.

Falcon trainers stealing from zoos

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Some falcon trainers are stealing their birds from California zoos, says Frank Todd, corporate curator at Sea World Marine Park.

"They are a bunch of cutthroat thieves and bandits. They have taken wild falcons illegally and have stolen falcons from the San Diego Zoo and the Los Angeles Zoo, and they steal from each other."

The discovery of ancient wine lists demonstrates that early imbibers graded the grapes according to their relative quality, say editors of Time-Life's "The Emergence of Man" series.

Food additives really hidden time-bombs?

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the food and chemical industry lobbies for softening the law prohibiting cancer-causing substances in food, Congress is divided with some members hoping to make it even more rigid.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., plans to propose again legislation to extend the Delaney Clause to require pre-market testing of most additives to make sure they don't cause birth defects or genetic mutations.

Food and Drug Commissioner Charles C. Edwards says the FDA must be "neutral, and I mean neutral" on Delaney, but he has called publicly for months for a privately funded international symposium drawing together the world's best scientific brains to wrestle with the question.

The Nutrition Foundation and the Food and Drug Law Institute, both industry-oriented and supported, have joined with Consumers Union in gathering pledges to support such a conference later this year.

The plan is to attempt to draft a mathematical formula proving that "safe" amounts of a known carcinogen can be added to food without causing cancer in man.

But leading scientists, including many employed by the government, say such carcinogens can be hidden time bombs that result in cancer 10, 20 or 30 years after exposure.

"In providing a framework for evaluating potential hazards of these additives, the Delaney Clause simply ratifies the prevailing expert opinion in the National Cancer Institute and in other professionally qualified groups that there is no practical method to determine safe dietary levels for a carcinogen," says Dr. Samuel S. Epstein of Case Western Reserve University.

The likely effect of Nelson's bill will be to stall, at least temporarily, industry efforts to modify the current law.

So it will be questions revolving around cancer, the nation's No. 2 health menace, which will bring Delaney to a head.

The Delaney Clause, which bars cancer-causing additives from foods, is very narrow in scope. It applies to fewer than 3,000 additives for which FDA has issued regulations.

It cannot touch the roughly 600 ingredients generally recognized as safe, which themselves are under review for safety, nor the category of prior-sanctioned ingredients approved by either the Agriculture Department or FDA before 1958.

The others could be banned, however, as "poisonous or deleterious" by the FDA under long-standing but unwieldy legal authority.

The chemical industry says the average American consumes about five pounds of synthetic additives a year, and the sales volume of food chemicals is expected to grow from $485 million in 1970 to $750 million by 1980.

Food chemicals are used as stabilizers, preservatives, disinfectants, antioxidants, extenders, tenderizers, emulsifiers, growth promoters, bleaches, sweeteners, colors and flavors, to the advantage of either the processor or the consumer.

"Most additives are purely cosmetic. Many involve outright deceit," contends Ralph Nader's Health Research Group in a 28-page booklet distributed recently to congressmen. The message is that Delaney should not be changed.

Opponents of Delaney contend the law prevents the exercise of scientific judgment, should scientists develop the ability to determine a safe or no-effect level of carcinogens in food.

Laurence Wood, president of the Food and Drug Law Institute, said some supporting research is expected to be performed at FDA's National Center for Toxicological Research, a former military facility at Pine Bluff, Ark.

There, government scientists hope to devise tests using thousands upon thousands of animals to determine at what level a carcinogen does not cause cancer in animals.

But before that happens, FDA officials say, a theoretical formula must be worked out to prove it is feasible.

Until a satisfactory solution is found, Commissioner Edwards said, he finds himself in accord with consumer activists.

"At this point in time you could say there is not enough evidence to suggest Delaney should be changed either way," he said.

Concern has been expressed that bans on artificial sweeteners and livestock-growth hormones might affect public health adversely by pricing protein off the table of poor people and boosting consumption of carbohydrates.

Scientists' ability to dream up new tests to detect carcinogens in food has far exceeded their ability to interpret the results, Edwards said.

"If only scientists could say, 'Yes, by God, this is it.' But they can't.

"The total scientific community has got to weigh all the issues involved and help us come up with some kind of a rational judgment on the whole subject of risk-to-benefit, although that's a little crass," he said.

Flip Wilson plans to be married soon

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — "It's supposed to be a big secret," said Rosylin "Roz" Taylor in confirming a report she and comedian Flip Wilson probably will marry.

Miss Taylor, 26, made the comment Tuesday after being contacted by a reporter "How did you know?" she asked when reached at the home of her parents here. "No wedding is planned immediately. We probably will be getting married in six months. I guess that's soon enough," she said.

Romania turns to Dracula in move to draw tourists

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Writer

BUCHAREST (AP) — Feel like a blood-curdling holiday? The Romanians are planning to put on a show in the dungeons of Dracula's castles and make you shriek with terror.

It is this Communist country's latest idea for earning dollars and bolstering the economy.

"American tourists would like to be terrified," said the pleasant, smiling official of the Romanian Tourist Ministry. "They like going to the movies to be frightened by Dracula, so they would enjoy it even more in the castles."

Strangely enough the project comes just when Romanian historians are making a big effort to prove that Dracula, or Vlad Tepes, was not really such a bad guy after all. They say Vlad, who ruled the southern Romanian principality of Walachia between 1455 and 1477, did a lot for Romanian unity by fighting Turkish invaders, and they insist the popular story of the vampire who fed on the blood of his victims is all stuff and nonsense.

But hard currency is hard currency. So the romanians will tell tourists the truth about Dracula but will also make capital out of the legend.

DRACULA'S DEN — Romania plans to capitalize on the interest in the Dracula legend by putting on sound and light shows in his castles. This one, at Tirgoviste, is partly in ruins but is being restored.

NOBODY will suck your blood in Dracula's castles, but they will do their best to suck your dollars.

Foreign tourists visiting Romania are increasing by 400,000 per year totaling an estimated three million in 1972. More than two million of them come from the Communist countries. But about 20,000 Americans come each year and the Romanians hope to push this up to 50,000 in 1973.

Tourism accounts for about 4 per cent of Romani's hard currency earnings. Tourist officials reckon that if Dracula gets into the act he'll push the percentage up.

Two of his castles, at Poenari and Tirgoviste, are partly in ruins but are being restored. The Romanians plan to use them as settings for sound and light shows, which have become popular tourist features in Europe's historic buildings ranging from St. Paul's Cathedral in London to the Colosseum in Rome.

WITH LIGHTS flashing and amplified screams and groans assailing you from loudspeakers, you will be able to persuade yourself that Dracula has you in his clutches.

If he really did, it wouldn't be very pleasant. He may not have been a vampire but he was a tough customer. He was called Vlad Tepes, or Vlad the Impaler, from his habit of sticking people on pikes and hoisting them aloft.

"He was cruel, but only to those who deserved it," said the man at the Tourist Ministry. "He punished thieves, and rich people who plundered the poor."

Vlad Tepes is reputed to have killed 10,000 in a night on one occasion. So there must have been an awful lot of thieves and rich people in 15th century Romania.

It was the Romanian people themselves who gave him the name Dracula, or Devil. But German writers of the 19th century first presented him as a vampire, paving the way for a best-selling novel by the Irish writer Bram Stoker.

A VAMPIRE? Well, he was certainly not squeamish. There is a story that he was wounded in battle and immobilized by loss of blood, so he steeled himself to drink the blood of warriors who were dying around him and regained his strength. A kind of self-operated blood transfusion, in fact.

One Romanian historian who has done a lot to sift the truth from the Dracula legend is Professor Andrei Florescu, who now lectures in the United States. Other historians at home in Romania are busy researching into his life and times. Rehabilitating Dracula is a favorite pastime among Romanian intellectuals right now.

But for the tourist industry the image of Dracula will be preserved as a monster — impaler, vampire and all.

Report claims alcoholism biologically inherited trait

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Five American and Danish psychiatrists say a study of adopted children who became alcoholics as adults suggests a tendency that the disease may be biologically inherited.

They studied 55 Danish men who had been separated from their biological parents during early infancy, and one parent had been diagnosed as alcoholic.

These were compared with 78 other adopted men whose biological parents had no known history of alcoholism.

The study found that "significantly more" of the first group had a history of drinking problems and psychiatric treatment.

And the offspring of alcoholics also had a divorce rate three times that of the second group.

The study was outlined in the February issue of the Archives of General Psychiatry, published by the American Medical Association.

It was was done by Drs. Donald W. Goodwin and Samuel B. Guze of Washington University, St. Louis; Fini Schulsinger and Leif Hermansen of Kommunehospitalet, Copenhagen; and George Winokur of the University of Iowa.

They attempted to separate biological from environmental factors in the development of alcoholism.

The American researchers collaborated with the Danes because Denmark is a closely knit society with centralized national records of adoptions, psychiatric hospitalizations and criminal activities.

The men studied had an average age of 30, ranging in age from 23 to 45. All had been adopted before they were six weeks old.

Ten of the 55 offspring of an alcoholic parent were found to be alcoholic, compared with four of the 78 whose parents were not alcoholic.

Twenty-two of the first group had received psychiatric treatment, including nine alcoholics, while 19 of the control group had such treatment and two were alcoholic.

Twenty-seven of the offspring of alcoholics were divorced, while nine of the others were divorced.

Europe's largest collection of American Indian artifacts is in West Germany. The costumes, weapons and implements have been displayed since 1928 in a museum at Radebul dedicated to German author Karl May. who wrote his frontier novels before ever visiting the United States.

Radicals, rock on the wane

Campus 'ins' .. and 'outs'

By BILL WINTER
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Monster movies, conservative speakers and classical or blues music apparently are "in" on college campuses this year. Radicals and rock are on the wane.

Such is the message being generated by the National Entertainment Conference, a noisy four-day gathering of agents and collegians to arrange bookings for talent on campus.

Students and campus talent coordinators from throughout the nation are here. Some are working with budgets of more than $290,000 a year, others with as little as $4,000.

Agents report a brisk business in the talent market, and they add that a couple of significant trends are showing.

First, they say, the blues or even the classics are more likely to be heard than "hard rock" when collegians gather these days.

Secondly, radical speakers are out on campus, at least, and conservatives are in.

"It goes along with the mood of the country, a general lifting of the spirit of things," said one agent.

There's a "monster booth" where collegians can arrange for campus viewings of vintage horror films.

And there is an agent ready to sign a contract to bring a full three-ring circus to campus.

"There seems to be a swing toward cultural things," said Lucy Lapage of Royce Carlton, Inc., a New York firm.

"More campuses are looking to speakers and artists to stay around for gatherings and personal contacts after their presentations," she says.

Eugene Remels, representing United Films, distributor of horror movies and film classics, says collegians are "turned on to a nostalgia thing.

"In the past few years, nostalgia has gone big in all areas," he said, leafing through a promotional brochure entitled "Fifty Years of Devils, Demons and Monsters."

"One of our popular items is the original series of 12 Sherlock Holmes films, with Basil Rathbone," he said.

Man's divorce of dying wife granted; welfare sought

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — "It's final, but I still love her," said Howard Thomas after he divorced his wife of 32 years so the critically ill woman could get welfare benefits to pay her mounting medical bills.

His 45-year-old wife, Ruth, lay in a nursing home unaware of the 10-minute divorce hearing Tuesday dissolving a marriage which had given the couple six children.

She is in the advanced stages of incurable multiple sclerosis.

"I was shook, and the judge was shook, too," said Thomas, a 49-year-old steelworker. "He knew it was something that had to be done.... Just like me, he wished he didn't have to do it."

After Circuit Court Judge C. Richard Leavengood granted the decree, Thomas applied in his wife's behalf for the state welfare assistance needed to insure continued medical treatment.

Jack Youngblood of the Florida Division of Family Services said Tuesday night the application would be processed with "due haste." The divison administers the state-supported medicaid program.

Leavengood gave Thomas custody of his two youngest children, ages 5 and 11. The others are adults.

"We're behind our father 100 per cent," said daughter Brenda Pivinski. "If my mother were aware of the situation, I know she would understand."

Last November, state officials said they had made a mistake in granting Thomas medicaid benefits to help pay for his wife's costs at a nursing home—he earned $79 more than the maximum to qualify.

The $117 monthly payment he had been receiving for 17 months was halted, but the $500 monthly nursing home cost continued.

It was then that Thomas said he decided to sue for divorce, explaining then, "I'm at the end of my rope . . ."

Lukens sets up candidacy test

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, attempted to file as a Republican candidate for governor today but Secretary of State Ted W. Brown refused to accept his petitions.

"I return your petitions because you are on Butler County's delinquent list for not filing your expenses on time as prescribed by law," Brown said.

Brown, also a Republican, returned to Lukens a $50 filing fee and a batch of petitions bearing 4,000 signatures from 82 counties.

Your Income Tax

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q) Can I designate $1 of my tax to go to a particular presidential candidate?

(A) No. However, if you wish, $1 of your tax ($2 if you are married and filing a joint return) may be paid over to presidential candidates of a specific political party. Just check the box on IRS Form 4875 (in your tax forms package), fill in the name of the party, and attach this form to your tax return.

Instead of designating $1 of your tax for a particular party, you can designate it for a non-partisan general account for all eligible candidates. Just check the box provided.

(Q) Are scholarships taxable?

(A) No. in general, if you receive a scholarship or fellowship grant, you may exclude all or part of that amount from your gross income, depending upon whether or not you are a degree candidate. If you are a degree candidate, there is no limitation on the amount that may be excluded from your income. However, if you are not a degree candidate, the amount you receive as a scholarship or fellowship may be excluded up to $300 times the number of months for which you receive amounts under the grant during the tax year.

A scholarship that is compensation for past or future services or primarily for the grantor's benefit, is not excluded from gross income.

For more information, see IRS Publication 520, "Tax Information for American Scholars in the U.S. and Abroad." A free copy can be obtained by dropping a postcard to your Internal Revenue district office.

(Q) I installed a new water heater in my home last year. Can I deduct the cost on my tax return?

(A) No, but you may add the cost of this item to the basis of your property, so that it will be taken into account in the event that you sell your home.

(Q) Are gambling losses deductible?

(A) If you itemize, you may deduct your gambling losses incurred during the year, but only to the extent of your winnings. Gambling winnings must be reported as income.

Catholic churches in U.S. near bankruptcy?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—After making it big with a book about Vatican finances, Nino Lo Bello decided to try it again with an expose of riches of the U.S. Roman Catholic Church. But he ran into an unexpected problem.

"I discovered the Church is in tough financial shape in this country," he says. "It's really hurting."

Lo Bello, 51, an easygoing, mustachioed American financial writer, now based in Vienna, Austria, says he spent nine months, traveling 40,000 miles in the United States, checking Catholic Church finances in 250 cities and all 50 states.

"I ended up debunking my own idea," he says. "I started out to clobber the Church about its wealth, but you have to let the chips fall where they may, and I ended up clobbering myself."

He began the project after his 1969 book, "The Vatican Empire," became a hot seller, with more than 70,000 copies in hard cover, a half million in paperback. He planned a sequel doing a similar job on the American Church.

"Like a lot of other Catholics, I assumed that the Church was rich and I set out to try to expose it with my own research, but ended up proving what the Church has been telling us — it's losing money," he said in an interview.

Lo Bello's new book, issued by Trident Press, plays on his previous title, using the name, "Vatican U.S.A.," but he said "the publisher was a little disappointed" that it doesn't show the Church as fat and opulent.

"I had to present the truth," he said. "The Church is really in tough shape. I found diocese after diocese on the brink of bankruptcy — largely because the parochial schools are draining off income."

He noted that what gives the American religious organizations their image of wealth is all their real estate, such as church buildings, schools, hospitals, homes for the aged and orphanages.

"It looks like wealth to the eye, but it's not producing any real income," he said. "What it does produce, the parochial schools and other institutions eat it up, and they're still having a hard time."

He said he previously assumed that the U.S. Church was raking in big money from sidelines business, but found this also was a fallacy. Some religious orders conduct businesses to support theselves, he said, but generally are taxed the same as commercial enterprises.

However, regular regional organizations of the Church, the dioceses, depend almost entirely on Sunday collections from members, he said.

"That Sunday plate is what keeps the Church going," he added.

Lo Bello estimates the holdings of the U.S. Catholic Church at $80 billion with annual income of $12.5 billion, but he says the money goes to operate 18,000 parishes, 785 hospitals, 420 homes and orphanages, supporting extensive foreign missions and running 13,000 schools.

He said the Vatican, whose holdings he estimates at $30 billion and income at $2 billion annually, could help the American Church, and several American archbishops have sent out feelers to Rome about it, with negative results.

"The Vatican is rich and getting richer, while the American Church is poor and getting poorer," he said.

Ohio wine enthusiast sues to block 'inferior' drinks

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Cincinnati wine enthusiast, who says he wants to protect the drink's integrity, has filed suit to block the sales of five New York wine firms in Ohio, because, he contends, they are not true wine.

Paul R. Moran, an attorney and member of the Greyton H. Taylor Wine Museum of Hammondsport, N.Y., included the makers of such well-known labels of Great Western, Wild Irish Rose and Bacchus.

He said he filed the suit as an individual wine hobbyist and home vintner.

Moran alleged the firms do not comply with Ohio law, which says that wines must be 75 per cent pure grape juice.

Named as defendants were the Taylor Wine Co., Inc.; Pleasant Valley Wine Co. and Gold Seal Wine Co., of Hammondsport, N.Y.; Widmer Wine Cellars Inc., of Naples, and Canandaigua Industries Co. Inc., of Canandaigua, N.Y.

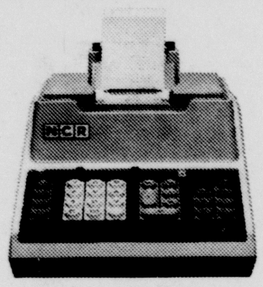

The Pleasant Valley Co., a subsidiary of Taylor Wine, markets its wines under the Great Western label and the Canandaigua firm sells under the Wild Irish Rose and Bacchus labels, the suit said.

The firms sell more than a million gallons annually in Ohio.

Moran charged the products "contain up to 53 per cent water and or sugar" and up to 25 per cent California, Algerian or Spanish wine, although labeled New York State wine.

The Hamilton County Common Pleas Court suit asked that Moran be paid $1 for each gallon sold in the past year or that sold in future and that all wine found to be in violation of Ohio law "be determined a public nuisance and ordered seized and destroyed."

POWs get look at pay records

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Besides family and friends, returning Vietnam POWs might also have a "sizeable chunk" of back pay awaiting them when they get home.

An officer at Wright-Patterson Air Force base said Wednesday some of the former prisoners of war have "salted away as much as $100,000" in back compensation.

"Depending on how thrifty they were and the size of their families, the men could have a sizeable chunk of money," said Lt. Col. Nick Apple, base information officer.

The five freed men undergoing reorientation at the Dayton base spent most of Wednesday checking their personnel and financial records, receiving medical examinations and intelligence debriefings.

One of the men, Capt. Edward J. Mechenbier, 30, of Dayton, reportedly received dental care and was fitted for eye glasses.

Mechenbier and Maj. Donald L. Heiliger, 36, of Madison, Wis., arrived early Wednesday aboard a C-9 medical transport.

Three others, Col. Ronald E. Byrne Jr., 43, of Peru, Ind.; Lt. Col. Robert B. Purcell, 42, of Louisville, Ky., and Capt. Burton W. Campbell, 32, of Lorain, arrived at the base last week.

During their captivity, ranging from six to seven and one-half years, they were eligible for regular pay, subsistence allowances, combat pay plus $5 for each day as a POW.

Some of the POWs also set aside some of their pay as savings in a special armed services account that provided ten per cent interest, Apple said.

POW wives received allotments throughout their husbands' captivity, he said.

Apple said special financial reports had been prepared for each man, and each has been given a small, sliding, cardboard pay rule to tabulate his accumulated earnings.

No information would be given out concerning the financial standings of the POWs, he said.

"If we did, it would be an open invitation to someone to sell them insurance, stocks and land in Florida. Our job is to protect them from that."

At a news conference Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Heuliger, parents of the Wisconsin major, said their son "is a bit thin, but looks fine." They said they were surprised at his good health and appearance.

All five returned prisoners were flying jet fighters when they were shot down.

Data about prison camp life bared by POW talks

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Bit by bit, a picture of prison camp life is beginning to emerge from conversations with returning POWs from Southeast Asia.

In a conversation with an old Navy buddy, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Bradley Edsel Smith gave additional insight into his years of captivity, a topic still reluctantly discussed publically by most of the repatriated Americans.

Smith, whose father, Paul, lives in Lake Milton, Ohio, said he slept on a concrete slab without even a cloth under him.

"He said he could lie down on the floor here and go right to sleep just as well as I could on a bed," said Cmdr. Nicholas D. Langston, who was on the same mission when Smith was shot down March 25, 1966.

The two had a reunion in Jacksonville Naval Hospital, where Smith is one of six returned POWs going through medical and military processing and Langston is confined with two broken legs from a low level ejection last month.

Langston said Smith "looks in better health now than when he was shot down." He attributed that to the fact that Smith "didn't do any smoking or drinking for seven years."

Langston said Smith also attributed the Vietnam peace agreement, in part, to renewed U.S. air bombing of the north.

"He mentioned that the B-52 bombings last year rattled the ground in his prison throughout the night, Langston quoted Smith. "He said that, if anything, brought the North Vietnamese to their knees."

Recalling the mission on which Smith went down, Langston said: "Brad's bombs didn't drop—some kind of malfunction. On the way back he picked a target of opportunity, a bridge, and peeled off to try to drop his bombs. We rendezvoused over the sea, and Brad didn't show. I looked for him 20 minutes and didn't see him."

"Now I found out he ejected pretty low and went down in the river. He said some guys in little black suits came out to get him. One ugly man with scars all over his face pointed a weapon directly at him and he thought it was all over. But, they took him in the boat," Langston said.

His mother lives in Miami, Fla.

Lukens, Rhodes seek court rule

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court Friday will have before it a second case from a would-be gubernatorial candidate which seeks to have his rejection by Secretary of State Ted Brown declared unconstitutional.

The latest suit is by State Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, whose gubernatorial petitions were rejected by Brown Wednesday.

In an anticipated gesture, Brown refused Lukens' petitions and $50 filing fee on grounds the Butler County Board of Elections ruled the candidate was delinquent in filing his personal expense account for his 1972 state senate campaign.

Ohio law says candidates who do not file within 45 days after election cannot seek public office for five years.

Lukens' attempt to submit the petitions was a prelude to his intentions to force a court decision in the case, alongside a similar court action pending on behalf of former Gov. James Rhodes.

Gubernatorial petitions submitted by Rhodes were also rejected by Brown, but for a different reason.

Brown contended there is still a constitutional question about whether a governor who has served two, four-year terms, is eligible for a third term.

Ohio law says a governor may not serve more than two consecutive terms, but is unclear whether this means two terms, period.

Both suits challenge Brown on the grounds that his action deprives two qualified candidates from seeking public office.

Sources close to Lukens said he will also seek a writ to force Brown to accept his petitions, bearing 4,000 signatures from 82 counties, and will file a similar suit in U.S. District Court here.

Tax preparers face charges on false returns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pair of federal income tax preparers accused by the Internal Revenue Service of filing false returns were free on their own recognizance today, awaiting court appearances.

Pearl E. Brown of Springfield and Fred G. Myers of Columbus went before U.S. magistrates in Dayton and Columbus Wednesday following their arrest by IRS agents on charges of false return preparation.

Mrs. Brown was charged with 12 counts and Myers with 13.

Paul A. Schuster, IRS district director for Southern Ohio in Cincinnati, said Mrs. Brown, 46, is a registered public accountant who works in a Springfield office, and Myers, 55, was listed as an income tax preparer.

OU seminar hears woman Army general

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — The armed services aren't waiting around for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to take steps to eradicate discrimination against women, the Army's highest ranking woman said Wednesday.

Brig. Gen. Mildred Bailey told an Ohio University audience the military is responding to pressure from women and governmental groups to change some of its practices she considers discriminatory.

Included in these practices she said are age requirements, benefits after marriage, and base housing facilities.

In the past six months, Gen. Bailey said the number of military occupational specialties open to women has jumped to 90 per cent of total non-combat occupations. Six weeks ago an Army regulation was changed to permit a woman officer to command any non-combat unit, she said.

But, Gen. Bailey said the armed forces would react "very violently" if ordered to fill a certain percentage of its positions with women.

"Setting quotas would be considered unfair," she said. "If an officer is given a responsibility to carry out, he should also be given the proper tools."

Gen. Bailey said the Army would make a decision within the next month on whether to expand Army ROTC programs for women nationally. Ten schools started the program in the fall.

Gen. Bailey spoke at part of a week-long seminar at OU on the changing role of women in the U.S. today.

Seek identity of 'lost' boy in Brown County

By BILL VALE
Associated Press Writer

GEORGETOWN, Ohio (AP) — A 14-year-old boy, who says he left home because he was in his parents way, has been in the Brown County Jail since Feb. 16 and authorities don't know what to do with him.

"I don't know," said Brown County Juvenile Probation officer Marvin Case, "some boys get lost, but this one—he really is lost."

The boy, who insists "My name is Tony Peterson," was picked up hitchhiking by the Ohio Highway Patrol after getting off a Greyhound bus from Bluefield, W.Va.

He escaped officers twice before they finally handcuffed him. The boy said his family lives in Tampa, Fla. and that they formerly lived in Roanoak, Va. But he doesn't know anything about either city and police in neither city could find any record of him, Case said.

"He's sharp as a tack and clams up when you try to pin him down. He's shown too, that he has some knowledge of law enforcement procedures.

"He keeps telling us to let him go, he'll find his own way home. We thought about buying him a bus ticket but I don't guess we'll do that."

The boy had no luggage but "he was dressed pretty well." He wears a horizontally-striped maroon and yellow sweater, maroon pants with gray material below the knee, brown leather boots and a green-gray corduroy coat.

He is slightly built, five feet tall, 95 pounds. His hair is dark and slightly curley, blue eyes that flutter and flash when he is questioned and slightly freckled fair skin.

"He seems like a good boy," said Case. "He is well mannered. We've put out information on him all over but we haven't had one call.

"If he would tell us the truth, we could clear this whole thing up right now."

Sheriff Charles Ernst admits the situation is "aggravating." But what makes it worse, the rural farm county has no facility for juveniles. The boy, until Wednesday, was kept in a jail cell with two juvenile offenders under sentence to an institution in Columbus.

"It's not right to have them in the jail," Ernst said.

The boy told police he boarded a bus at Tampa, Fla. and rode to Bluefield, W.Va. where he boarded another for Georgetown, Ohio, after making friends wiith another passenger, Mrs. Gordon Kessler of nearby Sardinia, Ohio.

"He doesn't seem homesick," said Case. "He never mentions his family . . . just says he ran away, he felt like he was in the way—that his parents didn't want him.

"I have never seen anything like this...his parents have made no inquiries that we can find.

It's tragic, and its funny, to think we can't come up with something.

"I know boys can get lost, a lot of them do, this one really is lost," said Case.

Await federal transit subsidy

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Approval of a federal grant remained the last hurdle today to public ownership of Cincinnati Transit Inc.

American Controlled Industries Inc., parent firm of CTI, Wednesday approved the sale of the company to Cincinnati for $6.8 million.

City council approved the agreement Jan. 31. Voters approved a .3 per cent earnings tax increase for the purchase at the November election.

The city is seeking $13.5 million from the U.S. Department of Mass Transit to purchase new buses, improve service and slash the 55-cent fare to 25-cents.

Hoosiers study possible uses of tax rebates

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than $100 million in federal revenue sharing funds for state, county and municipal-level government in Indiana doesn't appear to be burning a hole in anyone's pocket.

Most of the counties and communities checked by Associated Press members in Indiana this week have not made a final decision on where their money is going to go.

The federal revenue sharing bill provides a five-year program and distributes $5.3 billion in the first year. Indiana's share is $104.3 million, with about $35 million for the state government and about $69.5 million to counties, cities, towns and townships.

Many of the communities are holding public meetings to find out what the people want to spend the money for. Some have a rough outline of the projects to be financed with the money, but few have made final decisions on them.

Soviet Ballet dancer unable to emigrate

MOSCOW (AP) — Ballet dancer Valery Panov has complained that he is being prevented from emigrating to Israel because of objections from his mother-in-law.

Panov was rated one of the Soviet Union's most gifted character dancers until his dismissal from the Kirov Ballet company last year for saying he wanted to live in Israel. His wife, who is not Jewish, was also expelled from the company for wishing to leave with her husband.

Twelve players named to star-studded cast

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Six seniors were named to the 1972-73 All-South Central Ohio League basketball team at the league's winter banquet which was held Wednesday night at Miami Trace High School.

The six member SCOL head coaches also placed five seniors and a sophomore on the All-SCOL second team, in addition to naming a 12-player honorable mention list.

Only one Fayette County cager landed a berth on the star-studded first team, while three were named to the second team.

MUFF JONES, Miami Trace's smooth forward, was picked on the first team. Jones, a lanky 6-foot-3 senior who was an honorable mention choice a year ago, was the fourth leading scorer in the SCOL this season and was one of the keys in Miami Trace's co-championship. Jones finished the regular season with a nifty 17.0 scoring average.

Washington C.H.., which finished second in the 45th SCOL championship race, dominated the second team selections as seniors Dick Witherspoon and Chuck Bath were named along with Pete Jones, of Miami Trace.

It was Jones' second straight selection to an All-SCOL second team while Bath was an honorable mention choice a year ago.

Don Jewett, Hillsboro's 6-foot-2 senior ace, was named honorary captain of the All-SCOL team, and Wilmington dominated the first team picks with two players winning honors. Tim Wilson, the muscular 6-foot-3 pivotman, and smooth-shooting Robert Raizk both garnered first team berths. Buddy Kennedy, of Greenfield, the SCOL's top pointmaker, and Circleville's Dave Truex rounded out the first team picks. Truex was a first team choice last season.

Also named to the second team were Dan Graham, Circleville, Larry Crabtree, Greenfield, and sophomore Kevin Bailey, Hillsboro.

CURTIS E. Fleisher, principal at Miami Trace, welcomed the guests, and the Rev. Gerald Wheat, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Washington C.H., delivered the invocation and benediction.

Paul Sarchet, principal at Circleville High School, introduced the guests and entertainment was provided the Miami Trace Folksingers under the direction of Mrs. Cinda Stinson. Presentation of trophies and awards were made by Sarchet and Fred Jones, principal at Washington Senior High School.

Ted Mullins, WBNS-TV (Channel 10) sports director, was the featured speaker. He was introduced by Gary Keller, principal at Wilmington High School. Mullins, who talked about humorous incidents he has encountered in broadcasting, and Keller were formerly neighbors in Columbus.

Unioto asked to join SCOL

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Sports Editor

The South Central Ohio League Board of Control Wednesday night unanimously agreed to extend an invitation to Unioto High School in Ross County for membership in the SCOL.

The SCOL principals are hoping to expand the league membership with the announcement recently that Madison Plains, the SCOL's seventh team, would drop its membership following the 1973-74 school year, its first year of competition.

A spokesman for the SCOL principals said the board of control is considering asking another school to join with Unioto which would increase the membership to eight teams for the second time in the league's 45-year history.

UNIOTO IS a Class A high school located off U.S. 35 about two miles west of Chillicothe. School officials pointed out that Unioto's enrollment this year is 189 students in the uper three grades and that it will become a Class AA school next year. Class A is assigned to schools on a figure from 0-189 and Class AA is 190-399. Unioto is currently a member of both the Ross County League and Scioto Valley Conference and has sports facilities like those found around the SCOL.

The principals said Chillicothe and London, which had shown interest in joining the SCOL, have withdrawn their applications for membership. London has dropped its membership in the Mid-Eight League and joined another.

Madison Plains, which will enter the SCOL at the beginning of the 1973 football season, dropped its membership when school officials there felt it could not compete with the league teams. The Madison Plains basketball team was 0-6 against SCOL teams this season.

It was announced at Wednesday night's SCOL winter banquet that Wilmington High School was the winner of the 1972-73 SCOL sportsmanship award. Washington C.H. was the first annual winner of the award which was devised by Bob Bane, athletic director at Washington C.H., and is judged by officials throughout the SCOL basketball season.

Gary Keller, principal at Wilmington High School who served as secretary-treasurer of the SCOL's Board of Control, announced upcoming dates for the SCOL teams at Wednesday's banquet.

He said the SCOL track meet will be held May 1-2 at Circleville. The SCOL golf meet will be staged at the Washington Country Club May 7 and the SCOL spring sports banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. May 15 at Circleville High School.

Buddy Kennedy cops SCOL scoring crown

BUDDY KENNEDY

Buddy Kennedy, Greenfield McClain's sharpshooting guard, captured the 1972-73 South Central Ohio League basketball scoring championship, according to statistics released today.

The 5-foot-9 senior, who matched a Greenfield single game scoring record this year with a 38-point performance against Westfall, topped the SCOL scorers with a spiffy 21.0 average in 17 games.

Kennedy bucketed 357 points on the basis of 147 field goals and 63 free throws. He also was the top point producer in SCOL games with a 20.4 average on the basis of 184 points in nine games.

DON JEWETT, Hillsboro's slick-shooting senior, was next in line behind Kennedy with a 19.6 average in all games and an 18.6 mark against SCOL opponents.

Dave Truex, the hard-working Circleville forward, finished third in the SCOL point chase with 18.2 marksmanship. The 6-foot-0 senior canned 328 points this season to push his career total to 653 which was just 46 points short of a Circleville career scoring mark.

Muff Jones, Miami Trace's lanky senior cornerman, ranked fourth with a 17.0 mark, but finished eighth against SCOL foes. Robert Raizk, the Wilmington shotsmith with a shooting touch as soft as a lullaby, landed the fifth place spot and rangy Dan Graham, of Circleville, was sixth.

Miami Trace finished as the SCOL's most potent offensive team with a 71.9 point per game mark on the basis of 1,294 points and Circleville was the league's stingiest defensive team, yielding an average of only 56.5 points per outing.

Cincinnati Swords draw bigger crowds

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The second year Cincinnati Swords, leaders of the Western Division of the American Hockey League, drew 35,473 fans in five home games in February and are far exceeding last year's attendance.

Crowds have averaged 4,089 per game in 29 games here, a total of 118,589, according to Swords' business manager Tom Young.

Last year's average was 2,790, he said.

Cincinnati Reds name turf superintendent

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Lubie Veal, head groundskeeper for the Montreal Expos the past five years, is the new turf superintendent for the Cincinnati Reds.

Veal, 47, will supervise maintenance of the Astroturf surface at Riverfront Stadium.

Robinson still leads

CHICAGO (AP) — Although defending champion Mike Robinson of Michigan State still holds a precarious lead, the battle for the Big Ten basketball scoring title could go right down to the wire.

Prep cage coaches split on burden of being No. 1

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coaches of The Associated Press three state high school basketball poll champions are split over the burden such an honor carries into post-season tournaments.

Charles Huggins of Class A king Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South says it's still there for the elimination games.

Don Eddins of Class AAA ruler Canton Lehman and Carroll Hawhee of Class AA champion Waverly contend the burden is much greater during the regular season.

The AP ratings are based on regular season games and are conducted by a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

"Truthly," said Huggins, whose team has won the last two polls, "yes, the pressure is still there."

Despite the buildup for his team, the Tuscarawas County power has extended the longest current victory streak to 44 games. Eighteen have come this winter.

"The pressure is not as much now. We had it during the last couple of weeks against McKinley for the city title and with our regular season streak of 30 games," said Eddins, whose squad was 18-0 this season.

"Now we can forget those things," he added. "When you are No. 1, the only thing to do is keep it."

Hawhee admitted, "No. 1 has a tendency to tighten you up some, but I don't think as much during the tournaments as the regular season. You get to midseason and you start thinking about the ratings."

In their opening tournament tests, Indian Valley South faces Guernsey Catholic Tuesday, Lehman goes against Canton Glenwood Wednesday and Waverly will play Portsmouth West or Minford Thursday, March 1.

Around Ohio: Greenwich South Central has its first unbeaten season and five of the first six are juniors. Hamilton Taft's five seniors have helped roll up a 53-9 record in three seasons.

Kevin Greer, a 6-foot guard at Leesburg Fairfield, hit 34 straight free throws in one stretch this season and made 16 of 22 floor shots in one game. Greer averages nearly 22 points.

"We were outhustled, outrebounded and outofficiated," said Springfield South Coach Wayne Wiseman after a 71-66 loss at Hamilton Garfield last week.

Waverly's league streak has hit 39 games in the Tigers' third straight Southeastern Ohio League championship season. Steve Sturgill, with 1,206 career points, only needs nine points for a school record.

Steve Watson, Lehman's 5-10 floor leader and scoring ace, has started all of the school's 30 straight regular season triumphs. Boardman's four-year hold on the Steel Valley Conference title was broken by Youngstown Ursuline.

New York Rangers turn back Kings, 4-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The day started with an earthquake for the New York Rangers and before it was over, they shook Los Angeles up themselves.

Down by 3-1 in the second period, the Rangers battled from behind to tie the score and then beat the Kings 4-3 on a goal in the final 10 seconds by Jean Ratelle.

Elsewhere in the NHL Wednesday night, Montreal trimmed Chicago 4-2, St. Louis took Minnesota 5-2, Toronto tied Atlanta 2-2 and Boston ripped California 6-2.

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH

To celebrate their Lunar New Year holidays, the Republic of China has issued a set of four stamps depicting various traditional folk practices. Each stamp is a beautiful illustration of a lively and colorful scene of old.

One adhesive features the game of "Kicking the Shuttle Cock." This event is not an athletic contest but rather a delicate set of moves in which the player kicks the small, feathered piece as he performs tricks and assumes postures.

"The Fisherman and the Oyster Fairy" appear on another stamp. This is a story of a fisherman trying to cast his net over a girl carrying an oyster shell on her back.

The third stamp pictures a circus-type routine of clowns on a boat. It is entitled "Rowing a Boat Overland."

The theme of the fourth is "Carrying a Young Lady on an Old Man's Back." It highlights an actor in exaggerated costume with false legs and head to portray both roles.

These are familiar scenes to celebrants of the Lunar New Year and the stamp reflects the enthusiasm of the occasion, according to the World Philatelic Agency.

All the stamps in this set are available at your local stamp dealer.

THE THIRD in a series of 12 medallions commemorating U. S. postal history is now available through the nation's first "Postique," established by the .U. S. Postal Service at Memphis.

The proof coin commemorating the 125th anniversary of U.S. postage stamps, struck in pure silver, features reproductions of the first stamps issued by the U. S. Post Office in 1847 on one side while the reverse side has a history of the stamps and their importance.

According to Memphis Postmaster James C. Curtis, this is a limited edition with each coin serially numbered.

The proof silver medallions are priced at $12 each, each nickel-silver specimen at $5 each and antiqued bronze at $3. A complete set costs $19.

All orders should be addressed to: Postique, United States Post Office, Memphis, Tenn. 38101. Send money orders, not personal checks or cash.

WOMEN'S LIB has had its effect on philately, too.

As a result of the absorption of women into men's stamp clubs, the Women's Philatelic Society of New York is disbanding after 40 years in existence.

According to Sophie Buser, cofounder of the women's stamp group, it was evident that the society had outlived its purpose. Failure to enroll new members and dwindling attendance at meetings prompted this action. Said Mrs. Buser: "The members may cherish with pride the memories of the society's accomplishments in fostering philately among women."

AS PREVIOUSLY mentioned in this column, the first U. S. stamp in 1973 honoring the bicentennial of the American Revolution signals the rise of the spirit of independence with a theme stressing communications in colonial times. It points to the roles of the printer and pamphleteer who helped united the colonists to a common cause.

The stamp features a group of five patriots. One is a printer pulling the bar of a hand press. The others are commenting on the pamphlet being printed.

The 8 center is the first of four such stamps to be issued this year on behalf of the bicentennial.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, FEB. 23

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

You may run into snags or obstacles — but you can handle them well. Pep up an old idea, keep your vision broad. Think over past experiences — and profit by them.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Don't consider first thoughts only nor first impressions. You could be mistaken about motivations, indications, meanings. Give all the benefit of the doubt.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Mixed influences, mixed possibilities. How you react to opposition and unexpected obstacles will tell the tale. Literary and scientific matters especially favored.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Lunar influences auspicious. Tailor moves sagely to fit the occasion. If stresses rise, ease off sufficiently to think and judge more clearly.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Ask questions, but listen well to the answers and use care in interpreting relevant facts. You will encounter both high caliber motives and misleading ones.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Mercury influences extremely generous. A day in which to exercise your keen faculties and capitalize on your wealth of talents. Written matters especially favored.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Be careful not to mix friends and finances now. Arguments, mistrust on either side would be a distinct possibility. In other respects, day should go well.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Follow through on well-devised plans and procedures, and don't be sidetracked by nonessentials. Consider the suggestions of others, but tailor them to suit your own needs.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

A good day for trying new experiments as a means of furthering progress. Remember, it doesn't always pay to "play it safe" or "stay put."

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

If things aren't going quite as you'd like, seek a new and more productive approach. As with Sagittarius, experiment a bit, but don't go to extremes.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Be alert to spot flaws in your program, and initiate corrective action promptly. An unusual idea, put forward at the proper time, could prove profitable.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

You could be tempted now to turn from a winning to a more confused course. Consider the whole picture, and avoid the pitfalls of heedlessness and haste.

YOU BORN TODAY are a highly versatile individual, with certain characteristics almost alien to other Signs. A Piscean, governed by Neptune, you have an intense love of the sea and everything connected with it. Also, you are extremely perceptive, possessing almost a "sixth sense" which, coupled with your many talents, can be an invaluable factor in your success pattern. It tells you when to move, when to "stay put." Further, it gives you a more-than-ordinary interest in the occult, and many Pisceans are known for their clairvoyant powers. Your personality is a magnetic one and others follow you willingly. Thus, you have a great responsibility toward them. Will you lead UP or DOWN? Natural harbor now oil port

By ROBERT F.S. JONES
Associated Press Writer

MILFORD HAVEN, Wales (AP) — "It's diabolical, boys. That's what it is," complained Tegwen Hughes as he sipped his beer and gazed sadly out of the fly-specked windows of a waterside pub on to one of Europe's finest natural harbors.

Hughes has lived all his 80 years in Milford Haven, a little fishing town tucked carefully away in the southwest corner of Wales. The only new port to be built in Britain this century, it has nearly 70 miles of coastline either side of the estuary and a channel deep enough to take most of the world's largest ships. Since it was opened 12 years ago it's turned out a real moneymaker.

So why is Hughes so sad? "Dead — that's what it is," he said. "When I was young you could see nearly $50 trawlers bobbing about at the quayside and all the town was caught up in the fishing industry."

AS A natural harbor, Milford Haven has been known for centuries. Shakespeare in one of his plays asked how Wales "was made happy to inherit such a haven." Two years before the battle of Trafalgar in 1805 Nelson called it one of the two finest harbors in the world.

And 150 years ago King George IV scurried into Milford Haven for shelter when his ship was caught in a violent storm on its way home from a visit to Ireland.

He was greeted, a monument in the town center proudly proclaims, "with shouts of welcome from thousands of loyal and warm-hearted Welshmen."

They are still loyal — but not quite so warm-hearted these days. For although in the past ten years Milford Haven has quietly exploded into one of the world's largest terminals for the modern, giant oil tankers, the prosperity of a modern port somehow has passed them by.

THE 150 trawler fleet Hughes fondly remembered has shrunk to a dozen or so of the little boats. Where 5,000 men were employed one way or another in the fishing trade, only a handful — probably under 500 — are employed in the new port, and unemployment is running above the national average, despite government infusion of some light industries into the area.

The disgruntled townsfolk see one of the world's finest anchorages on their doorstep, and they can't share in its prosperity. Oil ports don't need an army of dockers, crane drivers and wharf operators. Neither do they need a flotilla of tugs. They don't employ thousands of local workers and don't bring invasions of free-spending seamen ashore.

All they need, apart from a handful of local workers, are oil company technicians to service the giant tankers as they slide gracefully and quietly to their berths, discharge their cargo through pipelines to the refineries ringing the jetties, then slide as quietly out again inside 36 hours.

IT'S BAD LUCK for Milford Haven, but the harsh fact is that as a modern port it just isn't viable. There is no hinterland to serve, no raw materials to attract industrial development. Apart from narrow country roads, the only communication with the industrial centers of Swansea and Cardiff is a rail line — single track for most of the way.

In 1958 the government decided to turn it into an oil tanker terminal. A special act of Parliament set up the port authority to run things, money was found — nearly $480,000,000 altogether — to dredge and widen the channel and improve facilities, and the government sat back and waited for customers.

They hadn't long to wait. Both BP and Esso (now Exxon) had had their eyes on Milford Haven for some time as a likely off-loading point for their tankers, and by 1960 the new port was in business.

TANKERS in those days were mouse-like things compared with the giants of today. When the port first opened, the largest tanker it handled was 65,000 tons deadweight. Twelve years later it had coped successfully with a leviathan of 250,000 deadweight tons.

In 1960 there were just the two terminals. Texaco followed in 1964, Gulf two years later, and Amoco last year, leaving only Shell of the major companies without a terminal.

Twelve years ago the port handled 8.4 million tons of oil. By last year this had grown to nearly 27 million tons. The channel has been deepened to take tankers of up to 280,000 deadweight tons. And that, says the port authority, should be deep enough to last the tanker trade for some years to come.

Flu: There Are Many Viruses

What is the London flu that everyone seems to be talking about?

How does it differ from other "flus"?

Mrs. L.T., Del.

Dear Mrs. T.:

There are distinct technical differences in viruses.

There are probably 300 or more various viruses that may affect and infect man. Many of these have been recognized and identified.

The viruses that cause polio, smallpox, chickenpox, mumps, measles, and influenza are responsible for a group of physical symtpoms that identify each disease.

However, the fine distinctions between the London flu, the Hong Kong flu and an ordinary grippe or common cold are not always easy to classify. Common to all of these might be the runny nose, the general feeling of aching, fever, congestion in the chest, sore throat, cough, and a tremendous sense of weakness.

The sudden outbreak of acute infections in London has pin-pointed attention to a viral infection which now bears its name. It would take the most complicated studies with electronic microscopes to distinguish one virus from another. The name is not nearly so important as the care that should be given early to people who are sick.

It must be remembered that when the first symptoms of a cold or flu appear, the virus has probably been incubating for three or four days. It is important, therefore, that when people feel "a cold is coming on," treatment should be started at that time.

Rest, fluids, modified diet are important. Rest is probably the most important part of the early treatment.

I never have been able to learn how to swallow a pill. I struggle so hard with it that sometimes I decide to forget about the pill.

Are there any tricks of the trade that you can let us in on?

Mr. J.R.E., Okla.

Dear Mr. E.:

I have watched patients strain, struggle and use all sorts of neck gyrations to swallow a small pill. These same people can swallow a piece of steak half an inch square without the slightest difficulty.

I just believe that most people work too energetically at doing a simple thing.

I came across an excellent suggestion made by Dr. William B. Robey of Phoenix, Arixona. He tells his patient to take sip of water and hold it in his mouth. Then, tilt the head back as though to gargle, and drop the pill on top of the water. Then he has him take another sip of water and swallow all of it.

Apparently, this old technique is an excellent one for problem pill-takers. Why don't you try it?

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead - king of hearts.

They say that truth is stranger than fiction, and here is a hand to bear it out. South was playing a pair championship and the bidding — surprisingly — went as shown.

East's pass of two hearts was astonishing, to say the least. He had the values for a raise to four hearts; all he had to do was assume that West had the normal complement of 10 or more points for his two-level response and on that basis bid game. Apparently East was unduly obsessed by his partner's pass as dealer and took an altogether too gloomy view of game prospects, but this was not good thinking on his part.

South should probably have let well enough alone, but being by nature a fierce competitor, he decided to fight the part score. Accordingly he bid two spades, intending this as a cuebid to invite partner to bid one of the minors.

But North didn't read partner's intentions that way, and he passed. As a result, South found himself struggling dispiritedly in a hopeless contract and the outcome was that he went down six for a loss of 600 points!

North-South naturally had some words to say to each other at the conclusion of the hand, as partners sometimes do, but eventually they made their peace when they discovered what had happened at the other tables where the hand was played.

At practically every table, with perfectly normal bidding, East-West had arrived at either four hearts or four spades, scoring 650 or 680 points. So the odd result was that North-South, who were minus 600 points due to their partnership misunderstanding, achieved a top score!

Equal rights amendment foes heard by solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio women who said they are content with their status showed up in droves Tuesday night to tell a House committee they don't want the federal women's Equal Rights Amendment.

An estimated 400 to 500 would be witnesses came as the State Government Committee heard the first opposition testimony on the proposal that bans discrimination on the basis of sex.

Only about 300 could get into the hearing room where a contingent about equal in size last week urged that Ohio ratify the amendment and become the 28th state to do so. The amendment requires approval of three-fourths, or 38, of the states.

Issues raised by the opponents were similar to those used in other states— namely that the amendment would destroy family life by encouraging mothers to work, mean that women could be drafted, and that both sexes would share toilet facilities.

Mrs. Nancy Rider of Dayton, who identified herself as a Mormon speaking on behalf of her church in Ohio, mentioned prisons.

She said men and women would have to share correctional facilities, among other public places, because the ERA "makes it illegal to separate the sexes." She said the 1964 Civil Rights Act and subsequent court decisions "make it clear" that separate but equal public facilities would be illegal.

Other witnesses included Mrs. J.J. Kling of Cincinnati, president of a group known as "Pro America." She called the ERA "radical" and asserted it would strike out "all laws that distinguish between men and women, no matter how beneficial." She said it represents a "threat" to all laws, federal and state, which were written for the protection of women and family life.

The House committee headed by Rep. Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, is alternating hearings between opponents and proponents on Tuesday nights. He said the committee probably will vote on the measure in early or mid-March.

The proposal still must go to the Senate, where it died last year.

The beautiful bird called the Fairy Tern is capable of carrying as many as 15 small fish or squid lined crosswise in its bill at one time. The fish are used to feed the young who will eat food up to one-half of its own weight daily.
